ROOSEVELT ASKS BOOST IN ALL WAGES

Post's Plane Damaged In Alaska Landing as Mattern Hops to Nome

Oklahoman Unhurt as Ship Noses Over; May Take Off Today.

Russian Plane Brings Texan to Territory From Siberia.

Flat, Alaska, July 20 (AP).—Wiley Post's world-circling plane Winnie Mae was damaged slightly in landing in an east wind here at 3:30 p. m. (8:30 p. m., Eastern standard time) today, but the Oklahoma flier escaped injury and mechanics believed the plane might be ready for a take-off tomorrow morning.

Exhausted and nervous after being lost in storm clouds for seven hours, Post finally found the landing field of this village in the Yukon Valley, about 300 miles northeast of Nome.

He had reached the American continent at Nome at 1:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, but had spent the intervening time in circling about over the territory.

Mattern in Nome.

Meanwhile, Jimmie Mattern, round-the-world flier, whose plane was wrecked six weeks ago in Siberia, arrived at Nome in a Soviet plane flown by Pilot Levenovsky, a Russian aviator, after having been forced down 6 miles west of Nome earlier when the plane ran out of gas. The Texas flier said he planned to complete his flight to New York within two or three days.

After circling the field here several times, Post put his fast plane down in an east wind, which bounced the ship three times. Then it was nosed over. The propeller was bent, and the landing gear damaged.

Within a short time, communication was established with Fairbanks, and arrangements made for a plane to rush repair parts here. It was believed the Winnie Mae might be ready for the air again tomorrow morning.

Flat is a small settlement on the Iditarod River, 150 miles south of Nulato.

The Oklahoma flier had been in the air 22 hours and 42 minutes when he landed here. He took off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, at 9:58 p. m. (Eastern standard time) last night.

Post Apparently Confused.

Post's plane first appeared over Flat from the northeast, passing at an elevation of about 4,000 feet. He headed south toward a range of hills 4 miles away and then returned to hunt for a landing field.

He said he had been following the Iditarod River for seven hours, not knowing where he was. Apparently he had circled Ruby for some time, but had been unable to find the landing field.

After being helped out of his plane, he was taken to the nearby hangar and was examined for injuries, but none was found. Mechanics began immediately to inspect the damaged Winnie Mae.

Bad weather was encountered over Bering Sea, Post said, and he had sighted some mountains through the clouds near Nome for his first view of the American continent.

While the mechanics were at work, he went to the Signal Corps station for rest and for some much-needed sleep.

Bank Reports Savings Unit $75,000 Short

Justice Department Agents Begin Investigation at District National.

Agents of the Department of Justice last night were investigating a reported $75,000 shortage at the District National Bank.

Joshua Evans, jr., conservator of the bank, revealed the shortage after it was learned the Justice Department had assigned agents for the investigation. The shortage, Mr. Evans announced, appears to be in the savings division.

Just what the investigation had disclosed could not be learned late last night. J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice, could not be reached.

In a statement to the press, issued late yesterday by Mr. Evans, he declared:

"On Sunday last, the staff of employes assigned to the preliminary work in preparation of proofs of claim, incident to the bank's participation in the proposed Hamilton National Bank, reported to me what appeared to be a shortage in the savings department. The matter was immediately investigated by me and, in my opinion, the amount of the shortage is approximately $75,000.

"The proper authorities and bonding companies were promptly notified," the statement continues. "The investigation is now in the hands of the Department of Justice. The bank carries blanket surety bonds aggregating $100,000, which I am confident will fully cover the shortage. The investigation is in no way delaying the work preparatory to this bank's participating in the opening of the Hamilton National Bank."

Drug Stores Will Ban Price Cutting by Code

New York, July 20 (AP).—Sixty-five retail druggists from 11 States, representing through associations some 60,000 stores, met today with the Drug Institute of America to consider the coordination of codes to govern their business.

A statement issued after the meeting said the code would provide a 40-hour week for all store employes except registered pharmacists and would ban price cutting and other unfair competition.

Dalrymple Urges Speeding Up Rum

Dry Administrator Says "There Is No Use to Kid Ourselves."

New Orleans, July 20 (AP).—Stopping here briefly while en route from Houston to Washington by plane, Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, national prohibition administrator, said he favored immediate licensing of distilleries and wineries for the bonded manufacture of hard liquors in anticipation of eighteenth amendment repeal.

"There is no use to kid ourselves and there isn't any use in delaying the start of liquor manufacture," the prohibition director said. "It will mean putting hundreds of thousands of men back to work and it will mean hundreds of thousands of dollars of new business."

Balbo Party, Tired, Feted Widely Here

President's Luncheon Climaxes Nation's Great Welcome.

Average Citizen Joins With Dignitaries in Ceremonies.

A smiling President sat opposite a smiling young Italian Air Minister at lunch yesterday, and climaxed the nation's day of welcome and honor for the youthful Gen. Italo Balbo and his colorful fellow-pilots.

From the time they landed at Bolling Field in Army, Navy and Marine Corps planes, the Italian party was hustled from one ceremony to another, meeting everywhere the applause and "vivas" of Americans and their fellow-nationals.

The highest officials of the country praised the mass flight of the young general across the Atlantic. The average citizen along the curb marveled at the age of the party which made aviation history by flying 24 giant seaplanes from Italy to Chicago and then to New York, a distance of 7,100 miles.

At the end of the day, the Italians were a bit confused, but still smiling their appreciation of the compliments and praise they had received. Balbo, their leader, was a perfect guest. Never once did he give way to the annoyance which so much ceremony and cheering must have caused him.

Naps on Journey.

He and his men had arisen in New York at 6 a. m. and flown to Washington by 10:30 a. m. The general grabbed a nap en route, he said, and perhaps his officers did, too, but that was their only chance to rest. From the moment of their landing to midnight, they were hurrying back and forth, satisfying the universal desire of Washingtonians to congratulate them, or at least to see them.

The party was accompanied from Chicago to New York and Washington by Commander Sbernadori, Italian air attache here.

Under leaden skies and in a rather sticky atmosphere, officialdom, silk-hatted, uniformed and dignified, perspired with the citizenry gathered at the field to do honor to the young Latins who have pioneered in mass flying over great distances.

Arrangements were excellent at the field, except that the people had little chance to see the Italians at close range until the ceremonies were finished and the open cars whisked them away to the city.

General Saluted.

Shortly after 10 a. m. a speck in the sky grew rapidly into a speeding Lockheed plane, in which were Gen. Pellegrini and Lieut. Stanley Umstead. Soon the other planes appeared, flying in fairly close formation, circled the field and floated in for landing.

When all his men had alighted, the general, accompanied by Col. Yount, commanding officer of Bolling Field, approached the welcoming stand, while the Navy Band,

Girl Friend Ruth And Elliott Part

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Miss Ruth Googins, of Fort Worth, Tex., and her mother planned to leave Chicago today.

This quashed for today, at least, the rumor that she would be married in Chicago to Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President.

Young Roosevelt himself gave out the item when he emerged from his hotel today. He walked immediately to the nearby hotel where Miss Googins has been visiting, then motored out with the young woman and her mother, aunt and uncle. He said Miss Googins would leave today, but that his own plans were unchanged. He would stay here with his sister, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, and visit the World's Fair.

U. S. Contract Team Nets 5,640-Point Lead

London, July 20 (AP).—The American team spurted to a lead of 5,640 points over the British team in today's round of a 300-board duplicate tournament for an international contract bridge trophy offered by Charles M. Schwab.

The score at the end of the night session, with 200 boards completed, was: United States, 66,020; England, 60,380.

Wet Victory In Tennessee Closest Yet

Drys Have Lead Until Count Starts on the Votes in Cities.

Nashville, Tenn., July 20 (AP).—Tennessee today became the nineteenth State to vote for repeal of the prohibition amendment in a ding-dong battle that left the repealists with a scant 10,000 majority when most of the returns had been reported and gave the drys the satisfaction of the closest fight in any State since repeal voting started.

With 1,910 of the State's 2,172 precincts reported the vote for repeal was 121,469 against 111,687 for those favoring retention of the eighteenth amendment.

The 322 scattered precincts unreported were not believed to carry enough votes to change the trend.

Drys Take Lead.

Swinging across the mountains from the Republican stronghold of east Tennessee, the prohibitionists jumped into an early lead that once went as high as 19,000 votes. Rural precincts, which closed at 4 p. m. Central standard time, also helped the dry cause.

The lead looked good after approximately 100,000 votes had been counted, but when the cities started reporting after 7 p. m. the tide gradually changed and then an avalanche of wet votes swept in from Shelby (Memphis) County. The repealists drew out in front and from then on opened up the space between them and the drys as other cities gave the wet cause a majority.

Cities Turn Tide.

Rural precincts in Shelby County had been reporting majorities of 10 to 1 for repeal, but there was no indication of the devastating tidal wave of votes to come. With Memphis complete the county reported 32,478 votes for repeal and 2,100 against, a majority of 30,000 votes.

Nashville, Chattanooga, Knoxville and other cities helped the wet cause with majorities although Knoxville, in the heart of mountainous and Republican East Tennessee, returned but a 248 vote majority for repeal.

(United Press.)

New confidence that the eighteenth amendment will be repealed by Christmas was held by Democratic leaders yesterday.

Repealists expected the States approving repeal to be increased to 20 by Tennessee's vote yesterday, and Oregon's today.

Postmaster General James A. Farley said after a visit to the White House yesterday that President

Antisaloon Group Raps Repeal Vote

Missouri League Directs Drys to Ignore State Election on Issue.

St. Louis, July 20 (AP).—The Antisaloon League of Missouri today instructed its members and workers, as well as associate dry organizations, to ignore the State election August 19 for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

In the instructions sent out, Superintendent P. A. Tate declared the proposed election is illegal and unconstitutional, and directed drys to refuse to name judges or clerks for the election, or in any way to take part in it.

This week Tate plans to file in Jefferson City referendum petitions which, he says, will nullify the Weeks bill, under which Gov. Guy B. Park has called the election.

Ickes Orders Quiz in Firing Of 74 Workers

Discrepancies Are Bared in Efficiency Ratings of Employes.

By Robert C. Albright.

Immediate investigation into efficiency ratings of employes of the United States Geological Survey was ordered yesterday at the Interior Department, following complaints of dismissals based on erroneous ratings.

At the same time, Secretary of Interior Ickes directed that 74 employes released from the service July 15 be put back to work at once pending outcome of the inquiry.

The group released included 10 geologists, 5 topographical engineers, as well as engineering aides, draughtsmen and subprofessional employes. All 74 work in Washington.

The investigation was ordered after several of those affected appeared before Secretary Ickes to point out alleged discrepancies in the ratings which caused their dismissal.

Reinstatement Ordered.

After a preliminary inquiry, which showed that some of the complaints were justified, Secretary Ickes acted immediately to restore all 74 to their jobs.

Earlier, the Interior Secretary had moved to ease the blow of the ax in the Geological Survey's scientific services by inaugurating a spread furlough system calculated to save many from dismissal until they can get located elsewhere.

Officials of the Interior Department said yesterday they are unable to account for the alleged discrepencies in efficiency ratings in this one office. They declared no similar situation has come to light in any other of the Interior Department's divisions.

Spread Furlough Plan.

There are approximately 700 employes connected with the Geological Survey, mostly located in the field service. It could not be deter-

Chicago Pits Bar Futures Trades Today

Kansas City Suspends Business Also as Prices Plunge.

U. S. Plans to Use License Law in Effort to Curb Gambling.

Chicago, July 20 (U.P.).—The Chicago Board of Trade voted at a special session tonight to suspend trading on the exchange tomorrow in grain and provisions futures.

Vice President R. B. Boylan said the one-day closing order was decided upon to give overworked employes a chance ot get some rest after one of the wildest trading days in the history of the exchange and three weeks handling of a tremendous volume of business.

Cotton, securities and cash grain markets will remain open and adhere to the regular trading hours, the directors announced.

Kansas City, July 20 (AP).—Directors of the Kansas City Board of Trade decided tonight to suspend trading in grain futures here tomorrow as the aftermath of a plunge of prices in trading today. Indefinite restriction of price fluctuations was approved.

(Associated Press.)

Two days of sharply falling stock and commodity prices yesterday brought the Roosevelt administration into action in an attempt to curb large-scale speculation on the grain markets.

In a day that saw wheat drop 17 cents, cotton a cent a pound and stocks from $2 to $23, the administration warned that if necessary to halt wide fluctuations in grain prices, it was prepared to invoke the licensing power of the farm act upon grain traders to achieve more stable prices.

There was no immediate word from the administration about the stock market, but Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, suggested that a code might be prescribed by the Federal Government for the control of such exchanges.

Roosevelt Likely to Act.

Those familiar with the views of President Roosevelt believed that if the market fluctuations endangered his recovery program, he would not hesitate to act firmly and speedily.

In the first effort to deal with the grain exchanges, Secretary Wallace, at the direction of Mr. Roosevelt, restored, effective at once, the requirement that the Department of Agriculture be informed daily of the names of operators who have traded heavily in the grain market.

Mr. Wallace explained that this action was a "preliminary" in developing a program to halt if possible violent shifts in grain prices, that the information made available by the reports might lead to recommendations for new legislation or invocation of powers under the farm act authorizing the Secretary to license dealers and handlers of any farm commodity.

President Better; Back to Job Today

Overcomes Cold Which Has Confined Him to Room Since Last Monday.

President Roosevelt expects to return to his daily round of duties today, it was said yesterday at the White House.

He has been confined to his rooms with a cold since he returned from a week-end cruise. The regular Cabinet meeting and press conference are both scheduled for this afternoon. If he feels well enough, he will come to the executive offices tomorrow morning, before the luncheon for Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of the Emperor of Ethiopia. At any rate, he will be in his office after lunch.

Yesterday the President felt well enough to attend the luncheon given at the White House for Gen. Italo Balbo. He also met Ras Desta Demtu briefly. He has been much benefited by his rest since Monday, White House attaches said yesterday.

Bernard Baruch On Way to France

New York, July 20 (AP).—Bernard M. Baruch, a liaison man at Washington during President Roosevelt's recent vacation cruise, sailed for Europe today to take the cure at Vichy, France.

Declaring he had no intention whatever of stopping at London on the way or of visiting the American delegates to the Economic Conference, Mr. Baruch said:

"I am not going over with anything to say to anybody. No one has spoken to me about anything I might say abroad. I am going to Vichy and then I'm coming home."

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Admiral Carey T. Grayson, physician to President Wilson, and Herbert Bayard Swope, former editor, were at the pier to see him off.

Kidnaping Suspect Is Jailed in Halifax

Detained Georgian Denies Part in Abduction of Atlanta Banker.

Halifax, Va., July 20 (AP).—A man giving the name of Torrence D. Westmoreland, 26, of Griffin, Ga., is being held in Halifax County jail in connection with the kidnaping of James K. Ottley, Atlanta broker.

Sheriff J. A. Tune said the man was held for investigation after a similarity had been noticed between his appearance and pictures of William Delinski, who is wanted for the kidnaping.

Westmoreland, who was detained after applying at the jail for a night's lodging, said he left Georgia last Friday and was en route to Washington looking for work. He denied any knowledge of the kidnaping.

Sheriff Tune said he had sent fingerprints to Washington for comparison with records of Delinski.

Italian Wants Balbo To Carry Him Home

New York, July 20 (AP).—A hatless man tried hard to get to Gen. Italo Balbo in the lobby of the Ambassador Hotel today. He was prevented by police. He only wanted to borrow the general's plane to fly back to Italy.

"My name is Barney Gambino," he said. "It means we will all live or die together."

Voluntary Pay Increase Sought

Blanket Code, Described as "Industrial Self-Government," Provides Decreased Weekly Hours for All Classes of Workers in the Country.

Presidential Approval of Money And Hour Agreement Announced

Recovery Administration to Flood Nation With Campaign of Education to Arouse Public Opinion, Says Gen. Hugh Johnson at White House.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

President Roosevelt last night called on the entire Nation to join in a volunteer movement to boost wages and decrease working hours.

The Chief Executive's revolutionary prescription for the economic illness of the country was set forth in an agreement formulated under the national recovery act.

Described as "industrial self-government" and a "truce to selfishness," the blanket code provides for a 35-hour work week and a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for industrial workers and a 40-hour work week with a minimum weekly wage ranging from $12 to $15 for so-called white-collar workers.

The hours and wage agreement is to be effective September 1 and is to continue in effect until December 31, or until special codes have been drafted and approved for specific industries. Provisions of these special codes will, as they become effective, supersede the general agreement.

Copy of the agreement is to be delivered to every employer throughout the land. Distribution will be undertaken by the Postoffice Department. Recipients will be asked to sign the agreement and return it to their local organizations.

Public Opinion Will Be Aroused.

The might of an aroused public opinion is to be brought to bear by the administration to swing employers into line. Consumers will be asked to patronize those who sign the agreement. No direct appeal will be made to boycott those who refuse to accept the plan, but official disapproval of their attitude will be made amply manifest to the buying public.

Approved by President.

"We are going to saturate this country with a campaign of education and public opinion will respond just as strongly as it did in war," Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, said.

"This thing is aimed at the most pointed thing in the human heart—unemployment and fear of unemployment."

Presidential approval of the wage and hour agreement was announced at the White House by Gen. Johnson following a two-hour conference with Mr. Roosevelt.

"There is no force here except conscience and opinion," the administrator said in an explanatory statement.

"This is an appeal to those good instincts of our people which have never been besought in vain. But it is not a ballyhoo campaign. The plan is new; the agreement is not simple and a thorough public program of explanation is needed and will be carried out.

Test of Patriotism.

"After four years of hopeless and seemingly helpless suffering and inaction, it would be unforgivable not to open to the country the chance it now has under this law to unite once more to overcome an emergency and, it may be, defeat depression.

"This is a test of patriotism. It is the time to demonstrate the faith of our fathers and our belief in ourselves. We are a people disciplined by democracy to a self-control—sufficient to unite our purchasing power, our labor power, our management power, to carry out this great national covenant with vigor, with determination, but with the calm composure and fair play which should always mark the American way."

Child Labor Abolished.

The agreement eliminates child labor, fixing the age limit at 16 years, with the exception that children between 14 and 16 may be employed for not more than three hours per day, between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m., in other than manufacturing or mechanical industries.

Elimination of child labor has been agreed to by the industries which have so far submitted specific codes for official approval. Permitted employment of children must not interfere with their school attendance.

One of the major provisions of the code involves the mainspring of the present recovery program. Producers agree that they shall not increase prices beyond the July 1 level except to the limited extent

Text of Proposed Employers' Pact With President

The text of the President's re-employment agreement drafted for employers of the Nation follows:

During the period of the President's emergency reemployment drive, that is to say, from August 1 to December 31, 1933, or to any earlier date of approval of a code of fair competition to which he is subject, the undersigned hereby agrees with the President as follows:

(1) After August 31, 1933, not to employ any person under 16 years of age, except that persons between 14 and 16 may be employed (but not in manufacturing or mechanical industries) for not to exceed 3 hours per day and those hours between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. in such work as will not interfere with hours of day school.

(2) Not to work any accounting, clerical, banking, office, service, or sales employes (except outside salesmen) in any store, office, department, establishment, or public utility, or on any automotive or horse-drawn passenger, express, delivery, or freight service, or in any other place or manner, for more than 40 hours in any 1 week and not to reduce the hours of any store or service operation to below 52 hours in any 1 week, unless such hours were less than 52 hours per week before July 1, 1933, and in the latter case not to reduce such hours at all.

(3) Not to employ any factory or mechanical worker or artisan more than a maximum week of 35 hours until December 31, 1933, but with the right to work a maximum week of 40 hours for any 6 weeks within this period; and not to employ any worker more than 8 hours in any one day.

(4) The maximum hours fixed in the foregoing paragraphs (2) and (3) shall not apply to employes in establishments employing not more than two persons in towns of less than 2,500 population which towns are not part of a larger trade area; nor to registered pharmacists or other professional persons employed in their profession; nor to employes in a managerial or executive capacity, who now receive more than $35 per week; nor to employes on emergency maintenance and repair work; nor to very special cases where restrictions of hours of highly skilled workers on continuous processes would unavoidably reduce production but, in any such special case, at least time and one-third shall be paid for hours worked in excess of the maximum. Population for the purposes of this agreement shall be determined by reference to the 1930 Federal census.

(5) Not to pay any of the classes of employes mentioned in paragraph (2) less than $15 per week in any city of over 500,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $14.50 per week in any city of between 250,000 and 500,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city; nor less than $14 per week in any city of between 2,500 and 250,000 population, or in the immediate trade area of such city; and in towns of less than 2,500 population to increase all wages by not less than 20 per cent, provided that this shall not require wages in excess of $12 per week.

(6) Not to pay any employe of the classes mentioned in paragraph (3) less than 40 cents per hour un-

Roosevelt Gets Blanket Code to Boost Wages

Covers Hours and Pay for All Classes But Is Not Mandatory.

necessary to account for actual increase in costs.

The blanket code was decided on because rising prices and speculative production was running away from the slower increase in the national purchasing power and it was feared there might occur a disastrous relapse.

The graduated wage provided for white-collar workers was based on population. The $15 minimum would apply to employes in cities or trade centers of more than 500,000 population.

The scale ran downward as follows: Cities or trade centers of from 250,000 to 500,000 population, $14.50; 2,500 to 250,000 population, $14, and below 2,500 population, a uniform 20 per cent increase in wages with a flat minimum of $12 a week.

Less than the 40 cents an hour prescribed for industrial workers would be permitted in cases where minimum wages for the same work were less than that as of July 15, 1929, but 30 cents an hour was fixed as the rock bottom.

The 35-hour industrial work week may be stretched under certain conditions to 40 hours per week, but not for more than six weeks in the emergency period, and eight hours was fixed as the maximum per day for both classes.

Existing minimum wages in all classes would be maintained despite reduction of hours of employment.

Signers pledge themselves not to "take profiteering advantage of the consuming public" by increasing prices above those of July 1 except to the extent required to meet actual increases in production, replacement, or invoice costs of merchandise since July 1, or increased taxes due to the agricultural relief program.

They are asked to give "full weight to probable increases in sales volume" in estimating increased costs.

Signed by Roosevelt.

Addressed to "Every Employer," the agreement is preceded by a message signed "Franklin D. Roosevelt." The President's message follows:

"1. This agreement is part of a Nation-wide plan to raise wages, create employment and thus increase purchasing power and restore business. That plan depends wholly on united action by all employers. For this reason I ask you, as an employer, to do your part by signing.

"2. If it turns out that the general agreement bears unfairly on any group of employers they can have that straightened out by presenting promptly their proposed code of fair competition."

The President set September 1 as the date by which all industries should submit codes to the recovery administration.

"Any objection to the President's plan to increase purchasing power to bring it in accord with the rising prices is just the bunk," Gen. Johnson told newspaper reporters after displaying a chart showing the wide disparity which exists.

"I am certain this plan is going to work," he added. "It can't fail. The people of this country will respond."

No estimate of the amount by which the national pay roll will be increased by the blanket agreement can be made at the present time, it was said. It is hoped to increase employment by some 6,000,000 before the drive is done.

A. & P. Pledges Cooperation.

Gen. Johnson displayed a telegram he had received from the head of the Atlantic & Pacific Co., operating 15,000 stores, pledging full cooperation with the administration.

The postoffice is to deliver to each employer a copy of the agreement. Before August 1 it is expected to have copies in the hands of 5,000,000 employers.

"Before Labor Day, six weeks away, it is possible to solve the problem of reemployment through individual agreements with the President," Gen. Johnson said.

"But to do this the country must act quickly, vigorously and boldly, as one man—get together in one powerful effort—declare a truce on selfishness."

Every group has a clear cut part in the mass attack on depression, he said, and outlined responsibilities for each. That of the employers to shorten hours, raise wages and cooperate in peaceful settlements of disputes with employes.

Employes must do their best on the job and cooperate in peaceful settlements of disputes. The duties of consumers Gen. Johnson described as follows:

"The public's part—and especially the part of women (who control the bulk of buying)—is to support all those employers and employes who do their parts to put breadwinners back to work."

Will Invest in N. R. A.

Not only employers, but employes and consumers are to be enlisted as members in the N. R. A.—the initials of the national recovery administration. Insignia denoting membership will be issued through local administration agencies which are to be set up.

A district board of seven is to be named in each of the domestic districts of the Department of Commerce. These will be named by the President. The board will include manufacturers, retailers farmers, social service, wholesale trade, banking and labor representatives.

In each State will be established a recovery board of nine and a State recovery council which would be composed of the heads of various trade, labor, civic and other interested organizations.

Details of the general wage raising schedules were discussed at last-minute conferences between Gen. Johnson, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, chairman of the cabinet industrial recovery board; George N. Peek, agricultural recovery administrator, and Louis M. Howe, secretary to the President.

Codes governing three industries were under consideration at public hearings as the blanket code was being whipped into final shape.

Leaders of the electric industry were closeted in an effort to work out agreement on disputed provisions of the electric code. Smaller manufacturers have charged that the code would work toward monopoly and domination by the larger concerns.

Manufacturers and representatives of labor disagreed on the proper basis for minimum wages and on hours at the hearing on the coat and suit industry. Employers propose a piece-work basis of computing pay, but the employes urged a minimum wage of $26 per week with a $14 minimum for nonmanufacturing workers.

Sidney Q. Cohen, New York attorney, representing the Designers Guild of Ladies Apparel of the American Federation of Labor, urged that designers be brought within the scope of the code. Designers want a $100 a week minimum, the same work week prescribed for the rest of the industry, and abolition of style piracy, Mr. Cohen said.

Representatives of the lumber industry sought to justify the 22½-cent wage minimum and 48-hour week prescribed for the South in the proposed lumber code, at hearings before Dudley Gates, assistant industrial administrator.

C. C. Shepherd, president of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, argued that 25,000 more men will be put to work in the South next month if the code is approved.

W. C. Ruegnitz, of the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen, indicated purchasing power in the West will be boosted from $1.26 to $5.71 above 1929 scales.

Hearings on the important steel industry code, which already has aroused opposition of labor because of its company union provisions and working hours, were set to begin on July 31.

Royal Cat Hops Out of Bag

Prince Leaves Box Unguarded and Ethiopian Emperor's Secret Gifts to President Are Revealed as Leopard, Lion and Panda Skins.

Skins of three lions and the great panda and the gleaming coat of the fearsome black leopard—trophies all of the royal hunt—Ras Desta Demtu will present to President Roosevelt today with greetings from his father-in-law, the Emperor of Ethiopia.

With exceeding care this prince of Abyssinia sought to guard the contents of a great box that arrived with him Tuesday, until the time should come for presentation of the emperor's gift to the President. The prince also had three trunks and seven smaller pieces of luggage and a serving boy with him.

But the great box that has held the royal mystery all the way from Africa to the Nation's Capital was left open and unguarded for a moment yesterday and the nature of the emperor's offering was revealed to a reporter and several employes who were waiting about Ras Desta's four-room suite at the Mayflower.

Just how the box will be brought to the White House or exactly when the skins will be presented to the President has not been determined. The State Department has, however, succeeded in arranging luncheon for Ras Desta at the White House today, although a Presidential cold and the fasting requirements of the prince's church threatened for a time to disrupt luncheon plans entirely.

Das Resta broke his fast lightly yesterday, according to native custom, partaking only of orange juice, two slices of toast and coffee. At noon, however, he ate his usually hearty meal.

This morning the prince will round out his sightseeing here with visits to several of the museums. He is expected to leave for New York during the afternoon.

Lerch Faces Carter in Quiz On Fund Drive

Accused G. P. O. Employe to Learn Today if He Is to Be Dismissed.

Frank S. Lerch, suspended assistant foreman, probably will learn today whether he is to be dismissed or returned to duty at the Government Printing Office. He and Public Printer George H. Carter held a two-hour conference yesterday on the latter's charges that Lerch was active in a fund-soliciting campaign to fight wage losses under the economy act.

James E. Rennie, a proofreader, suspended with Lerch several weeks ago, when the alleged "looby" was uncovered by Department of Justice agents, was discharged Wednesday. At the same time another G. P. O. employe was suspended while similar charges against him are sifted.

Mr. Carter has expressed the opinion Rennie was the chief instigator of the drive to recover about $954,000 in earned leave, intimating his decision on Lerch will not be so severe.

Senators 'Spanked' For No Beer Vote

Aldie, Va., July 20.—The Loudoun Medical Society and the Fauquier Medical Society at a joint meeting last night at the home of Dr. W. O. Bailey, at Aldie, heartily indorsed the Roosevelt program and directed that a letter be sent to the President informing him that the people of Loudoun County had faith in his program for recovery.

The societies expressed their displeasure over the failure of Senators Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd to support the beer bill, declaring they were not standing by the President's legislative program.

Dr. Harry Gibson, of Leesburg, was reelected president of the Loudoun Society and Dr. W. O. Bailey, secretary-treasurer.

1,500 Taxicabs Still Lacking P. U. C. License

Police Arresting Hackers Yet Operating on Last Year Permit.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday was informed that there are still 1,500 taxicab operators who have failed to renew their licenses and that 3,218 new permits have been issued to date.

Only a few of these 1,500 cabs are believed to be actually in operation, commission officials said. Many of them have changed hands, many have been withdrawn until fall, and others have ceased operation for hire altogether.

Police now are arresting any cab driver found operating with last year's licenses, which expired last Saturday. About 100 cabs which have been inspected have not yet been licensed.

It was also revealed yesterday that four cab operators who have been using meters have capitulated to the zone fare system and have so informed the commission. Only three meter cabs remain.

Text of Proposed Employment Pact

less the hourly rate for the same class of work on July 15, 1929, was less than 40 cents per hour, in which latter case not to pay less than the hourly rate on July 15, 1929, and in no event less than 30 cents per hour. It is agreed that this paragraph establishes a guaranteed minimum rate of pay regardless of whether the employe is compensated on the basis of a time rate or on a piecework performance.

(7) Not to reduce the compensation for employment now in excess of the minimum wages hereby agreed to (notwithstanding that the hours worked in such employment may be hereby reduced) and to increase the pay for such employment by an equitable readjustment of all pay schedules.

(8) Not to use any subterfuge to frustrate the spirit and intent of this agreement which is, among other things, to increase employment by a universal covenant, to remove obstructions to commerce, and to shorten hours and to raise wages for the shorter week to a living basis.

(9) Not to increase the price of any merchandise sold after the date hereof over the price on July 1, 1933, by more than is made necessary by actual increases in production, replacement, or invoice costs of merchandise since July 1, 1933, or by taxes or other costs resulting from action taken pursuant to the agricultural adjustment act, and, in setting such price increases, to give full weight to probable increases in sales volume and to refrain from taking profiteering advantage of the consuming public.

(10) To support and patronize establishments which also have signed this agreement and are listed as members of N. R. A. (National Recovery Administration).

(11) To cooperate to the fullest extent in having a code of fair competition submitted by his industry at the earliest possible date and in any event before September 1, 1933.

(12) Where, before June 16, 1933, the undersigned had contracted to purchase goods at a fixed price for delivery during the period of this agreement, the undersigned will make an appropriate adjustment of said fixed price to meet any increase in cost caused by the seller having signed this President's reemployment agreement or having become bound by any code of fair competition approved by the President.

(13) This agreement shall cease upon approval by the President of a code to which the undersigned is subject; or, if the N. R. A. so elects, upon submission of a code to which the undersigned is subject and substitution of any of its provisions for any of the terms of this agreement.

(14) It is agreed that any person who wishes to do his part in the President's reemployment drive by signing this agreement, but who asserts that some particular provision hereof, because of peculiar circumstances, will create great and unavoidable hardship, may obtain the benefits hereof by signing this agreement and putting it into effect and then, in a petition approved by a representative trade association of his industry, or other representative organization designated by N. R. A., may apply for a stay of such provision pending a summary investigation by N. R. A., if he agrees in such application to abide by the decision of such investigation. This agreement is entered into pursuant to section 4 (a) of the national industrial recovery act, and subject to all the terms and conditions required by sections 7 (a) and 10 (b) of that act.

U. S. Racketeer Probers To Study Police, Courts

New York, July 20 (AP).—Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of a Senate committee investigating racketeering, said today the group would start an inquiry into police methods and court efficiency in New York, Chicago and Detroit on August 1.

Machado Acts For Amnesty by New Legislation

Cuban Officials to Work Out Provisions Freeing Political Prisoners.

Havana, July 20 (A.P.).—President Gerardo Machado, it was learned in official circles today, has commissioned three government officials to work out provisions of legislation which will grant amnesty to political offenders.

The three officials are Col. J. M. Guerrero, auditor of the army; Dr. Ricardo Lancis, attorney general, and Dr. Gustavo Gutierrez, new secretary of justice.

Members of the Senate said they expected to receive the draft of such a bill Monday and to start consideration at once.

Sumner Welles, United States Ambassador, who is acting as mediator in Cuban political troubles, was represented as feeling that such an amnesty move was important in his conciliation efforts.

Twenty-five political exiles returned today from Miami on the liner Munargo. They issued a statement which read:

"We, exiles in Miami, as a result of our fight for the true liberty of the rights of the people of Cuba, wish to set forth that in returning to our homeland, we will continue maintaining firmly and until the end the same ideals which we outlined at the beginning."

This was interpreted by individual members of the group as opposition to the American envoy's mediation attempts.

Tennessee Votes Repeal by 10,000

Roosevelt agreed with his belief that Federal prohibition would be ended by Christmas.

Downfall of prohibition's stronghold in the South by repeal votes of Alabama and Arkansas Tuesday was particularly heartening to repeal forces. Still incomplete but decisive returns showed 3 to 2 wet majorities in those States.

If both Tennessee and Oregon approve repeal, wets still would need 16 States to complete the 36 necessary for ratification of the repeal amendment. None of the 18 States that had voted before Thursday rejected repeal. Fifteen other States have elections scheduled before November 8.

Repeal victory in one of those was assured when prohibition forces failed to file nominating petitions in Arizona. Utah is considering a proposal for an election November 7. Votes within the year also are possible in Virginia, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Montana.

Move for 3.2 Beer.

In the wake of the votes for repeal in Alabama and Arkansas came movements for legalization of 3.2 beer in those States. Gov. J. Marion Futrell of Arkansas indicated he would call a special session for that purpose as soon as the will of the legislators was ascertained. Gov. B. M. Miller of Alabama declined to comment on a campaign started by some legislators for a special "payless" beer session.

74 Ousted Men Ordered Rehired

mined whether the department will again order 74 dismissals after the investigation of ratings, possibly not the same 74, although one official declared such action is likely. Secretary Ickes pointed out that the spread furlough program he has ordered may take care of the situation, at least until some of those hit get other jobs.

Despite the President's clear stand on reemployment of Civil Service workers in the new emergency set-ups dismissals already made in all of the departments, and others imminent when the President's reorganization progam goes into effect August 10, present a problem that may take weeks to iron out.

Secretary of Commerce Roper yesterday drafted a letter to the Civil Service Commission formally notifying them of the President's position on rehiring of ousted workers. The letter will be delivered to Chairman Harry B. Mitchell today. Meanwhile the commission continues to report increased use by new Federal agencies of the commission's so-called preferential reemployment lists.

After August 10 reorganization the Bureau of Prohibition will continue to function as a "segregated" unit of the Justice Department's new Division of Investigation, created by merging investigatory functions of the old Bureau of Prohibition with the department's Bureau of Investigation, Attorney General Cummings said yesterday. He referred to the prohibition agency as a "disappearing unit."

Hog Caller

R. F. C. Director Proudly Admits His Voice Can Enchant Porkers.

A trip through the South has revealed that Harvey Couch, director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is a past artist at "bringing home the bacon."

He returned yesterday from a visit to his power system in Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi. On his key ring he displayed a medal. This was won, he said in a hog-calling contest near his home, Couchwood, on Lake Catherina.

Mr. Couch won first honors in a contest with the Future Farmers of America. He proudly admitted that the porkers came a-running when he raised his voice. He learned the art on his father's farm in Arkansas, Mr. Couch declared.

Treasury Job Goes To Ohio Democrat

W. W. Durbin to Be Named Register; George Earle, Jr., Hungary Minister.

A new Register of the Treasury and a new Minister to Hungary have been selected and their appointments will be announced in a few days, it was learned yesterday in an authoritative quarter.

W. W. Durbin, of Kenton, Ohio, has been chosen for the Treasury post, while George H. Earle, jr., of Philadelphia, is in line for the legation at Budapest. Mr. Earle will displace the present minister, Nicholas Roosevelt, a Hoover appointee and distant relative of the President.

The choice for Register of the Treasury was one of the original Roosevelt Democrats in Ohio. At the Chicago convention, to which he was a delegate from Ohio, Mr. Durbin broke with his delegation and voted for Roosevelt on the second ballot. He has been Democratic State chairman of Ohio and candidate for both the Senate and House.

British to Act Alone in Trade, Says Runciman

Nation to Seek Treaties, Declares Board Head, as Parley Drafts Reports.

London, July 20 (U.P.).—In a significant speech at the Advertising Association tonight, Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, rejected the World Economic Conference in favor of independent economic action by Great Britain.

"If the World Economic Conference is not prepared to enter into one gigantic convention, then we are prepared to enter into commercial agreements with any nation treating us decently," Mr. Runciman said. He spoke only a few hours after it had been understood the present tariff truce would be renewed by the leading nations for the duration of the world conference recess.

Mr. Runciman said he hoped within a week or two to conclude a commercial agreement with Finland. Meanwhile, he said, negotiations are proceeding with Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania.

Rejects Roosevelt's Policies.

He turned down the ideas inherent in President Roosevelt's policy and said that whatever was happening in Washington, Britain was determined to remain on a stable basis.

London, July 20 (AP).—The World Economic Conference completed its formal committee work today and prepared its last reports for the monetary and economic commissions before adjournment at a plenary session next Thursday.

The most important problems on the agenda of the congress were frankly left for treatment at some indefinite time in the future, including tariffs and import quotas and other trade hindrances, stabilization of currencies and proposals for agreements to control marketing of important commodities.

Money Committee Results.

Taking stock of results of the deliberations, leaders found that these were: Agreement in the silver subcommission against further debasement of silver coinage and in favor of increasing the uses of the metal, agreement that gold is not needed for internal circulation and that central banks minimum currency reserves may be reduced to 25 per cent, and acceptance of the principle that solution of the international, commercial indebtedness problem requires cooperation by creditor countries to restore a reasonable freedom of trade.

The American resolutions for public works programs and control of hours of labor to relieve unemployment appeared to be snagged in the drafting committee unless some last-minute effort to report them out should be successful.

Cordell Hull, American Secretary of State, was described as making a vigorous effort to preserve the general principle of the tariff truce, against opposition of Great Britain and European gold countries. The outcome remained in doubt.

Guns Salute Five Governors at Fair

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Guns of the World's Fair Army post boomed a welcome today to the governors of five States, who stopped over to visit the exposition on their way to the Governors' Conference in Sacramento, Calif.

Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois was host to Gov. John G. Pollard of Virginia, Gov. W. L. Cross of Connecticut, Gov. Ibra C. Blackwood of South Carolina, and former Gov. Cary A. Hardee of Florida. Mrs. Hardee and Mrs. Blackwood also were in the party.

The Black Horse Troop met them at the gates and the guns of Camp John Whistler sounded a nineteen-gun salute for each of the officials.

Seven other governors met the party at the fair—Iowa's Clyde L. Hering, Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, O. K. Allen of Louisiana, M. S. Connor of Mississippi, John G. Wynant of New Hampshire, George White of Ohio and T. F. Green of Rhode Island.

Widow Bought Poison, 2 Say At Death Trial

Evidence Amuses Bay State Woman Accused of Killing Husband.

Salem, Mass., July 20 (U.P.).—A clerk who saw Jessie Burnett Costello purchase poison the night before her husband died and a neighbor who denied she instructed the dark-eyed defendant in the use of it as a cleansing agent testified today as the State's star witnesses in Mrs. Costello's murder trial.

Mrs. Costello, statuesque and attractive, listened to the testimony for the most part impassively, although at times she displayed amusement when witnesses became irritated at the persistence of the defense cross-examination. She is accused of causing the death of Fire Capt. William J. Costello last February 17.

Thomas Cassidy, Peabody drug clerk, told how Mrs. Costello had asked him to sell her cyanide of potassium and oxalic acid on the night of February 16.

"She asked for oxalic acid," he said, "and then she wanted cyanide of potassium. Just then my boss, Charlie Wells, came in. She said she wanted it for cleaning purposes and Mr. Wells told her it was a dangerous poison."

"And did she say anything to that?" queried Assistant District Attorney Charles A. Green.

"Yes," replied the witness. "She said she knew it."

District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg has promised to prove that the defendant, when asked by State detectives if she knew she had poison in the house, protested she was unaware that cyanide was a poison. Under cross-examination by Francis E. Rafter, defense counsel, Cassidy denied he had sold Mrs. Costello either castor oil or a tissue for removing cold cream. The two poisons were her only purchase, he said.

"In your nine years at the drug store," Green asked in redirect examination, "had she even been in before to buy cyanide?"

"No, sir, never," Cassidy said positively.

Mrs. Fannie Hoffman, next-door neighbor of the Costellos, was the next witness.

"Did you ever tell Mrs. Costello, at any time," Green asked, "that oxalic acid and cyanide of potassium was good stuff to clean a boiler?"

"No, sir, I never did," the witness replied.

400 Attend Reception Honoring Judge Green

Judge George C. Green, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Virginia, was greeted by about 400 of his supporters at a reception in his honor last night at the home of Harry K. Green in Clarendon.

In a brief address, Judge Green pledged himself for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and promised an economical and efficient administration if elected.

Dern Is Chairman Of Firemen's Day

he will be present in the reviewing stands.

Plans for the parade are making considerable progress with inquiries from firemen in many States being received daily by the parade committee. The list of prizes and awards are now being made up and will soon be put in the mails for distribution to fire companies in every State in the Union.

The trophy committee is also hard at work securing beautiful cups that will be given to the winners of the various events in the parade.

Yesterday, Walter Von Herbulis, owner of the Club Michel, one of Washington's best-known night clubs, gave the firemen a handsome cup, which will be known as "The Michel Trophy." His is one of the best trophies yet entered, and firemen expressed their appreciation of the donation.

So far, handsome cups have been donated by the Burlington Hotel, RKO-Keith's Theater, the Club Michel and Loew's Washington Theaters.

The cups are to be awarded to parade winners in addition to the many cash awards that the committee hands out to winners of the best line of march, best float, best volunteer company, best appearance, &c.

The band committee, under the chairmanship of Private E. J. Brosnan, is also making progress. All bands and drum corps are urged to communicate with Private Brosnan, through the Fire Department, as soon as possible, to be assured a good position in the parade.

Lieut. H. F. Harding, chairman of the street committee, and Capt. A. L. Lipske, chairman of the seating committee, are also spending much time on the parade work. Sergt. Bargagni and members of the National Firemen's Association are planning other chairmanship appointments from firemen who have volunteered their services for this year's celebration. They will be announced shortly.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, yesterday accepted the challenge of Fire Chief George S. Watson to a bicycle race down Pennsylvania avenue as a curtain raiser to the parade.

Plans are being made on a big scale to stage a bicycle and roller-skating sweepstakes on Pennsylvania avenue during the last half hour before the parade begins.

Entrants for a number of different types of races are being received, and owners of old bicycles are especially being sought out for participation in the event.

Plan to Market Milk in Dispute As Quiz Opens

Farmers and Distributors Disagree on Merits of Proposed Agreement.

(Associated Press.)

The marketing agreement proposed by the Maryland State Dairymen's Association was alternately pictured yesterday as a measure which would bring order and benefits to the dairy industry and as an instrument which would enable "the milk monopoly" to strangle the producer and the small distributor.

A spirited three-cornered battle between the Dairymen's Association, the Independent Milk Producers-Distributors Association of Baltimore and a separate group of producers-distributors developed as the Agricultural Adjustment Administration opened a hearing on the agreement.

As the three interests wrangled throughout the day, little was heard of the farmers' plight, but at the conclusion of the hearing Howard Murdoek, of Mount Airy, a swarthy agriculturist, who said he had been realizing about 8 cents a gallon on milk, arose and declared:

"If we are going to have a new deal, let's have it with clean cards."

To Restrict Production.

The gist of the argument presented for the agreement was submitted in a joint statement by Hartman K. Harrison and Irvin B. Gorman, of the Western Maryland Dairy Corporation, trading as the Fairfield-Western Maryland Dairy, the largest of the seven distributors which are parties to the Dairymen's Association's agreement.

The agreement, the statement said, would mean that each producer would receive a fair price for his milk and bear a fair share of the surplus milk in the market each month, and that each distributor would pay the same price for the same quality milk and bear his fair share of the surplus each month.

The statement said the agreement, which would extend the cooperative arrangement of members of the association to those outside the association, was designed to prevent overproduction at times of excess milk production in the Baltimore area, and prevent the disorganization of the market and the upsetting of prices.

Would Fix Prices.

The agreement would fix prices paid to the producer at 22½ cents a gallon for Class 1 milk, 17 cents a gallon for Class 2 milk, and provide for the disposition of Class 3 milk. The retail price would be set at 11 cents a quart.

The Independent Milk Producers-Distributors Association of Baltimore offered a substitute agreement providing for the payment of 1 cent a gallon less to the producers and placing the independent association, rather than the dairymen's association, in the regulatory position.

The independent association had not presented its argument as the hearing adjourned. Joseph W. Starlings is to open its argument at the beginning of today's session.

Monopoly Is Charged.

The opposition of a group of producer-distributors hastily organized to fight any agreement tending to compel them to join in a cooperative plan was presented by Charles G. Page, their attorney.

Asserting the Western Maryland Dairy Corporation controled the Dairyman's Association, he characterized the agreement as "nothing but an instrument to extend the monopoly of the Western Maryland over us."

"The association is playing hand and glove with the milk monopoly to strangle the producer and the small distributor," he said.

If the producer-distributor were forced, directly or indirectly, into a cooperative, he said, this class of dairyman would be compelled to pay for marketing service which he did not require, as he delivered milk produced on his own farm.

Asks Investigation.

He said the group he represented would "willingly cooperate" with "an impartial milk administrator" appointed for the Baltimore region, and asked the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to recommend such an appointment, not only to regulate the dairy industry, but to investigate conditions "and clean up the whole milk situation."

Two of those he represented, Robert Forest, of Annapolis, and John M. Dennis, jr., of Bel Air, son of the Maryland State treasurer, also spoke.

Forest brought several bursts of applause as he flayed "the milk monopoly," which he said created the surplus by urging farmers to produce more.

Salaries Called Excessive.

"The milk monopoly," he said, "desires a surplus at all times, just as the exploiter of labor desires a surplus of labor."

Dennis charged the Dairymen's Association with paying exhorbitant salaries and expense accounts to its officials and with using arbitrary methods in its classification of milk.

Others who spoke in favor of the dairymens' agreement included George S. Jackson, vice president of the Western Maryland Dairy Corporation, and I. W. Heaps, secretary-treasurer of the Dairymens' Association.

Montgomery Joint Outing on August 5

Montgomery County's lawyers and doctors will set forth August 5 instead of August 4 for their joint outing, according to Thomas L. Dawson, chairman of the general committee on arrnagements.

The outing will be a joint one of the Montgomery County Bar Association and the Montgomery County Medical Society. A boat has been chartered and will leave Baltimore August 5 at 11 a. m., for a cruise on Chesapeake Bay, with fishing, bathing and other diversions. The boat will return the next day. Approximately 125 members of the two groups and their freinds are expected to attend.

Naughty Nudists Nullified

Loin and Breast Cloths Ordered on Girl Dancers at Chicago Exposition, but Public Will Decide Whether Shows Are Vulgar.

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Be it known that the World's Fair management is committed to a program of modified nudity.

Bombarded on one hand by the complaints from reformers, on the other hand by protests from the concessionares of the Century of Progress bright spots, the management decided today to let the reaction of the audience determine whether the show is indecent.

The censor ex officio is Col. J. Franklin Bell, assistant to Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the fair.

He had prescribed the exact minimum of clothing a performer might wear with impunity—loin and breast cloths. Further, he decreed that actors "must not be vulgar or obscene."

The howl of protest and question from the concessionaires today left him less certain where to draw the line.

"It is more a matter of personal opinion," he said.

And who better than the public audience, then, to decide?

"If complaints are received, I send my investigators," said Col. Bell. "They are guided more by the reaction of the audience viewing the exhibit. If they report it obscene, then I will view it personally. If it should be closed, it will be closed."

One young lady in a floor show who wore less than the minimum—a mask and a gauze curtain—was dropped from the curriculum after a protest by a reform association. Here and there the management has insisted that a scarf or something supplement the customary fan. A rhumba dancer was erased from the program of a beer garden show.

"The question is where to draw the line between nudity and vulgarity," said the manager. "A nude figure in itself is not vulgar. What the figure does, how it does it and what it says is something else."

Georgetown U. Man Is Winner At Fort Meade

Cadet Hall, Honor Student, Will Compete for Third Corps Area Title.

Designated as the camp honor student among R. O. T. C. cadets from 15 institutions at Fort George G. Meade, Md., Robert W. Hall, of Georgetown University, will have the opportunity of competing with similar candidates of seven other camps in this area for selection as the Third Corps Area honor student.

Cadet Hall, who resides at 5620 Daniels road in Washington, recently won the rifle marksmanship medal at Fort Meade.

The honor cadet of the nine corps areas in the county will be given free trips to Washington this fall as guests of the Civilian Military Education Fund Committee to compete for the Pershing Medal for Military Merit, which President Roosevelt will be asked to present to the winner. This is the only medal which Gen. John J. Pershing has authorized and was put up for competition last year among C. M. T. C. trainees.

Hall also was the honor man of his company at Fort Meade, winning the competition for camp honors from John D. C. Baldwin, Virginia Military Institute, who was designated as the company honor student.

Another Georgtown student, Walter P. Hickey, was commissioned in the Officers Reserve Corps of the U. S. Army, having completed the advanced course at the camp. Wilmer J. Bradley, also of Georgetown, was awarded a medal for winning the 220-yard free stroke swimming event.

Strikes in Three Plants Settled

Rope and Hat Workers Win Shorter Hours and Pay Increases.

Reading, Pa., July 20 (AP).—Strikes in three Reading plants were settled today, union officials reported.

The Thomas Jackson & Sons Co. rope plant; the Paul B. Hendel Co., and Mohn Brothers Co., hat manufacturers, have signed closed shop agreements, labor leaders said.

More than 700 men affected. They are expected to return to work Monday. The agreements call for union recognition, wage increases and shorter hours.

In the hosiery strike situation, many plants remained closed and pickets continued to march in front of the mills.

2 Hurt, 6 Arrested In Winnipeg Riot

Hospital Closing Incites Demonstration; Tear Gas Quells It.

Winnipeg, July 20 (AP).—Six persons were arrested and two constables were slightly injured today in a demonstration of unemployed near the city hall in protest against the closing of the out-patient department of the General Hospital and a new relief commission order limiting relief for transients to two days.

The demonstrators, chanting "We want medical aid," were shunted onto Main street by a small group of police when they marched toward city hall. When the police charged them in attempting to break up a traffic tangle, bricks and stones were thrown.

Police reserves arrived with tear gas and the skirmish was soon over.

Youth Slain and Body Hid in Warehouse

Flemingsburg, Ky., July 20 (AP).—The body of an 18-year-old youth, shot twice with a .22-caliber rifle, was found today, stuffed beneath a warehouse across the street from his home.

A coroner's jury tonight held that the victim, Jess Redmond, jr., was murdered. He had been shot above the heart and between the eyes. The rifle was found nearby.

King Proposes Complete Study Of D. C. Sewers

Favors Disposal Plant as Recommended by Gotwals to Clear Potomac.

A thorough study of Washington's sewer system by a commission of engineers will be proposed at the next session of Congress by Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, he revealed yesterday after a conference with the District Commissioners.

Senator King said that he favored the ultimate construction of an adequate sewage disposal plant, such as recently recommended by Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals. He said that the Potomac River should be cleared of all pollution.

"The District's sewer system should be planned and built for the future," he said, "and for this reason I intend to recommend an appropriation to finance a complete restudy by highly trained engineers."

The senator explained that he also discussed the sewer projects submitted by the Commissioners to the Public Works Administration. He expressed the hope that they might be approved, and called particular attention to the urgent need for a new stormwater sewer at Fifth and Ingraham streets.

Senator King reiterated his preference for a masonry design for the Calvert Street Bridge and added that he believed the multiple arch would be better than the single span. He expressed the opinion that the masonry bridge might be built within the $1,250,000 authorization despite the contention of Maj. Gotwals to the contrary.

Steel Officers' Pay Termed Excessive

Investment Firm Repeats Charges Before Court in New Jersey.

Trenton, N. J., July 20 (AP).—The Standard Investment Co., which seeks reimbursement to stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation of "excessive" bonuses paid officials, reiterated before the New Jersey Court of Chancery today such payments were "wrongful and illegal."

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board; Eugene G. Grace, president, and other officials were named codefendants to the suit, started several months ago. Recently they replied to the suit with arguments their salaries and bonuses were justified and approved by a majority of the stockholders.

The investment company retorted today, "No action of the majority of the stockholders could justify payment of sums as bonuses or salaries so large as in substance and effect would amount to a waste of the corporate property."

Edwin Gould's Will Aids Foundation

Mineola, N. Y., July 20 (AP).—The will of Edwin Gould, making specific bequests of about $20,000, was filed today.

The widow, Mrs. Sarah Gould, receives all personal effects and real estate and half the residuary estate. The other half is left to the Edwin Gould Foundation for Children, but Mrs. Gould is to receive the income as long as she lives.

At her death the principal is to be distributed among such institutions as the foundation directors see fit. The will, however, suggested some 70 beneficiaries.

Among them are the Chirldren's Hospital of St. Louis, Christian Orphans Home of St. Louis, Baptist Home for Children, Jacksonville, Fla., and the Charleston Orphanage House.

American to End Cuban Campaign

Muecke, Assured of All Guarantees, Agrees to Lay Down Arms.

Camaguey, Cuba, July 20 (AP).—Col. Charles Muecke, an American who has headed a revolutionary movement in this province, has agreed to end his campaign against the government, it was learned today, and to accept political mediation negotiations initiated by Sumner Welles, United States Ambassador.

The colonel will return to his home tomorrow, having received from Col. Pedro Vilato, chief of army headquarters in the province, assurances concerning all the guarantees he asked. It was explained, however, that he will be placed under a $300 bond for appearance in court to face charges of rebellion.

Rosendo Fernandez Pasos, Walfredo Rodriguez Blanca, prominent sugar grower, and the latter's son, Walfredo Rodriguez, lawyer and director of the newspaper El Cama Gueyano, prevailed upon Muecke to lay down his arms.

Repeal to Cut, But Not Quash, U. S. Dry Staff

Liquor Bureau Will Continue to Enforce Old Laws, Cummings Says.

The repeal of prohibition will diminish the size of the Prohibition Bureau, but will not blot it out entirely, Attorney General Cummings said yesterday.

The bureau still will have two duties even after the eighteenth amendment is repealed, Mr. Cummings pointed out. One duty will be the prevention of liquor shipments into dry States. The other will be the enforcement of liquor revenue laws.

The size of the bureau after prohibition can not be predicted, the Attorney General said. It depends on the number of States which remain dry. He pointed out that many States which ratify repeal will not repeal their own dry laws. The joint resolution which initiated the repeal ratification provides that the Federal Government shall prevent the shipment of liquor into dry States. The preprohibition Webb-Kenyon act, which provides the same thing, also will become effective after repeal, Mr. Cummings declared.

The Attorney General held out no hope for legal liquor in the District without action by Congress. The Sheppard law, drying the District before national prohibition, will remain in effect in spite of repeal, he pointed out.

The part of the Prohibition Bureau to be merged with the Bureau of Investigation will be kept as a separate division of the investigation unit, Mr. Cummings said. Agents of the prohibition activity will be segregated from the other agents of the present Bureau of Investigation.

The sale of hard liquor in wet States will be legal as soon as the thirty-sixth State has ratified the repeal amendment, according to an opinion of the Attorney General. It will not be necessary to await proclamation by the Secretary of State, by a verdict of the Supreme Court. As States ratify repeal, they certify this fact to the Secretary of State. He issues a proclamation declaring the amendment a part of the Constitution after receiving 36 such certificates.

West Virginia Given More Help; Ohio Denied

An additional $86,192 of Federal funds was allotted to West Virginia yesterday for unemployment relief.

This raises West Virginia's Federal aid for this quarter to $1,657,152, and gives them total Federal help of $3,349,211 for this year.

Ohio's request for Federal unemployment relief was refused yesterday because the State Legislature made no provision for raising relief funds in the State. Ohio had asked for $4,000,000, in addition to $3,214,569 already received. In refusing the request, Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins reminded Gov. White that he had warned him on June 8 that the Federal Government could not give further aid unless the Legislature took action.

Priest Asks Alms; Held On Beggars' Complaint

Barcelona, Spain, July 20 (AP).—A priest was arrested here today for asking alms at the doorway of a church upon complaint of beggars who were accustomed to operate there.

The priest told police he was forced to ask for charity because he was suffering from hunger as the result of restrictions on the church imposed by the present regime.

Child Labor Code Cuts 944 in North Carolina

Raleigh, N. C., July 20 (U.P.).—The industrial code eliminating child labor will force less than 1,000 children from the cotton mills in North Carolina, the State Department of Labor said today. In 1932, employes in this State less than 16 years of age totaled 944, the department said.

Balbo's Wines

Flier Asks Roper If U. S. Would Be Cheered by Italian Nectar.

(Associated Press.)

Gen. Italo Balbo, whose country produces a wide variety of wines, discussed their value yesterday with Secretary Roper—a man who has been designated as a prohibitionist in the past.

The Italian airman asked the Secretary if the United States did not think importing Italian wines might not add to the gayety of the Nation.

Mr. Roper hesitated, smiled and said:

"In the United States we have been dry so long that now the people are ready to eat, drink and swim in wine."

Chicago School Slash Evokes Criticism Here

Conference Speaker Says Progress of 25 Years May Be Lost.

"A reversion to medievalism in education methods is a strange and sad accompaniment to Chicago's celebration of a Century of Progress."

This is the commentary of Dr. Roy O. Billett, of Harvard University, with respect to the recent curtailments in the Chicago schools.

Speaking yesterday before the George Washington University Conference on the National Survey of Secondary Education, Dr. Billett referred to the elimination of the newer types of courses, such as vocational guidance, industrial and the fine arts, home economics, physical education and the like, as "economy moves aimed ignorantly and carelessly at those activities of the schools through which the child may be treated as an individual and by means of which educators may battle against the lockstep and the evils of mass education."

Warns Idea May Spread.

If Chicago "gets away with it," he warned, such practice will spread and the progress that has been made in education in the last 25 years will be largely destroyed.

Rapid increase of enrollment in the high schools since 1900 has made essential new and more varied courses of study to deal with large groups of students having widely differing needs, interests and capacities, the speaker pointed out.

"It is consistent with our democratic ideals that not 50 per cent, as now, but 100 per cent of our people should be given the opportunities of secondary education," he asserted. "We must, then, make provision in our schools for the development of all types of individuals and not turn many of our people back into an industrial order that already has demonstrated it has no room for them," Dr. Billett asserted. "Why not extend the period of education?"

Deffenbaugh Speaks.

At the evening session, Dr. Walter S. Deffenbaugh, of the Office of Education, discussed the appointment of teachers.

The final session of the conference today will be occupied with discussions by Dr. Francis T. Spaulding, of Harvard University, and by Dr. Carl A. Jessen, of the Office of Education.

$10,000,000 in Checks Returned to Railroads

(Associated Press.)

The Treasury announced yesterday that out of a total of $13,000,000, checks for $10,000,000 had been mailed to the 90-odd railroads which paid the money into the earnings recapture fund.

The fund was established under the law requiring that railroads set aside all earnings above 6 per cent on a fair valuation of their property. The money deposited was never used, but remained in the Treasury because of legal difficulties.

Capt. Barnard Denies Charge In Lorton Row

Penal Supervisor Replies to "Statement" Issued by A. C. Tawse.

After categorically replying in the press to the "statement" sent to the District Commissioners yesterday by A. C. Tawse, Capt. Morris M. Barnard, municipal penal supervisor, last night was uncertain as to whether he would demand a formal airing of the resigned official's differences with him. Tawse resigned recently as superintendent at Lorton Reformatory.

Tawse's "statement" was sent to the Commissioners as the explanation by the erstwhile official of the circumstances leading to the recent rioting at Lorton. The statement also complained that Capt. Barnard had two sons-in-law employed and living in Government-owned houses at Lorton.

Capt. Barnard admitted his two daughters' husbands were employed at the prison and lived on the reservation. But, he asserted, both men worked at the prison before the Barnards ever went there.

A charge by Tawse that Capt. Barnard used a boat built in the prison shops for pleasure purposes was denied. Capt. Barnard said the boat was used on Government business solely.

Governor's Plane Held On Ground by Weather

Raleigh, N. C., July 20 (U.P.).—Unfavorable flying conditions today forced the plane carrying Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus to Camp Glenn to review the National Guard to turn back near Goldsboro.

"If weather conditions are favorable, I will make the trip Friday," the governor said.

The plane roared into a low ceiling this morning less than an hour after it left the Raleigh Airport.

Balbo's Party, Tired, Arrive In Washington

Dignitaries and Average Citizen Pay Homage to Italian Fliers.

resplendent in dress clothes, played the four flourishes and four ruffles to which the general is entitled. Meanwhile, the last of the 19-gun salute was sounding.

The general and his men stood at salute while the band played the Italian national anthem. Then he walked onto the stand.

Secretary Daniel C. Roper of the Commerce Department gave the Capital's official welcome.

Crowd Impatient.

Meanwhile, the Italian section of the crowd was waiting impatiently to get a close-up of their idol. The Navy Band played, the officials gossiped, complimented and shook hands, and still the Italians waited. It seemed a long time until the general headed toward them and recognized their frantic cheering.

Miss Beatrice Fioramonti, representing the Italian World War Veterans of Washington, presented him with a wreath of flowers.

In the inclosure provided for them the young officers of the visiting party stood in rather awkward silence during the welcoming of their leader on the platform. A few who talk understandable English declared they were pretty tired of ceremony.

They were immaculate in their white dress clothes, not unlike the United States Navy officers' dress clothes. Each wore a broad blue sash, a memorial, they said, to a fifth century victory by the Italian Duke of Savoy. Those who had participated in the previous flight from Italy across the South Atlantic wore the beautiful white cross with which Mussolini decorated them.

Has Trousers Pressed.

At the Mayflower the general retired to his room and sent out his white trousers to be pressed and his shoes to be shined. He was the picture of military elegance when he reappeared, wearing his full-dress uniform and his numerous medals and decorations.

Beer and sandwiches were available in their rooms at the Mayflower, but many of the fliers declined it and drank coffee or ice water with their food.

At 12:15 p. m. a luncheon was given by the Overseas Writers Club in the Chinese room of the hotel. Paul Wooten, one of the founders of the club, introduced Herbert Corey, the president, who gave a brief welcome to the fliers. Capt. Teucci responded, while Air Attache Sbernadori translated.

Then the fliers arose, and, in the manner of a snappy, well-trained university cheering section, gave a "Viva America," followed by a few bravos that brought down the house. Upon request, it was repeated after the translation of the captain's remarks.

Everybody Happy.

American Army and Navy officials did their best to be hospitable to the visitors. As the dignitaries and Italian officers took their places in their assigned cars at Bolling Field, the first attempts at conversation in two languages started, and at the hotel there was still much waving of hands, raising of the eyebrows, smiling and stammering. But everybody seemed to be happy.

As the special party entered the White House drive another crowd greeted them. Most of these were girls and women, and they cheered loudly. Balbo and his party waved and saluted continually, and always smiled. When he left the White House after lunch, the crowd was just as dense, and many had apparently stayed for a second look.

The general, Gen. Pellegrini, Commander de la Compana, Lieut. Col. Cagna, Lieut. Col. Longo, Lieut. Col. Sbernadori and Capts. Mannini, Recagno, Biani and Questa, accompanied by Ambassador Rosso, were guests of the President at luncheon.

When Balbo and his men had lined up in the blue room, President Roosevelt entered, shook hands with the general, and congratulated him briefly in Italian. Then he was introduced to the others of the party, who clicked their heels and saluted. Lunch was served in the state dining room, and was reported to have been a gay affair, with the President keeping up a continuous conversation with members of the party through the ambassador who interpreted.

The general, Lieut. Col. Sbernadori and Lieut. Col. Cagna called on Secretary of the Navy Swanson, Acting Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and Acting Secretary of State William H. Phillips. In return, these men left their cards at the general's rooms at the Mayflower.

Visit Arlington.

There was a short breathing space here and some more of the Italians joined their leader for the trip to Arlington where a wreath was placed on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Several hundred had gathered there, and the Army band gave the customary four flourishes and four ruffles, before playing the Italian anthem. In the distance, at Fort Myers, the 19-gun salute was booming over the quiet of the cemetery. The general and his men stood stiffly at salute as an Army bugler played taps.

Then away again, with motorcycles clearing the way to the Italian Embassy, where another crowd applauded the smiling general, and where elite Washington rubbed elbows with him and his men.

After the reception, the fliers returned to the hotel, plunged into showers and sent out the white dress pants to be refreshed for the evening's festivities. Such a day is hard on white duck and linen suits, and the fliers traveled light.

Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson and Acting Secretary of War Woodring were hosts to the fliers at a dinner at the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Country Club at 8:30 p. m. At a late hour, this affair, formal, and requiring full dress and all decorations, was still going on, but the Italians, who had arisen in New York at 6 a. m., and had been "on the go" almost every minute since, were still affable.

Secretary Swanson and Gen. Balbo went on the air just after the dinner over the National Broadcasting Co. system.

Secretary Swanson praised the long career of Gen. Balbo and declared that only the aviator and the sailor could appreciate the tremendous feat of flying across the stormy North Atlantic. But above all, said the Secretary, the flight, and the conduct of the fliers in this country, have served to cement the friendship between two great peoples, and the flight was doubly valuable because of that.

Acting Secretary Woodring expressed Washington's wish that the general and his men would continue to testify to the genius and ability of the Italian people, that they have a safe journey home, and ending with the pilot's au revoir, "Happy Landings."

Celebration Convincing.

In a brief speech, interpreted, the general said the celebration in Chicago, New York and Washington had just about convinced them they had actually done something. He declared they would carry back to Italy the warmest regard for the American people to Mussolini and all Italians.

"We have only demohstrated that what a few have done great humbers can soon be doing in the safety of systematic and safe operation," he said.

The speeches were broadcast.

Plans were changed during the afternoon, and the fliers, instead of flying back to New York, this morning went by train, leaving Washington at 2:35 a. m., on the Pennsylvania line.

Balbo Greeted By Girl for Italians Here

Pretty Lass Fearful Lest Flying General Miss Her Welcome.

Beatrice Fioramonti, pretty daughter of Italy, representing the Italian World War Veterans, almost had heart failure at Bolling Field before Gen. Balbo came to get the spray of flowers she had brought him.

The Italian delegation was given a special position at the field, and two sections of bleachers were erected for them. Black-shirted Fascisti and uniformed veterans stood in front of the bleachers and watched eagerly for Balbo's appearance at their stand.

Beatrice stood on tiptoe, strained her eyes and bit her lips. She couldn't see the general, surrounded as he was by official welcomers, who were determined to do their part of the welcoming, and she saw the limousines drawn up to whisk him away. Plainly she feared her big moment would be skipped.

But the smiling young air minister walked to the line of flags in front of the Italians and received their cheers with his usual smiling face. He raised his right hand in the Fascist salute and the crowd raised their hands and their cheer volume went up several decibels.

Then, when he graciously accepted the flowers, and Beatrice went into her carefully rehearsed speech, the crowd cheered even louder and Beatrice might as well have skipped the speech entirely. But she went on through with it.

Italian societies represented at the field included the San Gabriele Society, Sons of Italy, Lido Club, Boveglio Club, Italian Ladies Auxiliary of the World War Veterans, Rome Lodge of Washington, Arte Mestieri Society, Maria Montessori Society and the Italian Catholic Society.

A Big "Kick"

Balbo Grins and Admits He Tried Out Roller Coaster at Fair.

Gen. Balbo is a tactful subject for an interview. A few faithful and persistent newspapermen cornered him in the hall outside his room as he started for the White House and he consented to a short press conference.

He declined, smilingly, to answer a question seeking the miliary significance of his flight. He explained that the flight is made in military machines, but that it has no meaning as a demonstration of mass movement of aerial offense weapons.

But when the question shifted to his escapade into the midway at the World's Fair in Chicago, his face brightened and he became voluble. He likes to shoot and the shooting galleries there entranced him.

Someone asked if he had taken a ride on the roller coaster.

As the question was translated, his smile became a happy laugh and he leaned toward the questioner—

"I was there, too," he said with a wink.

Gen. Balbo carries no special message to the President except one of good will from his chief, Mussolini, and the Italian people.

"How did you like our airplanes?"

"Fine. They are fast and your fliers are fine men."

"How did you enjoy your flight from New York?"

"Fine. I slept all the way."

Huge Welcome By New York Is Set for Balbo

Blizzard of Ticker Tape Parade up Broadway to Greet Italians.

New York, July 20 (AP).—The city of New York will extend its official greeting to Gen. Italo Balbo and his intrepid crew tomorrow with traditional fanfare—ticker tape, confetti and a brilliant parade.

The visitors, tarrying in New York after their flight from Chicago on the first leg of their return voyage to Italy, will face a series of festivities which begin with a parade up Broadway in the Manhattan manner and will be climaxed with a banquet in their honor at a midtown hotel in the evening.

Ceremonies are scheduled to begin at the Battery, where the triumphal procession will form. The parade will move up Broadway under a blizzard of ticker tape, and wind up at City Hall with a greeting from Mayor John P. O'Brien.

General Balbo firmly, but politely, refused an opportunity to pilot a Martin twin-motored bomber on the trip to Washington today. He complained of a slight cold, and said he was only too glad to ride as a passenger when the opportunity arose.

Just before the takeoff from Floyd Bennett Airport, the dynamic general kissed two-year-old Tommy Priestman, son of Lieut. Frederick Priestman, attached to the naval base here, deposited him in the arms of his mother and said: "I have two of my own . . ."

While their comrades were the guests of the President, those of the crew left behind began checking the 24 hydroplanes of their squadron.

Officials said that "not even a spark plug" had cracked during the entire flight, and that it was likely the air fleet would be in readiness for an early takeoff next week for Newfoundland.

Gen. Balbo Cables Duce of Reception

'Explosion of Enthusiasm' Cheers Airmen, Leader Advises Mussolini.

Rome, July 20 (AP).—A report wired to Premier Mussolini by Gen. Italo Balbo today was enthusiastic in its description of the receptions for the Italian air minister's transatlantic fliers in Chicago and New York.

Referring to the ceremony at Soldier's Field in Chicago, the report said:

"I can not hide the profound impression made on me and my men by this explosion of popular enthusiasm, the like of which had not been seen before in Chicago. It greatly exceeded all our expectations."

It added that New Yorkers had emulated the Chicagoans' enthusiastic welcome.

Gen. Balbo said he hoped to start the return trip for Italy by way of Shediac, New Brunswick, in three or four days.

Maryland Man Charged With Assaulting Woman

Charged with criminal assault on a resident of Washington, Milton Wetchum, 26, Greater Capitol Heights, Md., will be given a hearing in Upper Marlboro today.

Wetchum was arrested early yesterday on a complaint of Ruth Howe, 35, 1211 N street northwest. Miss Howe told Prince Georges County Policeman R. A. Naylor that she was invited for a ride, then forced at the point of a pistol to accompany Wetchum to a lonely road near District Heights, Md., where she was attacked.

Attorney to Wind Up Closed Bank's Affairs

Winchester, Va., July 20.—The old People's Bank of Stephens City, near here, which closed in 1932, will be turned over to an attorney-receiver on August 13, according to an order issued by Judge Philip Williams in Circuit Court of Frederick County.

C. S. Feller, former cashier, has been receiver since the bank closed. Attorney Harry K. Benham was selected as the attorney-receiver.

Finnish Flier Leaves Here on World Trip

Capt. Vaino Bremer, Finnish 'round-the-world flier, remained in Washington long enough to see the Balbo fliers arrive and to have a part in their welcome. Yesterday, he took off from Bolling Field for New York, where he will take ship for London. From there he will fly home to Helsinski, Finland, and completing a trip of more than 18,000 miles around the world.

Probers Say Bread Prices Reasonable

(Associated Press.)

Farm administrators reported yesterday that "most bakers appear to be maintaining fair-price schedules," after an intensive investigation of bread prices in 32 cities which showed increases averaging slightly less than 1 cent per pound loaf on July 18, compared with June 15.

Bakers in the cities where investigations were conducted were reported by administrators to have "in most cases kept within what Secretary Wallace has indicated would be a justifiable price advance."

Labor Official Accuses Navy Of Favoritism

Frey Makes Personal Issue of Disagreement With Admiral Land.

(Associated Press.)

John P. Frey, labor official, yesterday made naval support given the 40-hour week proposed for the shipbuilding industry a personal issue between himself and Rear Admiral E. S. Land.

Frey, an official of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, also protested to Louis Howe, President Roosevelt's secretary, because Land had testified in support of the 40-hour week.

Spectators gathered about the two after Frey accosted Admiral Land during the recess on the proposed code for shipbuilding and demanded to know by what authority the admiral had appeared at the session in support of the 40-hour week.

"I think it was most improper," Frey said sharply. "What took place yesterday I accept as a breach of good faith between myself and the Navy Department."

"Well, there's no use talking to me about it, "Land retorted. "I resent your talking to me this way."

Frey accused Land, chief constructor for the Navy, of favoring the shipbuilders' proposals, and Land replied, vigorously:

"We're not favoring anything."

Land and Capt. H. L. Wyman in their testimony Wednesday said that the 30-hour week demanded by labor would result in a considerable increase in the cost of naval construction and might seriously delay recovery.

Capt. Wyman explained his statement had been read and approved by H. L. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Land told Frey has has appeared at the direction of Secretary Swanson.

Frey expressed belief some Navy officials hoped to hold private shipyard wages down so that the Navy yards might follow suit.

Meanwhile, employers and labor remained far apart on minimum wages, hours of labor and other major points in the proposed code framed to hoist mass purchasing power.

Labor representatives yesterday submitted an alternative code proposing a 30-hour week and a minimum weekly wage of $23, with no differential between pay in the North and South.

Hoover's Views Of State Bank Holiday Sought

Michigan Probers Want to Learn What He Knows About Moratorium.

Detroit, July 20 (AP).—Former President Herbert Hoover's story of Michigan's famous bank holiday—which preceded by less than a month the national bank moratorium—is sought by Detroit's one-man grand jury investigating this State's banking difficulties.

Officials of the jury, which for five weeks held open hearings, but now is in adjournment, revealed that fact today, stating further that the former President has been "contacted" regarding an appearance before the jury.

Whether he will appear, they said, will be known some time next week.

"If Mr. Hoover should come here, we understand he has considerable information which would be of interest to this grand jury," said Prosecutor Harry S. Toy, one of the chief investigators.

Circuit Judge Harry B. Keidan, sitting as a grand jury, said that "personal friends" of Mr. Hoover are seeking to have him come to Detroit, to give details leading up to the calling of the Statewide holiday, which, previous testimony has indicated, was directed by Washington. No word was forthcoming from Mr. Hoover, in Palo Alto, Calif.

The jury is inquiring specifically into the closing of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce and the First National Bank of Detroit, the city's two large national banks which failed to reopen after the holiday. Reorganization plans now are being discussed, following agreement of the Government to loan $75,000,000 on the assets of the banks. Pending the outcome of the reorganization plans, the jury has remained in adjournment, meeting briefly today and adjourning until Tuesday.

To help straighten out Detroit's tangled banking situation, former Gov. Alexander J. Grosbeck, of Michigan, and W. F. Connolly, a former Detroit Recorder's judge, were in Washington yesterday to see officials of the Treasury Department and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Gov. Grosbeck and Judge Connolly are receivers for the holding companies of two of Detroit's closed banks. Application is to be made to the Treasury Department within a few days for a charter for the new Manufacturers National Bank with capitalization of $5,250,000, Grosbeck said.

The Governor has an appointment to see Walter Cummings, Comptroller of the Currency, today.

Recovery Code for Barbers Is Outlined

50-Cent Haircuts and 25-Cent Shaves Suggested as Uniform Price.

Haircut, 50 cents; shave, 25 cents.

This is the uniform price rate which will be submitted in the form of a code to the National Industrial Recovery Board by 400 District barbers, union and non-union, boss barbers and employed barbers.

A dispute over a fixed time for closing was left to arbitration by committees headed by Mason T. McCary, and Charles J. Bovello.

At present, various prices are charged for shaves, ranging from 15 to 25 cents, while hair cuts cost from 35 cents to 50 cents.

U. S. Taxes Own Balloon Racer on Prizes He Won!

Settle, First Place Winner Abroad, Pays $84 Duty on His Trophies.

"'Tis sweet to love, but, oh, how bitter,
To love a girl, and then not git her."

Thus sang the poet, but here we have Lieut. T. G. W. Settle sweating and straining through an international balloon race, winning the race and the trophies incidental thereto, and now having to pay his own government $84 before he can be allowed to keep them.

The Swiss Aero Club conducted the last international Gordon Bennett races, starting from Basle, Switzerland. Settle won and Ward T. Van Orman, another American pilot, was second. The Swiss club sent Settle a fine gold watch and a fine pair of binoculars, and to Van Orman came a handsome silver tray. They sent the package as diplomatic mail to the National Aeronautic Association.

But nobody reckons with our customs officers. One of these gentlemen decided that the tray was all right and could come in duty free as a "metallic medal or prize." But the binoculars and the watch were not sufficiently all-metal and duty would have to be charged, a total, with incidental charges, of $84. Settle paid, fearing that if the gifts were returned the Swiss might not understand, and might conceivably instigate an international diplomatic squabble.

Theater Guild Busy on Elaborate Plans for Coming Season

Fourteen Plays From Which to Make Selection

Gossip of the Circus Lots, Miss MacDonald's Jaunt and Local Events.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Although no definite dates have been announced, the Theater Guild is already knee-deep in plans for the new season's productions.

Its opening attraction, the identity of which has not as yet been disclosed, will go into rehearsal in August and open in September. It will be followed by five others, completing a full subscription season for which reduced prices already have been announced.

The six plays will be selected from perhaps the most imposing list of theatrical properties the organization ever has owned at one time. There are at present fourteen plays on the production schedule of the Guild and several more are still under consideration by its board of managers.

This is of particular interest to Washington theatergoers for the reason that half of the American Theater Society's season of six subscription plays, to be presented in the National Theater next season, will be Theater Guild productions, the other three to be chosen from among the offerings of the most representative individual producers.

From a recent statement issued by Russell Crouse, of the Theater Guild, and transmitted to this department by Mrs. Sidney Thomas, managing director of the American Theater Society in Washington, one learns that leading the Guild's list is the play upon which Eugene O'Neill is now at work at his home in Sea Island Beach, Ga.

Mr. O'Neill has not to date notified the Guild that his play will be raedy for production during the coming season, but there are high hopes that it will be. While the author has not confided the precise nature of his projected drama to the Guild officers, there have been rumors from other sources that it is based upon a gangster motif and will be of normal length—as opposed to such of O'Neill's marathon morbidities as "Strange Interlude" and "Mourning Becomes Electra," which were almost of week-end duration.

The Guild also holds an option on the next play by Maxwell Anderson, this year's Pulitzer Prize winner, Mr. Crouse goes on to point out. Again no information is offered as to its nature, although it has been hinted from time to time that Mr. Anderson is busily engaged on a play concerning Mary, Queen of Scots.

Mr. Anderson's earlier historical drama, "Elizabeth, the Queen," was produced by the Guild with great success several years ago.

A new play also is expected from Sidney Howard, who was represented on Broadway last season by "The Late Christopher Bean," a translation, and "Alien Corn," in which Katharine Cornell appeared.

The Guild also has acquired a play by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church, in collaboration with Reginald Lawrence, remembered as a coauthor of "Men Must Fight." It is called "The Purple Testament." Then there is the dramatization of "Winesburg, Ohio," by Sherwood Anderson and Arthur Barton, and "Native Ground," a play in trilogy form by Virgil Geddes.

"The School for Husbands," by Moliere, also is on the list in an adaptation in rhyme by Arthur Guiterman and Lawrence Langner. It is something of a departure for the Guild in that it has a musical score, composed and arranged by Edmond Rickett. The Guild still owns "Versailles," the internationally political play by Emil Ludwig, the noted biographer, and "Sarah Simple," the latest work of A. A. Milne.

Recent acquisitions include "Gentlewoman," by John Howard Lawson; "Jig Saw," by Dawn Powell; "As We Forgive Our Debtors," by Tillman Breiseth; "No Good End," by William Judson, jr., and "They Shall Not Die," a play about the Scottsboro case, by John Wexley.

With its fifteenth New York subscription season being written into the record, it is notable that the Theater Guild's season was marked by two high achievements—the winning of the Pulitzer prize with Maxwell Anderson's "Both Your Houses," and the breaking of the season's long-run record with S. N. Behrman's "Biography," starring Ina Claire, Washington actress.

So the postman put them on my desk. I mean postcards from opposite seaboards. One, from "Hermie" Perlman, erstwhile Post staff artist, whose theatrical caricatures often appeared on this page, reading thus: "In case you are wondering what happened to Artist Perlman, may I greet you from Hollywood, from Walt Disney's studio, where I am now working? So, cheerio!" The other, a burst of surf, bearing the stencil of Atlantic City, from "Bill" Fisher, manager of Loew's Columbia, having himself a splash while "enjoying a holiday from the Nation's Capital." The lucky stiffs!

Came then Mr. Allen Jones Lester, paying visits to the dramatic desks in the interest of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, which, as Melvin D. Hildreth confided through this column a week or two ago, will pitch its tents in this city on Wednesday and Thursday, August 2 and 3.

Mr. Lester makes known that while "the highest class circus on earth," with which he is identified, boasts no lovely Lilliputians to perch on Wall street's opulent knees, it does make a valid claim to distinction by having as a featured attraction the intrepid Clyde Beatty and his cageful of "cats" which the jungle has made natural and implacable enemies. Mr. Beatty's act is the greatest thrill in the show business.

As a matter of fact, it is the presence of Beatty with the Hagenbeck-Wallace outfit—also a John Ringling enterprise, by the way—that has made it possible for this circus, founded by the late patriarch of Peru, Ind., the venerable and shrewd Ben Wallace, to run a close second to the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey "Greatest Show on Earth" in season's attendance and receipts. Even following the Ringling-B. B. organizaton in many stands, just as it is doing in Washington, the Hagenbeck-Wallace caravan has had only seven losing days all summer.

Ask any showman if that isn't doing business!

The big tops, however, have lost one of their greatest artists for the balance of the current tent-show season.

Alfred Cadona, the world's foremost and most graceful aerialist, has withdrawn from active work following an accident of some seriousness.

This self-imposed retirement, I dare say, is at least partially the result of an exaggerated caution—or possibly a superstitious fear—occasioned by the haunting memory of the untimely death of the incomparable Lillian Leitzel, undisputed queen of the circus world, in private life the former Mrs. Alfred Cadona, who met a tragic end when a part of her tackle broke during a tour of the Scandinavian capitals a few years ago.

You will find much of interest concerning Mr. Cadona in the July issue of The American Magazine.

True to her confession during a brief appearance on the stage at the Actors' Fund Inaugural Benefit, staged by Daniel Frohman, dean of American producers, in the Belasco Theater the night of Sunday, March 5, that she always had been and always would be of the theater, Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson, of Washington, is soon to appear in a stock company production of Rachel Crothers' delightful play, "When Ladies Meet," over New York way.

Mrs. Donaldson, of course, will be immediately identified as the former Miss Frances Starr, one of the late David Belasco's most brilliant stars, remembered for sterling performances in "The Rose of the Rancho," "The Easiest Way," "The Case of Becky," "Marie Odile," "One," and many other distinguished plays.

During the past season, Miss Starr was a familiar and constant figure at first nights at the National, the Capital's sole surviving temple of the legitimate drama.

On next Tuesday, July 25, another aquatic carnival will be held in Crystal Pool out at Glen Echo Park. On that date the District of Columbia Chapter, American Red Cross, will stage a Life-Saving Water Show put on by Neptune's Life-Saving Corps, Ira Lee Law, director. A long list of novel and interesting events are included in the program.

Out at Chevy Chase Lake tonight, Eddie Carr, the energetic and enterprising entrepreneur, is presenting as a special added attraction, Miss Gene Duncan, a 16-year-old protege of Ned Wayburn, who is declared to be in a class by herself as an acrobatic and novelty tap dancer. Mr. Carr, an old filmster himself, thus offers a practically unbeatable symposium of beauty, breezes and brew—an almost perfect prescription for these hot nights.

Jeanette MacDonald cables friends—or so I am told by Paula Gould, one of the more dependable distaff dispensers of persuasive panegyrics—that she will return to home and Hollywood aboard the Ile de France this week, after eight months of continental triumphs in France, Spain, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland. The international cinema songstress has postponed plans for pictures in British studios to answer the urgent call of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for her presence as costar with Raymon Novarro in "The Cat and the Fiddle."

This is the first of a half-dozen vehicles planned for the titian-tressed favorite—this is Miss Gould speaking, by the way—under the new contract to which she was signed by Irving Thalberg during his recent recuperative sojourn on the Riviera.

With the completion of "The Cat and the Fiddle," Jeanette will star in "I Married in Angel," an adaptation from the "Hungarian," in which a youth who longs for a cherubic wife finally marries one and is disillusioned regarding the desirability of angelic wings on wifely shoulders.

"The Prisoner of Zenda," best, perhaps, of the romantic stories, will be another MacDonald picture, and the line-up includes a brand new, spic 'n' span version of "The Merry Widow," with a revised and augmented score, and Jeanette as the unforgetably fascinating Sonya in an up-to-date "Merry Widow Waltz," which will be emulated by every belle of the ball.

Among the first to congratulate the returning star on "The Merry Widow" assignment will be the original Prince Danilo, still an idol, Donald Brian. Mr. Brian more than once has lamented the fact that Jeanette had not sufficiently outgrown the pig-tail age to play the role of "Sonya." He considers her the perfect "Sonya" of today.

Miss MacDonald is accompanied by her mother, a secretary, maid and chauffeur, as well as by Mr. Robert Ritchie, to whom she recently announced her engagement. Not to mention "Captain," the shaggy English sheepdog, famous in every capital as her constant companion. It hardly seems enough!

And if you want to have a really elegant time getting caught up on your sleep, have them repave the street in front of your house at the same time they're remodeling your office.

I tried snatching a nap in a boiler factory, but the stillness woke me up!

Street Singers Are Back Again!

Of course, it is "Forty-Second Street" to which we refer and Bebe Daniels and Dick Powell, instead of Arthur Tracy, the occasion being the return today of the sensational Warner Brothers musicalized movie to the Metropolitan Theater, where it has already scored one record-breaking run, following a capacity Inauguration week at the Earle. But that's the kind of a picture it is, due in no small measure to Bebe and Dick.

Film Tables.

Takoma Probing Sewer Tap Fees

Charge for Reading Water Meters Also Protested as Exorbitant.

Charges by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for water and sewer taps and for reading water meters are being investigated by the finance committee of the Takoma Park, Md., town council.

Citizens have complained that $94 for a water and sewer tap is exorbitant as the charge has remained the same for seven years without taking into account lower labor and material costs.

The charge of $2 for reading meters also is being objected to by citizens who informed the town council that one man can read from 150 to 200 meters a day, for which he receives $5.

Pursuit of Kidnapers.

The Department of Justice has done good work in unearthing the hiding place of the Luer kidnapers, in Illinois, and in arresting six individuals charged with complicity in the crime. Percy M. Fitzgerald, who was arrested several days ago, was identified by Mrs. Luer as one of the kidnapers. He is said to have furnished the information which led to the arrest of the alleged accomplices. The cellar in which Luer was hidden has been discovered. The evidence thus far obtained seems to make certain the identity of some of the guilty parties.

Assistant Attorney General Keenan, in charge of the campaign against gangsters, announces that the Department of Justice will pursue all kidnapers relentlessly, without regard to the question whether or not they fall within the category of Federal offenders. Capture first, and prosecution by State or Federal Government later, is the rule to be followed.

The arm of the Government is long, and can reach across the States. Instant and incessant search upon perpetration of a kidnaping ought to be successful in catching the offenders in most cases. Relatives of kidnaped persons can do a great public service by communicating secretly with Department of Justice agents without delay. Local police are sometimes so greatly impressed with the importance of a kidnaping case that they exploit themselves in the press and furnish hints which enable the criminals to escape. The investigation bureau of the Department of Justice follows a different rule, and its agents, being unknown, can work to better advantage and without regard to State frontiers.

Prompt capture and conviction of a few kidnapers will go far to discourage the growth of this hideous new phase of crime.

Cutting Library Funds.

Present Nation-wide economy measures must of necessity be borne by all branches of the public service, but curtailing expenses indiscriminately in every field will not always result in unqualified public gain. A careful consideration of future results of present reductions should be made in every department to prevent those least able to stand retrenchment from suffering a disproportionately large cut, as has happened in nearly all the public libraries throughout the country.

In the leading American cities book budgets have been reduced from 40 to 90 per cent in many of the larger libraries, averaging about 25 per cent with the small libraries included. The reduction of library facilities comes at a time when the call for books is the greatest in the history of the country. In 1929 more than 19,000,000 borrowers availed themselves of library privileges. Since then the annual number has increased by over 4,000,000.

Many persons have found in the last few years that the library provides a solution of the problem of unoccupied hours, while the unemployed have found public reading rooms and borrowing of books a means of continuing their education during their period of idleness. Libraries facing excessively reduced appropriations will be unable to satisfy the growing number of readers. Improved economic conditions will not diminish the total of borrowers, it is believed, since the shorter working hours in many industries will provide more reading time for most urban dwellers.

Oil Regulation.

The various attempts at self-regulation by the petroleum producers have been complicated on one hand by the restrictions of the anti-trust laws and on the other by the difficulty of controlling output in new fields where flush production meant bonanza for the owners at almost any price per barrel.

In general, however, it has long been recognized that the fundamental difficulty in oil, as in many other lines, is overproduction; and in this case not only is one of the largest and most vital industries affected, but an important and irreplaceable national resource is involved. These factors induced Congress to include in the National Recovery Act provisions which declare petroleum and its products to be subject to interstate commerce regulation when in the course of shipment by rail, water, pipe line, truck or any other means between the States or to a foreign country.

The Department of the Interior has just issued stringent regulations relative to the transportation of petroleum which it hopes will put a stop to the irregular marketing of large quantities of oil. The regulations provide penalties for producers whose output exceeds the proration quota, and are equally strict regarding those who receive for shipment oil from any source that is offered in violation of State laws. Every producer is required to file monthly statements covering production and shipments, and equally rigid requirements are exacted of purchasers and shippers.

These new rules have been put in force in advance of the adoption of the petroleum code. The various elements of the industry are conferring among themselves and with the recovery administrator regarding the fair practice provisions to be incorporated in the code. Meanwhile Federal agents are already assembling in the producing areas, particularly in the East Texas field, to stop the flow of illegal oil. The Government is assured that it will have the cooperation of both State authorities and the legitimate producers, large and small, in suppressing the bootleg oil that has had such a demoralizing effect upon prices and market.

Italy Inspires All.

The welcome accorded by Americans to Gen. Balbo and his squadron of ocean fliers is a spontaneous gesture of homage to skill and courage. From the President of the United States to the man in the street, the people of this country eagerly greet Italy's gallant airmen. It is obvious that the finest airplanes in the world would be valueless unless piloted by expert men; and when a body of experts unite in accomplishing the wonderful feat of crossing the ocean in formation, on schedule time, without a flaw in the teamwork, the admiration of Americans is unbounded.

Gen. Balbo will soon lead his company on the home flight via the Azores. In some respects this flight is as difficult as the jump from Iceland to Labrador. Yet no one doubts that the Italian airmen will reach home in safety.

The air experts of every country will study the details of the Italian flight with deep interest, and aviation everywhere will benefit by lessons learned. The chief benefit of the flight, however, is in the inspiration which it gives to the young men of all countries, in showing them what can be accomplished when ingenuity, skill, and daring are judiciously combined with rigorous but voluntary discipline.

Standards for Industry.

It is gratifying to note that the American Standards Association will carry on several functions that are being relinquished by the Bureau of Standards for economy reasons. Howard Coonley, president of the association, has agreed to take over the activities of the divisions of trade standards, specifications, and simplified practice, as well as some activities of the building and housing division and the safety code section. The work of standardization in American industry is not to be dropped, but is transferred from a Government bureau to a private association.

The American Standards Association is a federation of 37 national technical societies, trade associations and governmental bodies. It was organized in 1918 to serve as a clearing house through which the standardization work of technical and industrial groups could be correlated. Since that time it has performed notable service by preventing duplication of work in this line and by eliminating conflicting standards. Its work is carried on by 400 standardization committees on which 3,000 technical experts serve as members. The association is supported by those groups which benefit from its activities.

Standardization is not popular so far as tastes, habits and personality are concerned, but its value when applied to plumbing equipment, ball bearings, gears, bolts and nuts, machine tools and railroad signals is not open to question. It is estimated, for example, that the work which the Bureau of Standards is discontinuing has resulted in savings of $200,000,000 for the lumber industry. When all industries operating in the same field conform to simple standards the market of each is broadened, the public is given better service at less cost, and future planning and financing are simplified. Retail dealers are able to carry more complete lines of goods under standardized practices.

The Bureau of Standards was a pioneer in this field. It has rendered highly valuable service to industry as well as to the public. While fully cognizant of this service, industry now desires to carry on this work in its own way. There is some fear that political control might be exercised in the future if these activities should be left to a Government agency. Industry appears willing to undertake the full responsibility of shaping its own standards, and there is no reason why it should not do so.

The Divided Filipinos.

The struggle of the Filipino people over the independence issue appears to be approaching a crisis. Leaders have not been able to agree on acceptance of the Hawes-Cutting act. Rumors of a compromise have been numerous, but the efforts of the peacemakers have not yet been effective. An important rift has developed in the ranks that once were solid for independence. Indications are that the faction insisting upon modification of the independence act has the upper hand.

Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, proffered his resignation as head of the Nacionalista Party because of his quarrel on this issue with Speaker Manuel Roxas and Senator Sergio Osmena. But a caucus of party leaders unanimously rejected his offer to withdraw and reasserted its faith in his leadership. Presumably this will mean the withdrawal of Speaker Roxas and perhaps other leaders who are not in sympathy with Senator Quezon on this vital issue. Steps are being taken to oust all the partisans who are fighting for acceptance of the Hawes-Cutting act in its present form.

Apparently most of the legislators as well as the Filipino people are in favor of accepting the act with reservations. That is a tacit way of disapproving it. No Filipino leader would take a definite stand against the separation of his country from the United States. To do so would be political suicide. But this awakward situation may be overcome by favoring independence on such unreasonable terms that there is no possibility of agreement between Congress and the native legislature. Observers believe that something akin to this attitude will be reflected in the decision of the Philippine legislature.

Mr. Quezon seems to hold the decision largely in his own hands. He is known to be dissatisfied with the law because of the restrictions it lays upon Philippine commerce during the so-called transitional period. Yet the senate president is an ardent supporter of the independence movement. Outright rejection of the Hawes-Cutting measure probably would not reflect his wishes. If the Filipinos are chiefly influenced by Mr. Quezon in making their final decision it is likely to be in the nature of a proposal to compromise with the United States.

It remains to be seen what attitude Congress would take toward a conditional acceptance of the Hawes-Cutting act. But if any substantial changes in the measure are proposed, a cooling off of enthusiasm to cut the islands loose may be expected.

A Word of Caution.

At least one official who is helping to direct the progress of the "new deal" apparently is not being carried away by optimistic reports and upward curling business indicators. Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, in making her report of increased employment, lays emphasis upon the difficulties yet to be overcome and drops a word of caution against unwarranted optimism.

Payrolls increased 10.8 per cent in June as compared with May, bringing the increase since March to 29 per cent. Certainly that is a remarkable gain, especially in view of the fact that employment begins to slacken during June in normal years. But there is also another view to the situation. "We must not allow ourselves," says Secretary Perkins, "to overlook the fact that we are far from out of the woods of this depression." The following paragraph in her statement is significant:

> Although the percentage increase in employment and payrolls has been large, it must be borne in mind that the actual rise in both cases was small as compared with the total number of workers normally employed and the total payroll normally paid out. The number of wage earners on factory payrolls in June of this year was 63 per cent of the average for 1926. Their weekly earnings as revealed by our survey of 17,952 establishments with 3,000,000 employes were less than half as much last month as they were in 1926.

One reason why Secretary Perkins emphasizes this point of view is the tendency for industrial production to increase faster than purchasing power of the working population. The output of goods ready for consumption in the American home, she says, is growing faster than total payrolls. Business is enjoying artificial stimulation as well as normal growth due to the accumulation of demand over the depression years. This fact alone is sufficient to warrant caution.

Prosperity sometimes returns with a rush after a protracted period of hard times, but such a rush always entails extensive adjustments, some of which may be painful. Violent fluctuations are no more desirable in the so-called upward spiral of business than in the descent toward depression.

The Poor Gold Miner.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The one industry that has thrived everywhere in depression, and because of depression, is gold mining. As prices in general declined, and the price of gold remained constant, the profits of mining gold increased greatly. American and Canadian fields, as well as the larger enterprises in South Africa, all felt the spur of declining price levels. The worse the depression became the better the gold-mining business.

But the worm has turned. Gold miners are up against it. Prices of many things are rising rapidly. Gold still is fixed in price. The result is a decline of the profits in gold mining. In Canada and South Africa some adjustment has been made to benefit the gold-mining industry. This is done through raising the "price of gold" in terms of pounds or dollars. But in the United States a gold miner can sell only to one consumer—the United States Government. And he can get only one price—$20.67 an ounce.

The rigidity of that price is not helpful, however, at present. For $20.67 is not what it was four months ago. It will not buy as much labor, as much of almost any commodity. Instead of getting gold certificates for his gold, as hitherto, the gold miner gets ordinary paper money. With no free gold market in America, with no privilege of exporting his gold, the miner finds his product worth substantially more dollars, in theory, but worth the same price in practice. And the dollars he gets do not buy as much.

In this fashion the gold miners suffer while nearly everyone else rejoices in the improvement of prices. Eventually a free gold market may be established, so that the miner can sell his gold for $25 or $30 an ounce, instead of the historic and unrealistic $20.67. But under present regulations the miner of gold is beginning to taste the depression which the rest of us have tasted all too long.

Just Folks.

Afraid.

I am afraid of fear!
So many fall
Ere blows be struck at all.
Terror brings failure near.
And doubting fashions giants huge and rough
Out of mere shadow stuff
Which chill the heart,
Crushing men from the start.

I am afraid of dread!
So many stay
Facing a rugged way.
Fearful to move ahead;
Visioning with alarm
All that may strike to harm;
Dooming themselves to fail
Before foe of ill-wind assail.

Lord, let me run the chance!
Let me not sink
Under sick thoughts I think.
Rather I would advance
Bravely against the doubt;
Eye clear and muscle stout
Out where the fight is made—
To win or lose—unafraid.

Reputation Is Made by Things You Stand For; Character by Things You Fall For

By Robert Quillen

THE most popular absurdity in imaginary history is the picture of a hairy cave man dragging home a dainty and helpless bride.

People who accept it as fact overlook current evidence that the female of a species is often more deadly than the male. If the cave man could kill a tiger, the cave woman could shoulder it and tote it home.

As the cave woman matched the cave man, so the people of any given time or place matched the rulers and the laws that controlled them.

This doesn't mean that the best and the worst were equal, but only that the standards and customs of any age were appropriate to one another and to the times.

The great men and great events of history must be judged by the conditions that produced them, and the conditions were made by the whole people.

Critics of the church tell of its cruelties and torture chambers, its persecution of scientists, its participation in witch hanging, and its support of slavery, child labor and warfare.

But the same logic that condemns the church would condemn men who wear beards. Bearded men tortured heretics and unbelievers; bearded men hanged witches; bearded men kept slaves; ergo, beards made men evil.

But the truth is that the church, like other institutions, is a product of the times. Those who conduct its affairs are men, and the things they do reflect the morals, the standards and the knowledge of current civilization. When the church was cruel, the ordinary man was cruel.

When we condemn the acts of the great men of history, we condemn the era in which they lived. The prince was corrupt when corruption was the fashion.

Public opinion sets the standard of decency, and that standard determines the conduct of high and low. When public opinion approved smuggling, respected citizens became smugglers. And by their acts we judge their times.

It isn't fair to judge America by the bootleggers, hi-jackers and gang rulers, for the people repudiated these and all their works when given opportunity.

But the evils that flourish still because of public inertia and indifference give a fair picture of our civilization, and by them the historian will judge us.

The moral level of a race is not revealed by the virtue it professes but the evil it tolerates.

Political Comment

Beware Secret Police.
New York Times.

Should the Massachusetts Legislature grant the power to combat crime which Attorney General Warner seeks, the probability is that the Supreme Court of the State would hold much of it invalid.

Among the powers sought by Mr. Warner are such unexceptionable grants as the right to form special anticrime agencies, recruited from any rank of citizens, the drafting of all officials and the mobilization of all law-enforcement groups. But his proposal that any of this array of officers should have the right to search anything, from a house to a package, without warrant, and to break in and arrest on suspicion, invades the American concept of personal liberty and the rights guaranteed under the Constitution. When officers of the law are given such authority it is invariably abused, and persecution of the innocent accompanies the search and prosecution of violators of the law. The history of secret police organizations in other countries, notably the agents-provocateurs in Czarist and Soviet Russia, provides a long and shocking demonstration of this fact.

Old and New Ships.
Minneapolis Journal.

Under the provisions of the London treaty, the United States is permitted to acquire 1,186,280 tons. It has 108 ships, built or projected, that would be under age in 1936, and an additional 101 ships would have to be laid down before December 31, 1936, to attain treaty parity with Great Britain. That power has 161 ships built and projected, under age, and 66 additional ships would be permitted. Japan has 183 ships built and projected, under age, and 90 additional ones to be laid down.

Japan will be up to treaty strength in 1936. The United States will not—except through adoption of more of a construction program than is provided in the present plan to build 32 ships.

That which the European governments would like to see is an improvement in business in the United States that would increase the buying power for European products. But they find that, while business and public buying power are increasing, the dollar is falling in terms of European currencies. A revival of business activity in the United States without a change in the gold value of the dollar is what the Europeans wanted, and it is now the reason for the insistence, especially of France, that the dollar be stabilized at a fixed level.

Miss Perkins' Appeal.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Secretary of Labor Perkins has publicly applauded the cotton textile code's inclusion of a proviso forbidding the employment of children under 16. Miss Perkins also expects other forthcoming codes to include similar provisions. However, she does not consider these decidedly notable achievements as a complete victory over child labor. Speaking at the Wellesley College Institute for Social Progress, Miss Perkins said:

"We must bear in mind that such an action covers only the emergency period, which, under the law, does not extend beyond two years, or even less, should President Roosevelt by proclamation declare the emergency has ended. Consequently, the move for ratification of the child labor amendment must go on. This is the time to make permanent, through the amendment, a beneficial change in the standards so as to keep boys and girls out of industry and give them the chance in life to which they are entitled."

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

ROBOTS AND AIRPLANES.

Wiley Post is the first flier to hop the ocean alone and still not have to bother with the details. On his round-the-world-between-breakfast-and-lunch flight he is accompanied by "Mr. X." "Mr. X" is the flying fool of the laboratories, the ace of airplane gadgets.

• • • •

"Mr. X" is the first airplane robot. He does everything on a transatlantic flight except share the sandwiches and sign the oil testimonials.

• • • •

You just "set" the robot for his turn at the wheel and all you have to do is to sit back in the cockpit and wonder whether you can trust him.

• • • •

It gives an aviator a chance to do 100 per cent of the worrying on any long-distance trip instead of sharing it with another human being.

• • • •

If anything goes wrong, he can blame it on "Mr. X" and be safe from a counter argument.

• • • •

No matter whether the mechanical ace gets you into a crash or not he will never annoy you with explanations. In case of trouble it is strictly your accident, and so far as "Mr. X" is concerned you can have it 100 per cent.

• • • •

But science is never satisfied. It is now at work on a plan to send a robot across the ocean in a plane unaccompanied by a flier. This would give the income from the testimonials to the manufacturer.

• • • •

It will be only a step from that to the creation of robot reception committees. Think of the saving this would mean to the big cities in time and annoyance! Another round-the-world robot is sighted on the horizon. Word is flashed to the mayor.

• • • •

The mayor is busy trying to break up a budget hearing at which taxpayers are protesting loudly, so he can keep a pinochle date. He presses a button and a robot-operated sedan speeds to the flying field loaded with mechanical men.

• • • •

(The flier can tell these dummies from the old-fashioned reception committee by the fact they wear no silk hats and are without funny chins.—Editorial note.)

• • • •

The robot welcoming committee takes time out to be recharged and filled with water. It is then carried to the flying field in a leather case by a municipal battery repairman.

• • • •

The robot alights and when the lever marked "A" is turned to the right on the reception committee it delivers an address by the mayor, a band concert, a soprano solo, two 50-cent cigars, a ticket to a $5 banquet, two barrels of ticker tape, half a ton of confetti and the keys to the city.

• • • •

A mechanic shows up with another gadget and introduces it as the press. The press is bound in genuine leather and has all appliances made of chromium plate.

• • • •

You twist a dial on this gadget and it automatically asks the flier what he thinks of America's skyscrapers, how he likes the new beer, whether he got any letters from the wife on the trip, and when he intends to make his next hop.

• • • •

It's all very exciting. Maybe in time there will be robot ticker-tape throwers.

NEWS WHILE FLYING.

Wireless operators on air-liners now pick up news messages while flying at high altitudes which emanate from points thousands of miles from the spot over which the aircraft may be passing. On the afternoon of Derby Day, while the British plane Hannibal was flying along the section of the India air route between Bagdad and Basra, the operator heard the wireless message from England which was flashing round the world the result of the classic horse race which had just been run on Epsom Downs.

On another occasion while an airliner was in flight in Africa its operator succeeded in writing down accurate items of news from a bulletin which was being broadcast from a ground station in Florida.

Gossips Busy, But Johnson Shuns Politics

Whisperers Hint General Has His Eyes Fixed on Presidency.

By Raymond Clapper.

(Copyright, 1933, by United Press.)

It may be put down authoritatively that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson has no future political ambitions.

This is not believed by many persons, especially by the politicians who fix the pace of gossip in Washington.

They have set their whispers afoot. Stories are being spread. Some of them are going to President Roosevelt. They become more insistent as the general prepared a blanket voluntary appeal to every employer in the country and to every housewife to join in making the national recovery act effective. The whisperers recall that this is the way Herbert Hoover started toward the White House.

Superficially, the story is the same. Every newspaper tells about the man Johnson just as in war time every newspaper told about Hoover. Columns are being written describing how Gen. Johnson looks, what he says, his hobbies. His pat lines, such as his prediction that before he gets through he will have so many enemies that "the air will be full of dead cats," are snapped up and widely quoted. It was that way with Food Administrator Hoover. He was not such a spicy and fascinating personality as Johnson, but his very position kept the spotlight on him as an individual.

Has Same Contacts.

Then there is the same sort of direct contact with the individual citizens. Just as Hoover reached out to every housewife, so Johnson is about to reach out under his blanket code drive to almost every person. If he succeeds he will be the man who got people back to work, raised their pay, who saved the country from ruin.

His activities draw more newspaper space than those of President Roosevelt at the moment. That alone is enough to cause knives to be sharpened for him among the suspiciously minded.

Yet President Roosevelt and those who know Johnson intimately know that a political career is furthest from his thought. That is where he differs from Hoover. Just when the Presidential bee bit Hoover is not known generally. But it was early. Long before the 1920 Presidential campaign opened he was setting up his organization. He kept at it for ten years and finally reached the White House.

Johnson has not encouraged the personal publicity such as developed around Hoover in the early days. Food administration literature bore the Hoover facsimile. His pictures were plastered over the country. Johnson's name rarely appears in NIRA literature. Publicity releases do not mention him unless he is issuing a statement under his name. The propaganda posters now being prepared do not carry his name.

He's Just Uninterested.

That is a reflection of Johnson's lack of interest in plugging himself. There is no particular modesty about him. He is not deliberately making a big show of avoiding publicity. There are none of those tricks of what might be called inverted publicity which Greta Garbo has used with such success. It is just that Johnson isn't interested. He regards his job as that of a soldier. He was detailed to do this task. He takes tremendous personal pride in trying to do a good job. That is as far ahead as he sees.

His intimates say he does not regard himself as adapted temperamentally to politics. He dislikes the game, the pulling, hauling, compromising, bootlicking and intriguing that go with it. He likes Army methods better. His loyalty to his chief is that of a soldier. If he had political ambitions he would consider himself disloyal to permit himself to think of them.

Those who have observed Johnson at close range are convinced that if ever a man moved into the spotlight of Washington free from political aspirations it is this hard-headed, outspoken top sergeant of the new deal.

Monopoly Charged In $64,000,000 Suit

Talking Picture Producer Asserts Antitrust Law Violated.

New York, July 20 (AP).—Lewis Landes, an attorney, today filed suit in Federal court for more than $64,000,000, triple damages under the Sherman and Clayton antitrust laws, for Vocafilm Corporation of America, against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Western Electric Co., and Electrical Research Products Co., Inc.

The complaint alleged that the defendant companies acted in concert as a monopoly for the restraint of trade and that as a result the plaintiff corporation was virtually put out of business.

Vocafilm, the complaint said, was engaged in the manufacture of talking pictures and sound reproduction apparatus and the production of photoplays. It charged that the defendants, through their association with large motion picture producing companies, provided for the release of pictures by them only to exhibitors using sound production apparatus produced or controlled by the defendants.

Foster Honored By Endeavorers

International Convention Pays Tribute to Dead Song Leader.

Recalling the many years Percy S. Foster conducted the music at their Nation-wide gatherings, the thirty-fourth International Christian Endeavor convention, recently concluded at Milwaukee, Wis., adopted a resolution honoring the musician.

The resolution read, "The death of Mr. Percy S. Foster during the year leaves Christian Endeavor without one of her most gifted leaders of sacred songs, one whose services and chivalrous personality will ever be remembered by all Endeavorers."

The Percy S. Foster memorial committee, under the direction of Miss Monette Hallam, general chairman, 1341 Fairmont street northwest, is arranging for two memorials. One is to be located in the National Baptist Memorial Church here and the other in the headquarters building in Boston. Friends of Mr. Foster are invited to share in the tribute.

Leader of Four Men Identified In Factor Case

Six Persons Also Captured as Suspects in August Luer's Kidnaping.

Elkhorn, Wis., July 20 (AP).—Chicago detectives today identified the leader of four men held here on a charge of carrying weapons as Roger Touhy, Chicago gangster, suspected by Chicago police of complicity in the John Factor kidnaping case.

His companions were identified as Ed McFadden, said by Chicago police to have a record as a slot machine distributor; Gus Schafer, who served time in California and Minnesota prisons and wanted by Federal authorities, and William Sharkey, wanted for questioning in connection with the slaying of Mat Kolb in a roadhouse near Chicago.

Officers said all admitted their identity, but otherwise were uncommunicative.

Depend on Lawyers.

Touhy said he would not talk until he had an opportunity to confer with Scott Stewart, Chicago lawyer.

Three Federal officers from Chicago wanted to take the prisoners to Chicago, but all said they would oppose extradition.

The four men were picked up by Elkhorn traffic officers after their large sedan had knocked down a telephone pole.

In their car officers found three pistols, a rifle, four feet of sash cord and about a dozen cloth pads. One man escaped.

Charged here with carrying concealed weapons, the men were bound over to county court under bond of $500 each.

Held in Luer Kidnaping.

(Associated Press.)

The Government yesterday substituted action for verbal blasts against kidnaping by participating in raids that resulted in the arrest of six persons near Madison, Ill.

The six were wanted for questioning in connection with the kidnaping of August Luer, an Alton, Ill., banker, who was freed by his captors after being held for several days. Attorney General Cummings said Percy M. Fitzgerald, arrested Wednesday, had confessed he took part in Luer's abduction.

Those arrested near Madison were announced as Randall E. Norvell, Norma Vaughn, Pearl Loge, Paul Hook, Mike Michiala and Mrs. Mike Michiala.

The department said its agents had found the hideout of the gang in the cellar where Luer had been held. The criminals had filled the cellar with dirt to conceal its location, but agents of the department removed the dirt and identified the place, it was added.

Senators Open Probe.

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—With a promise to "stamp racketeering out of America," the Federal Government today embarked on a crusade against crime, particularly against kidnaping.

Three members of a United States Senate subcommittee were revealed to have opened inquiries with the object of placing kidnaping terrorism against business and racketeering in general within the reach of the Government's fist.

Louis Murphy (Democrat), Iowa, opened the investigation in Chicago, working closely with Melvin Purvis, chief of the United States Bureau of Investigation here.

He called District Attorney Dwight Green, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, Chief of Detectives William H. Schoemaker, and a dozen others into conference. Murphy also said he wanted information from several crime reporters on Chicago newspapers, who he said probably could give as much evidence against racketeers as could heads of police bodies.

Similar inquiries have been undertaken in Detroit by Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, and in New York City by Senator Copeland, of New York.

Italy Seizes Nine In Betrayal Plot

Former Deputy, Daughters Nabbed After Officer Is Executed.

Rome, July 20 (AP).—An alleged espionage band has been broken up with the arrest by the secret police of nine persons, reported to include the former Socialist deputy, Umberto Bianchi, and four government employes.

The arrests were made two weeks ago and revealed today. They came after a long investigation and the execution two months ago of Warrant Officer Ugo Travaglia, employed in the navy ministry and convicted of a similar offense.

The band was alleged to have sold military plans to a strong foreign power.

The arrested persons, in addition to Bianchi, are reported to be his two grown daughters, both unmarried, two employes of the air ministry and two private chauffeurs.

The police are seeking also two foreigners last reported to be using German names believed to be aliases.

Chaco War Halts Peace Pact Talk

Geneva, July 20 (U.P.).—Paraguay informed the League of Nations Chaco committee today that she will not start arbitration negotiations with Bolivia here until hostilities between the two countries cease in the Gran Chaco territory.

Paraguay previously had agreed to simultaneous negotiations for an armistice and an arbitral accord, and the reversal was a shock to the league.

Costa du Rels, Bolivian delegate, said that his country "would never agree to halt hostilities until an arbitration agreement had been concluded."

League officials said the situation was "bad." Paraguay's decision may postpone indefinitely the sending of a league commission to the Chaco.

Five Americans Held in Spain Freed on Bail

Prime Minister Yields to Demand by American Envoy at Madrid.

Palma, Mallorga, July 20 (AP).—Five Americans, who had been held in jail here for six weeks after allegedly assaulting a civil guard, were released under bail today on instructions from Prime Minister Manuel Azana in Madrid.

Diplomatic representations in behalf of the Americans had been made by officials in Washington, Claude G. Bowers, the United States Ambassador in Madrid, and Claude Dawson, American Consul General at Barcelona, Spain.

Following instructions from Madrid that the Americans be granted bail, Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood, of Springfield, Mass., and Rutherford Fullerton, of Columbus, Ohio, posted the required sum of 1,800 pesetas (approximately $1,200) and left the jail.

Later, the other three—Mr. Lockwood, Edmund W. Blodgett, of Stamford, Conn., and Roderick F. Mead, of New York City—were released on their own recognizance.

Dawson communicated with Ambassador Bowers in Madrid, advising him that the latter three had been released without posting bail, following the decision of a special judge that the 20,000 pesetas previously posted by Fullerton and Mrs. Lockwood would suffice for all five.

Wheat Agreement Progress Reported

Acreage Reduction Plan Pleases But Tariffs Cause Wrangle.

London, July 20 (AP).—Representatives of wheat producing and importing countries emerged from a two-hour effort to reach an agreement on acreage reduction late today with announcement that "progress has been made."

Agreement was reached on a preamble which expresses the sympathy of importing countries with the proposed restriction scheme. Decision also was reached on the first article of a draft which provided that importing countries would not "encourage extension of sown acreage."

A fight developed, however, on that part of the proposed agreement which concerned tariffs.

The importing delegates wanted the article left at the mere statement that tariffs would "naturally" fall as the price of wheat increased. The exporters were insisting at adjournment that the article contain a specific promise of specific reductions in tariffs as soon as an agreed price was reached.

The meeting will be resumed tomorrow with the delegates hoping for the completion of an acceptable draft.

While the general and his highest ranking followers were lunching with the President, the junior officers were entertained at the Carlton by the Overseas Writers Club, when Mr. Herbert Corey, president of the club, presided.

Italian Ambassador Entertains With Tea.

Later in the afternoon yesterday, after Gen. Balbo had paid return calls to members of the Cabinet who greeted him at Bolling Field yesterday morning, the general went to the Italian Embassy, where the Ambassador of Italy entertained several hundred guests from high official, diplomatic and residential circles, at a reception and tea to meet Gen. Balbo and his officers.

Hundreds of bystanders thronged the streets near the embassy to watch the company assemble, and to see Gen. Balbo arrive and leave in his automobile with police escort.

The ambassador and Gen. Balbo, the latter in white uniform with a wide sash of bright blue, and decorations, received the guests in the large drawing room, which was decorated with summer flowers.

Signora Sbernadori, wife of the Air Attache of the Embassy, acting hostess for the ambassador, wore a gown of black and white printed chiffon with ruffled shoulders of red and black chiffon. With the costume she wore a large black hat trimmed with a cluster of red flowers.

Military uniforms predominated among the men, as many of the guests were invited from Army and Navy circles. Guests gathered in the patio and the galleries surrounding it, and later in the afternoon Gen. Balbo, with the ambassador, wandered informally among them, stopping to chat with various groups.

Dinner Dance Is Given At Army and Navy Club.

The busy day for Gen. Balbo and his officers was climaxed last evening when they were entertained at a dinner dance at the Army and Navy Country Club by the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy. About 500 guests were invited to attend the reception and dinner and to remain for the dancing on the roof garden of the club overlooking Washington.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Claude A. Swanson were present, and the Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. Harry H. Woodring, acted for the Secretary of War, who, with Mrs. Dern, is on his way to the West Coast. Members of the Cabinet, high-ranking Army and Navy officials and members of the Italian Embassy staff mingled with the bevy of girls invited as partners for the 56 young officers who accompanied Gen. Balbo. The Acting Secretary of State, Mr. William Phillips; the Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings and the Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley were among those in the gay gathering, as were the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Harold Ickes; the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, and the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins.

Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard were among the members from the upper house of Congress, and Representative and Mrs. Fred A. Britten, Representative and Mrs. John J. McSwain, and Representative and Mrs. Carl Vinson from the lower house.

Branches of Service Represented by Heads.

The Chief of Staff of the Army, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William H. Stanley represented the branches of the service, while other officials present were the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, and their daughter, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, with the young daughter of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Lawrence W. Robert, Miss Louisa Robert. Mlle. Nella Veverka, daughter of the Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Veverka, chatted in French and Italian with the young officers and members of the embassy staff, moved among the guests translating and introducing their fellow countrymen.

Signora Sbernadori, wife of the Air Attache of the Italian Embassy, and hostess for the ambassador, in the absence of the senior ladies of the embassy staff, also introduced the visitors to various groups.

Special Menu For Child of 2 Unnecessary

If Food Is Simple, Smaller Portion at Midday Solves Problem.

If the foods usually served the family are simple and wholesome, there is no reason why the main meal of the day can not be adapted to the 2-year-old. If the family dinner is in the evening it may be best to give the child his portion at midday, or at least his share of the heartiest or protein dish—meat, chicken, eggs, fish, or whatever it is.

The youngest children are naturally given the smallest portions, because their capacity is smallest. It is very discouraging to a little child to have too large a serving placed before him, and then to be told he must clear his plate. The latter rule is a good one, provided it is made possible for him to do so.

As a child grows and needs more food, portions are increased accordingly. The child in the picture, who is six years old, is having a generous share of the family dinner, which consists of broiled meat ball, buttered string beans, baked potato, whole wheat bread and butter, lettuce, milk and baked apple. Her 12-year-old brother has a tremendous appetite because of all the energy he expands on sports and boys' games. He is given the biggest potato on the serving dish, the largest meat ball, or two medium-sized ones, and everything else in proportion. He may even pass his plate for more, and if he does, his mother will be wise to remember that he probably needs more food at this age than his father.

There is such a wide list of foods which are perfectly suitable for children that is it not at all difficult to plan one menu for all, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. If some of the adults in the family insist on richer, more highly seasoned food than the children should have, it is still not necessary to prepare two sets of food. In such cases, high seasonings, extra fat, or more sugar may be added after portions have been taken out for the children. Modifications of this kind easily can be made in many meat dishes, in meat and vegetable stews, and in vegetable and dessert cookery. Such a simple practice as omitting rich sauces or substituting fruit for rich desserts is often the only necessary adjustment in the family menu.

World's worst job ended by KLEENEX

Illustration and text copr. 1933, Kleenex Co.

MADAM, if you like to wash dirty handkerchiefs, don't read this advertisement. We are going to tell you how to get rid of this disagreeable job. We are going to tell you about Kleenex, a handkerchief to use and destroy.

Softest yet strongest

This disposable handkerchief, Kleenex, is made of the softest, yet strongest of tissues. It is many times more absorbent than cotton or linen, is always gentle and soothing. Kleenex is destroyed instantly after using.

The price of a big, generous package of Kleenex is about that of one inexpensive handkerchief. Thus the use of Kleenex is a real economy. Since the cost is so low, you need use each tissue but once. This means no self-infection from soiled handkerchiefs. No storing damp handkerchiefs in laundry bags, to scatter germs through clothing.

Kleenex is kept clean, hygienic, even during use, by the patented self-dispensing, pull-out box. Your hand never touches the box to contaminate or mess up the other sheets. You never take out more than the required amount—an assurance of economy!

Large size Kleenex is especially recommended for use with cosmetics. Three times usual size, it is also sufficient for guest towels, dusting, etc. Kleenex, in both sizes and in rolls, is sold at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

Bargain Hunters Are Tempted by Items Ranging From Purses to Parasols

Treasure Box, 200 Years Old, Carries a Tale

Spanish Chest, Now on Sale Here, Specially Built to Stand Off Years.

By the Meanderer.

From a hacienda in the mountains of Luzon, in the Philippines, to an antique shop on Massachusetts avenue comes an old Spanish heirloom.

Two hundred years ago a master cabinetmaker strove night and day to fill the order of a nobleman.

"I must have a treasure chest," the grandee told the craftsman. "Make it strong, man. Build it to withstand the prying hands of thieves, to brave the siege of years."

So night and day the craftsman strove. With his cherished tools he carved a deep and rich design. With bands of iron he bound the panels. With heavy hinges he fastened the top.

"Here," he said to the nobleman, "my task is done."

Two hundred years have passed. Grandee and craftsman alike are gone from the minds of men. The chest alone remains.

New Style Compacts.

There'll be a rainbow 'round your compact if you follow the latest style note struck by this important accessory. A famous beauty expert has designed a number of these, which to our way of thinking are the daintiest yet. They come in several pastel shades with delicately tinted rainbows encircling the lid. Single: $1.00, double: $1.50.

The first commandment in the fashion code is: Always dress to suit the occasion. This necessitates milady's strict attention to each detail of her costume, be it ever so large, or ever so small. The telltale items in any outfit are the gloves. Remember, shoppers, a watchful eye in this direction will make or break your style record. Appropriate dressy gloves are to be had in abundance, but the purely sport type require most careful selection. The Meanderer found the ideal pair for golf or driving. They are a combination of cord mesh and pigskin. Here's a dual display of durability and cooling comfort.

Glazed Linen Bags.

Linen is up to tricks again. At the beginning of the season it very modestly made its entree in plain fabric bags. Now it's answering a curtain call in glazed glory. The sheeny finish particularly adapts it to everyday wear, due to its facile cleansing qualities. A soap and water application removes the dirt and restores the shine. With tailored frocks it agreeably wears a tailored look. With afternoon dresses it simply excels. For the all-day, all-time bag, consider the glazed linen.

A demure little girl in a fluffy little frock underneath a ruffled parsol. Isn't that a picture for a painter? You furnish the little girl, suggest a large department store, and we'll do the rest. You'll have a living, breathing walking, talking picture in your home. There are frocks galore to choose from — white ones with dotted swiss ruffles in red, blue, green, or yellow, and parasols to match. The set, $1.49.

Hooked rugs are very stubborn. They refuse to be eclipsed. Because they were used in Grandmother's day they insist on being used now. All right, hooked rugs, the Meanderer admires your spirit. Besides, you're perfectly correct. Colonial furniture needs your touch, your splash of color. We'll insist on it! Lovely blue, green and yellow flowered rugs with light walnut furniture — perfect! A charming group of hooked rugs are priced amazingly low in a G Street shop. Marvelous opportunity, this.

The Meanderer's eye grew large. How, she marveled, could any freezer be so small, cost so little, and produce so much? The object of her gaze sat unconcerned. It was an ice-cream freezer of Lilliputian size with a 2-quart capacity. Although using practically no ice at all, it freezes your favorite mixture before you can say "Jack Robinson." Its galvanized metal composition is guaranteed not to rust. Fifty-nine cents is the price.

For Men Only.

Shopper, will you give your husband a message from the Meanderer? Tell him that a small lot of pre-shrunk suits are going to be on sale for $3.95 today at a downtown store. We've seen them, felt them, and all but tried them on, so we know they're bargains!

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column in The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 27, or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Potato Salad.

1 cup diced cooked potatoes
1 hard cooked egg, diced
1-3 cup diced cucumbers
¼ cup diced celery
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped pimento.
1-3 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1-3 cup salad dressing

Mix and chill ingredients and serve on lettuce leaves.

One Day Camp Vacations in Rock Creek Park Thrill Youngsters

Boys and Girls Desert Hot City Streets to Swim and Play.

"Bill-e! Bill-eee! Bill-eeee!" called Mrs. Berlinger.

"Here's milk!"

Billie, 6, hiked a wet, limp, pair of faded pink rompers around his little middle and grabbed for the cup. The rompers were wet and limp, because they had been serving as a bathing suit.

Mrs. Berlinger looked around for the rest of her brood.

"Richard! Helen! Ra-alp! Lu-unch!"

"It's kinda hard knowing what they're doing every minute," she explained. "They're having such a good time."

Mrs. Berlinger explained that both she and her youngsters were crazy about Camp Good Will. "But," she added, a little of the happiness dying from her face, "it's kinda too bad it's only for today. And the hot weather lasting so long, too!"

Katherine McCallum, camp director, came up. Blue-smocked, fresh-faced, she put in an eager word.

"You know we'd like to have you for two weeks, Mrs. Berlinger. But the way things are—" she shrugged her shoulders with a weary little gesture.

"I know, I know," said the mother, "but I couldn't help thinkin' how nice it would be, 'specially for Billie after his cold—"

250 to 300 Children a Day.

Miss McCallum feels that the day-by-day camps that have been loaned by the Associated Charities Council of Social Agencies and the District playgrounds for the summer are filling a great need. But she realizes that they are operating under a heavy handicap.

"We're open every week day from 10 to 7," she explained. "We can take care of about 250 to 300 children a day, but of course we don't get that many. Some days we have no more than 50. It is almost impossible to get the children transported. We have no funds for bus hire, and although a few private car owners have been very generous, our big problem is getting the children out here."

The camp, which is built on the top of a wooded knoll in Rock Creek Park has been operated by the Associated Charities until this year. Lack of money closed them, until Mrs. Mary Edith Coulson, secretary of the recreation committee of the council, arranged to "borrow" them for the summer. Each day all the youngsters for whom transportation can be arranged are brought to the camp from various settlement houses and organizations throughout the city. The children are supposed to bring their own lunches, although in many cases the sponsoring agency is forced to draw on its meager funds lest Mary or Johnnie go hungry.

Lunches Provided.

A slice of bread without butter, or a single withered frankfurter somehow doesn't seem to satisfy the hunger of a little boy who has spent the morning swimming and running and playing bull in the ring. Several local dairies are supplying free milk, and Mrs. Coulson is making an effort to obtain through bakeries and large food stores an auxiliary supply of bread and crackers, fresh fruit and salad vegetables.

With literally thousands of children whose only place for play is the hot dirty sidewalk in front of a crowded dwelling or a city playground too far away to reach on foot, a single day in camp is all that each child receives.

Among the organizations using the camp are Friendship House, which sends both its children and its mother's club; Christ Child Society, Northeast Boys Club and the District playgrounds. Camp Pleasant at Blue Plains is operated on the same plan for colored children.

"If we could solve the transportation problem," said Mrs. Coulson, "we could manage to give each child a day in camp every week. We have hated to ask for contributions to operate a bus line, but $10 a day would solve our problem."

"Bill—ee! Bill—eee! Bill—eeee!" called Mrs. Berlinger. "Come on, we gotta go home, now."

"Aw, gee!"

Cool Oxford Cures Heat

One of Most Masculine Woven Shirt Materials Is Still the Most Popular With Men; Athletes Like It.

By Amos Parrish.

New York, July 20.—Oxford continues to be a summer shirt favorite—as it has been for more years than most men can remember. For the simple reason that Oxford—the most masculine of woven shirt material—is also one of the coolest, most porous and most moisture-absorbing.

Walter Hagen, as pernickety in his dress as in his golf, wears this type of shirt to keep cool in crucial putting moments.

Tennismen Bill Tilden, Ellsworth Vines and Rene Cochet are given much the same way . . . especially grateful to Oxford when their matches run to extra sets.

And, of course, another winning feature of Oxford shirts is their easy, comfortable cut. They're outdoor as well as indoor shirts. Which is why many of them have a breast pocket for cigarette or tee carrying duty.

Medium Length Points.

The Oxford you see about eight times out of ten is a collar-attached model with medium length points. The trend in colllar-attached shirts is toward shorter points in recent years.

The button-down collar is another come-back feature in these shirts . . . especially well adapted to them. That's the Oxford type you see covering the shoulder-brawn of National Open-Golfer Johnny Goodman, Primo Carnera—"the devastating dinosaur" — and polomen Tommy Hitchcock and Winston Guest.

As usual with shirts, it's white that leads the field . . . blue next. And a great many of them are patternless. Of course, the current trend toward greater variety and color and pattern in men's wear is leaving its mark on their Oxford shirts. It accounts for light stripes on dark grounds, and fine shirt stripings in one or two tone effects—the latter especially smart.

And with small, neat hounds' tooth checks as popular as they are in suits and ties, it's not strange to see them breaking out in Oxford shirts.

Mixed Colorings New.

There's one idea that is certain to be more popular—the "mixed colorings" which you'll see for the first time in many Oxford shirts this summer. The effect is produced by twisting white yarn with yarns of other colors such as blue, tan, green—before they are woven into the shirt cloth. The result is a distinctive-looking fabric that has tickled the tastes of such well dressers as Douglas Fairbanks and Graham McNamee.

With all these newer-patterned color-combining shirt materials coming up, your problem is to know which ones are best to wear with the suits or the ties you already have. For just this reason, we've prepared a leaflet. It's called "Best Shirts to Choose for Wear With My Suits and Ties."

Library Gets Book Back After 37 Years of Hiding

Thirty-seven years ago the Washington City Free Library received a novel, "His Vanished Star," by Charles Craddock. Its existence as a circulating volume was doomed to be short lived, for, after 10 trips to the homes of Washington readers, it sank into complete oblivion.

Since that time the Washington City Free Library has become the vast public library we have today, with its various branches of extended service.

Perhaps some reader had a twinge of conscience, or cleaned up his attic. In any event, "His Vanished Star" reappeared from its state of eclipse on Friday afternoon, and has joined its fellows on the library shelves. It was found in a box in which readers dropped the books after the library had closed, so no one knows whom the last reader may have been.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

IF July 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:40 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 4:20 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., and from 8:45 p. m. to 9:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:40 a. m. and from 10 p. m. to 10:50 p. m.

Children will tend to be fearful on this day; it will be wise to protect the little ones from any situation that might strike them with terror. Those people under great nervous strain will quite possibly find this a rather trying day. Business will probably be dull, with greater activity towards the close of day.

The child born on this July 21 will tend to be a sulky, whiny little one and very difficult to please. He will not get along well with his playmates at school but will probably stand in well with his teachers because of his good mind. Honor and recognition will mean a great deal to him; good grades will be his goal.

If July 21 is the date of your birth, you are perhaps the type of person who follows the line of least resistance. You are content as long as you get by and if you must lean rather heavily on someone else, you do not let that trouble you too much. You are not a particularly moral person. Easy going, unhurried and unworried, you idle away much of your time. You lack the spark quite possibly that would set you off to the accomplishment of great things. You are extremely lucky; when things seem blackest for you, a silver-lined cloud invariably comes your way. Seek to develop energy and enthusiasm over some phase of life and you will succeed. More likely than not, you are inclined to doubt the existence of a Supreme, Governing Power; at best, you are only luke-warm in your belief in God.

Born on July 21, you have a great deal of perception and you are good at sizing up people. You are somewhat interested in the occult and it is possible that you may delve deeply into some phase of this subject. You are not a very loyal person; probably you will have many acquaintances and very few friends. Most of the latter will be of the opposite sex. Motherhood seems to bring about great changes in the lives of the women born on this date; they seem to take a new lease on life. The men do not make inspired fathers.

Forewarning.

By Katherine Smith.

I always mean it when I say
I love you very dearly
And all the vows I make to you
Are given most sincerely.

But be prepared, my dear, because
Some day I'll bring you sorrow;
This fickle heart of mine will love
Somebody else tomorrow.

Ready-to-Serve Meats Save Summer Menus

On days when the mercury in the thermometer mounts higher and higher and threatens to push itself out at the top, cool foods which require little or no preparation are always given a hearty welcome.

No hostess need worry and fret over a hot fire these days when there are so many cold meats which may be arranged so attractively. Here is a menu which may be prepared in a very few minutes. It is suggested by Inez S. Willson, home economist:

Menu.

Mixed Grill with Cold Tongue, Corned Beef and Ham
Served with Spanish Sauce
Buttered Asparague Tips
Celery Radishes
Bread and Butter
Fresh Berries with Cream
Iced Tea

For this menu, the Spanish sauce may be prepared in the cool of the morning and set in the refrigerator to chill. Then when you are ready to serve it, it will be cool, yet it lends that spicy taste which everyone likes.

There are any number of cold meats from which to choose. Any one of the many varieties of ready-to-eat sausage may be used equally well in the above menu, or they may be arranged with a salad on individual plates.

Luncheon Plate.

Slices of ready-to-serve sausage
Olives
Radishes
Tomato
Cottage cheese
Potato salad
Bread and butter sandwiches

Select a red, ripe and well-rounded tomato and cut out the core. Fill with cottage cheese and sprinkle with a dash of paprika. Place the stuffed tomato in the center of the plate. With the crisp celery hearts, divide the plate into three sections for sausage slices, potato salad, and radishes and olives. Serve with bread and butter sandwiches.

Curtains for the Bird.

There are all sorts of tricks in decorative bird cages. One of the newest is a cage of white wire with scalloped tin cut like curtains draped back at each corner.

No Spare Tire For Feminine Golf Addicts

Ancient Scottish Game Keeps Waistline Slim and Youthful.

Remember the miniature golf courses that sprung up, overnight, it seemed, and dotted the country from coast to coast? They're gone now. Here and there one sees remnants, tiny reminders of hoped-for grandeur and lasting success. But happily that much-maligned but amusing character, the "golf widow," is gone, too. For the miniature golf fad started the Nation putting and more and more women became interested in the sport and followed through.

It is so fashionable to golf. And the game is not very strenuous. Get a set of golf clubs and start the game. You may not be able to join "him" on the nineteenth hole, nor make the fourth in the Sweet Adeline quartet, but you will be able to understand him when he talks over his game and congratulate or encourage.

Golf clothes are so nearly the accepted sport costume for country clubs that they must be attractive in cut, color and perfect in fit. They can be as simple as you please. That's one secret of smartness, you know. A monogram on sweater adds a feminine touch. Hats must be fetching and becoming, too, but they can be simple, crushable affairs. Light pastel costumes make one feel cool and look refreshing. Don't wear tight clothes or they will constrict circulation and make free movement impossible. This, of course, does not mean that they should be too large for you.

Golf Grand for Waistline.

Stop a moment and note what grand things golf does for the waistline, arms, shoulders and legs. The bending and trunk twisting exercise soon evict the spare tire—no such undesirable settlers when one golfs.

Keep a make-up kit in your locker for the alluring finishing touches that are so important, whether in drawing room or on the green. A bit of cleansing cream or, for the summer, a liquid cleanser, quick patting with skin tonic, or a quick ice rub, then cream rouge deftly blended, then powder patted on generously, lashes and brows brushed free of powder, lip paste neatly applied, a touch of hand lotion or cream to the hands, nail whitener to nail tips (they will need it), and you should be your alluring self, bragging of your score if it was a good one, and not discouraged if you failed to do it in par, for it's all worth it for the game's sake.

$73,482,478 Authorized for Road Program

Ickes Approves Work in 7 States Pending Action on Other Projects.

(Associated Press.)

The public works administrator yesterday approved plans for spending $73,482,478 on roads in seven States preliminary to early consideration of non-Federal construction projects expected to aggregate almost $1,500,000,000.

Secretary Ickes, the public works administrator, said he had completed drafting recommendations for appointment of regional and State advisers to handle the public works advances to States and municipalities and was ready to submit them to President Roosevelt for final approval.

The bulk of the public works program, for which almost half of the $3,300,000,000 fund has been set aside to finance local governmental construction, has been held up pending the appointment of the regional advisers.

Selections Expected Soon.

President Roosevelt probably will approve the selections within a day or two, opening the way for the expected flood of applications.

The road plan approvals yesterday brought up to about $240,000,000 the portion of the $400,000,000 allocated to such construction which has been passed upon by the Public Works Administration and the Bureau of Public Roads.

Approval previously had been given to plans of 24 States for spending approximately $165,000,000.

The States which obtained action yesterday were Iowa, Texas, Nebraska, Missouri, Tennessee, Kansas and New Mexico.

Meanwhile the conflict within President Roosevelt's Cabinet over the proposal to include Army construction in the public works program simmered down with word in official quarters that the Chief Executive opposed the estimates submitted by the War Department.

Army Projects Undecided.

Secretary Dern asked the Public Works Board a few days ago to suspend consideration of the Army estimates in order to forestall adverse action, but indicated later he would continue his effort to get them.

Some members of the board felt the Army construction program did not qualify under the rules for administering the public works fund. Officials said yesterday President Roosevelt was backing up the board and was not sympathetic to the big program offered by the War Department. It was believed he might approve a modified program.

Ickes withheld the names of the people he will recommend to serve as regional administrators and State advisers pending President Roosevelt's approval of the appointments. He has selected candidates for the 10 regional posts and the 48 State boards to be composed of three members each.

The Cabinet member said he expected the non-Federal program would include a number of applications for municipal power plants. Several are on the way, he added, including an application for enlarging the plant at Roanoke, Va.

City Power Plants Eligible.

In some cases, the administrator continued, the municipal power plants undoubtedly will compete with private companies, but that will not interfere with their approval and the projects will be considered on their merits.

Under the road plans approved, each State with the exception of Iowa proposes to spend 50 per cent of its allotment on the Federal aid highway system, 25 per cent on extensions through municipalities and 25 per cent on secondary roads. Iowa's division is 50 per cent, 28 per cent and 22 per cent, respectively.

The States, their quotas, and the number of counties in which the money will be spent follow:

Iowa, $10,055,660, all 99 counties; Texas, $24,244,024, all 254 counties; Kansas, $10,089,604, 79 of 105 counties; Nebraska, $7,828,961, 76 of the 93 counties; New Mexico, $5,792,935, all 31 counties; Mississippi, $6,978,675, 62 of the 82 counties; Tennessee, $8,492,619, 72 of the 95 counties.

Winchester to Hear Peery on Saturday

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 20.—George C. Peery, one of the three candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor of Virginia, will bring his fight into northern Virginia Saturday when he is scheduled to deliver addresses both here and at Berryville.

He will be the second Democratic gubernatorial candidate to invade Winchester and Frederick and Clarke County, which political observers claim is overwhelming for him. Joseph T. Deal, the other candidate visiting Winchester, spoke to hardly more than a score of persons here a month ago. W. Worth Smith, of Louisa, the third candidate, has not been to Winchester.

Peery speaks at Berryville Monday morning at 10 o'clock and will motor here that afternoon for an address at 3 o'clock.

Virginia Silk Mills On 8-Hour Day Basis

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., July 20.—In compliance with the provisions of the industrial recovery act, the Stehli silk mill, of near Waynesboro, has gone on an 8-hour-day basis, working three shifts during the 24 hours, and increasing the number of its employes about 80, according to A. M. Shenk, general superintendent.

Other plants of this concern, including one at Harisonburg, have adopted the same plan, it was stated. With the addition of 80 employes, the Waynesboro plant is now operating at capacity with 400 men and women at work.

Have you ever seen the above blank form? Thousands of Government employes in Washington have not, but they know of its existence. With abolition of the Efficiency Bureau the Classification Division, C. S. C., will have the honor of receiving these "OGPU" reports.

JUST why Washington's Federal employes should ever have been singled out for this scheme of "efficiency rating" is more than the finite mind of your present writer can grasp. Hats off to the Democrats when they junked the Efficiency Bureau after its eight years of efficiency tabulating.

But the Graphic Rating Scale still exists, although personnel officers recently met with the idea of revising it. The matter still hangs fire. The explanation is made that this iniquitous-appearing scale was the best possible method of arriving at an employe's efficiency status. Until eight years ago there was no such system and until eight years ago we did not have suicides and employes dying of worry from the grief these scales have caused.

Elsewhere in The Washington Post today you can read where Secretary Ickes has restored, at least for the time being, 74 scientists in the Geological Survey, Interior Department. These men are, as a class, advanced in years and in service. They are men of science, supposedly above these inhuman, heartless changes wrought because someone wants a job. The Federal Diary recently made a plea for scientists, pointing out that menial jobs, if they could obtain even them outside, were not their line. Their hearts and souls breathe the spirit of their life work.

SECRETARY ICKES has seen the mistake of allowing these 74 men to be dumped into the street and has ordered them to work. Get out the scrapbook and you will find Interior has had several real casualties because of the dismissals based on "efficiency ratings." "One would think you are almost human, Mr. Secretary," observed a correspondent at yesterday's press conference, referring to the humane element as it finally seeps into governmental consideration for its personnel.

The greatest objection the Federal Diary holds against this obnoxious graphic rating scale is to the insidious methods that can (and they say do) crawl into its preparation. Half a dozen hands may weigh the fate of a man or woman on the strength of his "rating." We know of a bureau that has been ordered to keep down its bureau rating to 84. The highly efficient personnel must suffer that the lower rates may be raised to save the latter class.

This thing of expressing any employe's worth in English on the strength of someone's opinion and then in the right-hand column of translating it into actual Arabic figures down to minute fractions is hair raising in its accomplishment.

Abolition of this so-called efficiency rating is Article No. 2 in the Federal Diary Code for Federal Employes, published yesterday.

Isaac Gans, honorary member of Equality Walter Reed Post, presented the post with a portrait of himself.

A telegram from Gen. Amos A. Fries, patriotic instructor of the post, urging the post to protest against recognition of Russia, was read.

Speakers were James Van Zandt, senior vice commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Charles Weickhardt, national liaison officer; James A. Sheehan, national rehabilitation officer; George E. Ijams, assistant administrator of the Veterans Administration; Col. C. W. How to Get Well

Our Enemy, the Rat.

THE rat is somewhat of a menace to health under the best circumstances and occasionally this pestiferous and destructive, yet sagacious and wise, enemy of human society becomes a health menace of the first consequence.

Plague to us does not mean much. But there are regions where the plague menace surpasses all others. Plague is spread by a kind of flea that is happiest when it is on rats.

In addition to plague, rats are responsible for rat bite disease, a kind of mange, some of the paratyphoid fevers, and food poisonings related thereto. It is thought they help to spread foot and mouth disease. They are largely responsible for spreading some of the worms that are parasitic to man. They are so sagacious that man can not master his rat enemies unless he puts a good deal of brains into his planning and then follows through in the same spirit.

We have heard that a high officer of France, a man holding a position that corresponds to our Secretary of State, gave the subject some of his valuable attention. He was mayor of his city and he had his municipality establish a cat farm to raise a variety of cat that was more than a master for the rat enemy.

In preventing ships from transporting rats some authorities make use of fumigation with cyanide gas. This gas will kill rats wherever it can get to them. Frazer, writing in the British Journal of State Medicine, says that on British ships this method has proved satisfactory. It does not get all the rats, but it is successful enough to be a practical procedure. Other authorities hold that the only method of keeping ships free from rats is by ratproofing them, either as they are being built in the first place or as they have been made over. In slaughter houses, granaries, and stables no method is satisfactory except ratconstruction.

There are many varieties of rat poison on the market. One that had an extensive trial several years ago was a food ball that contained a good, virulent culture of a microbe capable of sickening and killing rats. In practice it was found that this bacillus was capable of causing food poisoning in human beings. Giving it to rats caused it to be spread around. Some cases of food poisoning resulted. The method was objected to by a considerable number of health officers and it has to be modified. Just how the modified product is to come out remains to be seen.

The efficacy of the various chemical poisons is often disputed. The truth is that rats are susceptible to a number of poisons, but considerable skill and care are required to get them to eat poisoned food. There is plenty of food accessible and they are not disposed to try new things. The principal difficulty is because of the odors of human hands that cling to the food.

The lesson here is that in preparing rat poison one should wear rubber gloves. Under no circumstances must the bare hands be allowed to touch the poison or anything around it. If it be stirred with a spoon that has been handled with bare hands and not washed subsequently rats will not touch it. The same rules apply to the handling of rat traps.

Last spring the newspapers carried a story that Calgary has been rat free for four years. In 1929 the last ten rats in town were caught. Since then that city has been ratless.

Eye Turns In.

Mrs. D. D. writes: 1. Since my boy was 4 years old (he is now 10) his one eye has turned inward. What caused this?

2. Is an operation on the eyes dangerous?

Reply.

1. One of the muscles that turns the eyeball is too strong for its opponent. Since this condition has existed for six years there is a good chance that sight has been lost in the crossed eye.

2. No. The eyes should be examined at once. Operation probably is advisable.

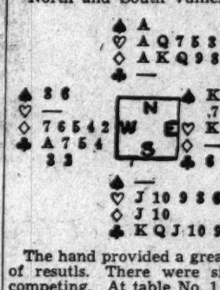
Freak Distribution and Freak Results.

THERE is no law that can be laid down to govern freak distributions at the bridge table. Though some general principles may be observed in the bidding when players find themselves confronted with hands in which great honor strength on one side is counteracted by tremendous distributional values on the other, to attempt to point out exactly what should or should not be done when the distribution is of the goulash type is probably useless, as really the result is largely determined by the type of person holding the hand and the psychological reaction of his opponents.

In a recent Duplicate game in East Orange, N. J., the following hand was dealt:

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The hand provided a great variety of resutls. There were six tables competing. At table No. 1 the final contract was six hearts by North, which was made. At table No. 2, North undertook a contract of seven hearts, which was defeated one trick. At table No. 3 North and South played the hand in seven diamonds doubled, and made their contract. At table No. 4, East and West undertook a contract of seven spades doubled, and went down one. At table No. 5 East and West fulfilled a contract of six spades, while at table No. 6 North and South, playing a seven-notrump contract, which they had undertaken in preference to permitting opponents to play a contract of seven spades, went down ten tricks doubled for a net loss of 6,500 points.

The contract of seven notrump was reached in the following extraordinary fashion:

(Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs).

North	East	South	West
2♡(1)	Pass(2)	3♣(3)	Pass
4◇	Pass	4♡(4)	Pass
6♡	6♠	Pass	Pass
7◇	7♠	Pass	Pass
7NT(5)	Dbl.(6)	Pass	Pass

Pass

1—North's Force without the required number of honor tricks is explained by the two-suit strength with the void in clubs and the singleton Ace of spades.

2—East elects to await developments, feeling sure of an opportunity to make a sacrifice bid at a later stage.

3—A bad bid, partly responsible for North's later notrump. South should have assisted the hearts.

4—Showing preference.

5—A suicidal bid. South's forced three-club bid does not guarantee the Ace. North is too anxious to play this "power house."

6—Depending on the King of hearts as a forlorn chance for an entry.

In the play, East, never dreaming that the Ace of clubs was in the West hand, led the King of spades. North took the trick with the Ace and felt out the hearts with a lead of the Ace, no finesse being possible. He realized that he was caught when West discarded a high club. His only chance seemed to be that there were no spades in the West hand, a strong possibility in view of the bidding. He could have taken six tricks in diamonds immediately and have been set only five, but if West held no spades, there was just a possibility that he would be set only one. He therefore led a low card to the diamond Knave in Dummy and returned the King of clubs, with the diamond Ten still a means of getting back into the closed hand after running the good clubs if West was unable to return a spade and elected to return a club. If West elected to return a diamond, there was still a bare possibility of forcing him to take the fifth diamond and return a club. But West took the King with the Ace of clubs and returned the last spade, and East took eight spades and the King of hearts, setting the contract ten tricks.

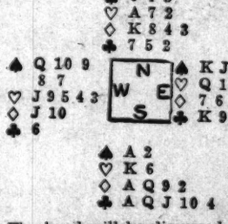
The arguments that ensued when this hand was analyzed were many and varied. Aside from the general amazement at the disastrous result of the seven-notrump bid, they concerned a lead from the heart doubleton in the East hand against a seven-diamond contract.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If South is playing a contract of six clubs, how should he plan the play in order to make his contract against an Opening lead of a spade?

South, Dealer

Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Geologists Of World in Meeting Here

Election of Officers, Study of Appalachians' Origin, on Program.

After three years of preparation by members of the staffs of the United States Geological Survey, the Geological Society of America and a business manager, plans were nearly complete last night for the opening tomorrow of the International Geological Congress, last held in Washington in 1891.

More than 400 geologists representing 25 foreign countries will gather in the United States Chamber of Commerce when the congress is called at 11 a. m. for its first session since 1929. Addresses of welcome are to be shown in behalf of the Federal Government and the American geologists. The speakers have not yet been named.

To Elect Officers.

The principal business of the opening session will be the election of officers who will serve until the next Congress meets, probably in two or three years, according to the established practice of the organization. It is expected that precedent will be followed in electing as officers of the congress the officers of the congress organizing committee. In this case, Waldemar Lindgren, Roger's professor of economic geology at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, present chairman of the organization committee, will succeed Dr. A. L. Hall, director of the geological survey, Union of South Africa, as president.

Entertainment Set.

Other members of the American organization committee who are expected to be chosen to fill offices in the congress corresponding to those they now hold on the committee are W. C. Mendenhall, director of the United States Geological Survey here, general treasurer; Edward B. Mathews, Maryland State geologits and Johns Hopkins professor, member of the executive committee.

Entertainment has been arranged for wives of the delegates by a committee headed by Mrs. Charles W. Wright, chairman, and including Mrs. H. G. Ferguson, Miss Julia Gardner, Mrs. M. Goldman, Mrs. D. F. Hewitt, Mrs. W. C. Mendenhall, Miss Olive Postley, Mrs. J. D. Sears and Miss Taisa Stadnichenko, all of Washington. Mrs. David White and Mrs. Whitman Cross, also of the District, were selected as honorary members of the group.

Study Appalachians.

R. C. Becker, another resident of Washington, has served the organization committe of the congress as business manager since last August. He has had the part-time assistance of Watson H. Monroe, of Washington, and H. G. Ferguson and M. I. Goldman, of the Geological Society.

Scientific sessions of the congress are to be held in the U. S. Chamber of Commerce from tomorrow afternoon through the morning of July 29. A discussion of the structure and origin of the Appalachian Mountain ranges will occupy a part of tomorrow's session.

27 Capital Districts Without Playgrounds

There are still in Washington 27 neighborhoods without children's playgrounds, and still thirteen districts without adequate recreation fields, Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said last night in a radio talk over station WMAL.

Speaking under the auspices of the Community Forum, Mr. Settle declared that the commission would work vigorously for the acquisition of property for recreational purposes until "every child in the District has a place to play and the opportunity to play."

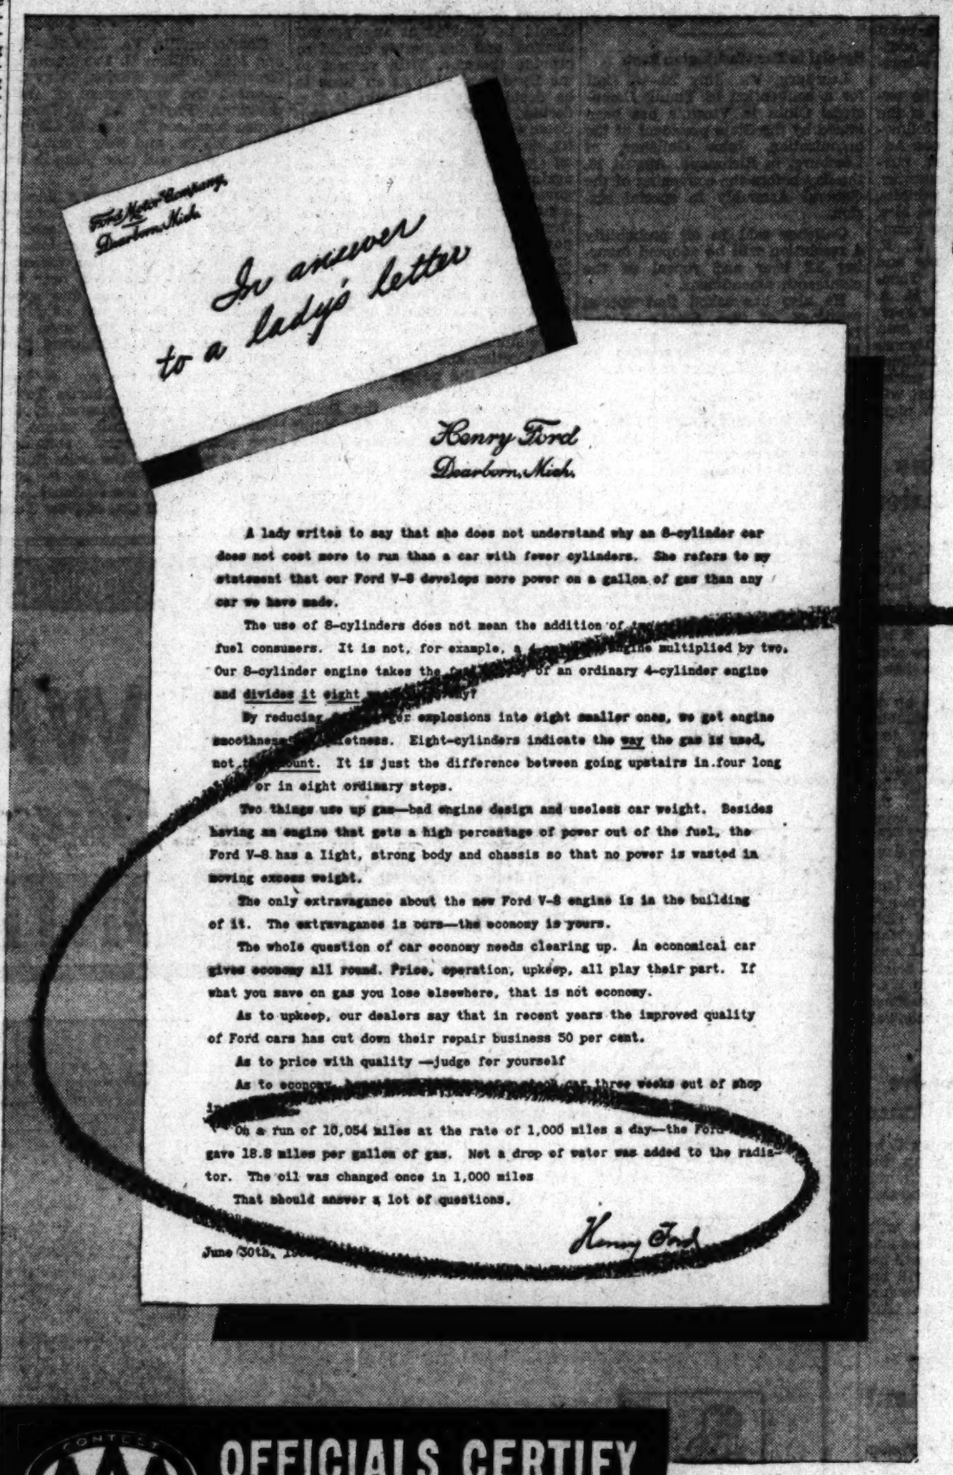
. . . In Washington, Mr. Ford--



In answer to a lady's letter
Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.
A lady writes to say that she does not understand why an 8-cylinder car does not cost more to run than a car with fewer cylinders. She refers to my statement that our Ford V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gas than any car we have made.
The use of 8-cylinders does not mean the addition of fuel consumers. It is not, for example, a
Our 8-cylinder engine takes the and divides it eight
By reducing smoothness not
or in eight ordinary steps.
Two things use up gas—bad engine design and useless car weight. Besides having an engine that gets a high percentage of power out of the fuel, the Ford V-8 has a light, strong body and chassis so that no power is wasted in moving excess weight.
The only extravagance about the new Ford V-8 engine is in the building of it. The extravagance is ours—the economy is yours.
The whole question of car economy needs clearing up. An economical car gives economy all round. Price, operation, upkeep, all play their part. If what you save on gas you lose elsewhere, that is not economy.
As to upkeep, our dealers say that in recent years the improved quality of Ford cars has cut down their repair business 50 per cent.
As to price with quality—judge for yourself
As to economy,
On a run of 10,054 miles at the rate of 1,000 miles a day—the Ford gave 18.8 miles per gallon of gas. Not a drop of water was added to the radiator. The oil was changed once in 1,000 miles
That should answer a lot of questions.
Henry Ford
June 30th,

AMOCO-GAS

in one of your V-8 cars--

gave 22½ miles to the gallon!

---3.7 miles per gallon more than 18.8 miles per gallon considered good performance--- a 20% increase.

IT was a test run under official A. A. A. supervision, too. In a stock Ford V-8 taken right out of the Chester, Pa. plant, AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO MOTOR OIL were used exclusively. Here's the A. A. A. report:

"From June 21st, 1933 until June 28th, an Economy Run was made under the auspices of the A. A. A. and the Washington Ford Dealers. A stock model Ford V-8 was used. The car was sealed in eleven places by the A. A. A. in order to obviate tampering which might take it out of the stock car class and average motor performance. This car was run continuously day and night over a course extending through traffic from Washington, D. C. to Mount Vernon, over Memorial Highway. The official figures are as follows:

Miles covered	5,022.1
AMOCO-GAS consumed	222.8 gallons
Miles per gallon of AMOCO-GAS obtained	22.5
AMOCO OIL consumed	1.57 gallons
Average of 1 gallon AMOCO OIL per	3,182.57 miles
1 quart of AMOCO OIL for each	795.46 miles
Average speed maintained	27.46 miles per hour

"No water was added to the radiator during the entire run, and no mechanical difficulties of any nature were encountered."

These figures are official and are so recorded by the American Automobile Association Contest Committee.

That's performance where AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO MOTOR OIL give performance--on the road. There is nothing else like AMOCO-GAS--the original premium motor fuel. It is the one complete motor fuel. It gives better performance--greater mileage and fewer repairs--always.

The premium on AMOCO-GAS has been reduced 2¢ per gallon.* As one user puts it: "Now I can't afford not to use AMOCO-GAS".

Take this Ford Economy Run, for instance. The mileage on AMOCO-GAS was 20% greater than the 18.8 miles per gallon mentioned in Mr. Ford's letter, thus making AMOCO-GAS--on a mileage basis alone--cost less than regular gasoline. In other words, you get greater riding ease--greater driving ease--greater freedom from repairs--for nothing.

Fill up with AMOCO-GAS! Always the best buy--now a better buy than ever.

The AMERICAN OIL COMPANY

*And 2¢ per gallon CASH DISCOUNT also continued in towns where now in effect--combined saving 4¢ per gallon.

Virginian Rips "Power Trust" In Vote Appeal

Smith Defies Peery, Foe in Governor Race, to Defend Stand.

Charlottesville, Va., July 20 (AP).—State Senator W. Worth Smith, jr., in a "power trust" speech here tonight, challenged George C. Peery, one of his opponents for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, to "defend" himself and the State corporation commission against present power conditions in the State.

"How much has your telephone bill been reduced?" he asked. "How much has your light bill been reduced? How much has your power * * * been reduced? How much has your water bill been reduced?" he asked in succession.

Cites Peery's Record.

The Louisa senator called attention to Mr. Peery's service on the corporation commission and to the fact that he is a former chairman of the commission.

He denounced as "bunk" Mr. Peery's platform proposal that the commission be authorized to temporarily alter or amend any existing rates or schedules relating to or affecting any public utility in Virginia when necessary to prevent injury to business or interests of the people or any public utility, in the case of any emergency.

Senator Smith continued with charges against power companies in which he asserted one of them turned water into gold overnight.

"How much water, how much air, have these financial jugglers changed into gold, upon which they are taxing the American consumers of electricity?" he asked.

Lashes at Octopus.

"Some day the people of Virginia, it seems to me, will realize that this great octopus, this greed monopoly, living on the pennies which were contributed by God's poor, taking out of the school children's hands the pennies given to them by their parents, going into every home, into every little town, and taking their toll from the toil and sweat of millions of our people in order that they may debauch the very people they rob, presents us a picture that ought to cause every man to raise his voice in condemnation of such an unholy, such a wicked, such an indefensible thing," he said.

Senator Smith spoke at the courthouse here. He was en route to Manassas, where he will speak tomorrow.

Col. Gregor, Czarist Hero, Here, Has Colorful Career

His Russian Estates Gone, Wearing War Scars, He Serves U. S.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Spreading rays of sunshine swept along lower Sixteenth street northwest one summer's day of a year gone by. More than one who passed turned to watch the progress of a proud figure strolling down the sidewalk. Knowing looks were exchanged as the figure turned, with military precision, into the Russian Embassy.

This figure, commanding the respect and admiration of all those who saw, was Alexander Greger, of the imperial Russian diplomacy. A close friend of the czar of all the Russians, he was on that summer's day first secretary and charge d'affaires of the Russian Embassy.

Today this same figure, grayed, but only slightly bowed by the years, may still be seen in the vicinity of lower Sixteenth street. Through the bright sunshine of any present summer day, this figure, every bit as proud, continues to command attention as Col Alexander Greger, late of the British military Forces, turns into the Racquet Club.

Once representative of a great nation. Later gentleman and soldier. And now a specialist with the United States Tariff Commission. Behind he leaves a colorful and adventurous career. Hardships and sorrow have been overcome. Past the prime of life, he starts anew with only familiar scenes to remind of the glory which once was his.

Czar Nicholas His Friend.

This week marks the fifteenth anniversary of the assassination of Czar Nicholas II and six members of the Romanoff family. It is not an easy week for Col. Greger. Czar Nicholas was his friend. Russia and the Old World were his life.

The colonel is not inclined to talk of himself. His service of 35 years in the Imperial Russian diplomacy is a cherished memory. The downfall of the czarist regime came as a terrible blow, but he was not felled. He rose again. Perhaps not to the same heights, but with a determination that has thus far carried him through new and greater adventures.

During the Cleveland and Harrison administrations, Col. Greger spent eight years in Washington. He was one of the most pouular of foreign diplomats. Newspaper accounts of the day tell of the "dashing young Russian diplomat" and his round of activities in the Capital.

At the outbreak of the World War, Col. Greger, then 56 years old, happened to be in England, and, as he put it—"Kitchener needed soldiers, so I enlisted in the Royal Fusiliers as a private." Incidentally, he left the service as a colonel.

Side of Face Blown Away.

It was a terrible experience. Here was a Russian nobleman, a representative of his country at the courts of Europe; an owner of vast estates; a friend of rulers. And the end of three years of fighting saw him in a French hospital—the entire side of his face blown away.

But to see him today one would never know he was left unconscious to die on the battle field. His even features, flowing white hair and mustache, show nothing of the terrible wound.

"It is true," he will say, "a great hole was torn in my face. It is due to the wonderful skill of Dr. Blake, then head of the American Hospital, in Paris, that I have been patched up this way."

Col. Greger's first taste of military service came during the Russian-Turkish campaign of 1877-78. He received two decorations—military crosses of St. George. One was voted by acclamation to the bravest "private." He now holds 27 medals, orders, ribbons and decorations.

With the Czarist regime went Col. Greger's vast holdings in Russia. Reluctantly he left Washington. In Baltimore he began all over again. He obtained a position in the department of foreign languages at the Baltimore City College.

Met Joffre in Baltimore.

Once, when Gen. Joffre passed through the Maryland city, Col. Greger met him at the railroad station. The colonel has never forgotten the incident.

"Ah, Greger," greeted Gen. Joffre. "what are you doing here?"

"I am trying to earn a living teaching languages," Col. Greger replied.

"Well, for the second time I call you a brave man," boomed the general.

On another occasion, Col. Greger explained, Gen. Joffre commented on his bravery during a major engagement of the World War.

It was Col. Greger, while stationed here, who inaugurated the "paper chases," which for a time created wild excitement in Washington society. One of these events was arranged for Mrs. Cleveland, bride of the President. Among those who took part in this novel form of entertainment were Henry Cabot Lodge, W. C. Whitney, then Secretary of the Navy, and later former President Theodore Roosevelt.

COL. ALEXANDER GREGER.

After suffering his wound in the war, the colonel joined the American Red Cross. For several years he worked in Paris, Cannes and Geneva.

Praised by Clara Barton.

In her "Story of the Red Cross," Clara Barton gave due credit to Col. Greger for his tireless efforts in behalf of the organization's cause.

The sudden and unexpected ratification of the Extradition Treaty between America and Russia in the face of tremendous opposition was a feather in Col. Greger's cap. Much of the work in connection with it was done by him.

And even now those days spent on lower Sixteenth street as friend of the czar and representative of the imperial Russian government bring a far-away look to the eyes of a gray-haired man as he pauses in front of the old Russian Embassy, empty and desolate.

So familiar is that section of Sixteenth street, that Col. Greger, returning here as an employe of the United States Government, chose the Racquet Club as his residence.

Perhaps he still hears——

"Alexander Greger, representing his imperial majesty, the Czar of Russia."

Oil Association In Virginia Hits Proposed Code

Suburban Dealers Decide to Carry Opposition to Gen. Johnson.

Vigorous opposition to the proposed code for the petroleum industry was voiced at a meeting last night of the Suburban Gasoline Association of Virginia, and it was decided to carry the fight against the code to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the national recovery act.

Under the proposed code, it was declared, the oil companies would be relieved of the payment of gasoline taxes, and it was asserted such a provision would ruin the business of independent dealers. It was contended that independent dealers, especially in Virginia, where there is a 5-cent levy, would be unable to pay the tax. It was also contended that the State would lose thousands of dollars in tax under the proposed code.

A committee, comprised of F. E. Dove, A. M. Renchell and W. E. Bell, was named and authorized to employ counsel to assist them in opposing the code when given a public hearing.

Gold Mine Opens Again in Fauquier

Warrenton, Va., July 20.—The old Franklin gold mine, in Fauquier County, lying in the "lower end" between the towns of Remington and Gold Vein, which helped finance the Confederacy, is being worked again by a large mining concern whose name is being kept secret.

This mine furnished gold up to 1865 and at one time was profitable, assaying as high as $34 per ton. Residents are much interested in the new movement to mine gold. That there is gold in that section of Fauquier is well known, the only question being, does it assay sufficient amount to justify the mining. More than 600 acres have been leased by the company.

Among large owners, whose land adjoins or is near the company's lease, are N. A. Embrey, of Gold Vein, and T. H. Maddux, of Marshal, who recently purchased considerable acreage in that neighborhood. Mr. Embrey was in Warrenton this week with a specimen taken from his land that showed free gold.

Ting-a-Ling

Alexandrian Said to Have Broken Into Office to Call Carolinian.

John Smith, 214 North Royal street, Alexandria, is held for investigation in connection with the entering of the apartment and office of Dr. W. Clyde West, 906 Prince street.

A neighbor telephoned a resident of the building Wednesday night that a man was attempting to force a window in Dr. West's apartment. Police headquarters was notified. Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims and Detective James Bayliss responded and, it is alleged, arrested Smith while he was attempting to put through a long-distance telephone call to a person in North Carolina, over Dr. West's telephone.

Dr. West returned shortly. He said a violet-ray apparatus had been knocked over and broken, causing damage estimated by him at $100. Dr. West stated last night there was apparently no attempt at robbery, but that Smith seems merely to have taken this rather informal means of using the telephone. No formal charge has yet been placed against Smith, with whom Dr. West is acquainted.

Byrd Road Bill Revival Urged In Arlington

Republican and Democratic Candidates Favor Resubmission.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Despite the fact the voters of Arlington County last year by a vote of 4 to 1 defeated the Byrd road bill, advocates of the measure still contend a mistake was made and are now making efforts to have legislation enacted by the next General Assembly permitting another vote allowing Arlington County to be included in the 96 counties which voted to remain under its provisions.

Discussing the possibility of such legislation, John Locke Green, the Republican candidate for the House of Delegates from the county, last night issued the following statement:

"It costs the taxpayers money to be continually holding special elections. All issues which involve an election by the people to be settled should be decided at any general election, and the statute should so provide therefor. With respect to the Byrd road plan as an issue to be decided by the people, it was decided by the people of Arlington County last year by a large majority. For my part I voted against it on general principles of being against all of this centralization of government in Richmond. If I am a member of the House of Delegates from Arlington County, I will propose a bill to be enacted into general statute law, allowing any county either to go into the Byrd road plan or to withdraw from it, in either case a petition to be presented by not less than 25 per cent of the qualified voters at the last general election and let the matter be decided by the people at the next general election."

William D. Medley, the Democratic candidate, stated that while he was opposed at the last election to the entry of the county into the system, he would not refuse the introduction of legislation for another vote on the matter if it can be shown that sentiment has changed.

"Escape-Proof" Jail Is Left Behind as Prisoner Escapes

Policeman in Montgomery Captures Man, Free for an Hour.

Liberty was short-lived yesterday for William Reed, 21, of Four Corners, Md., who escaped from the "escape-proof" Montgomery County Jail at Rockville, Md. His escape was discovered about 5 a. m. An hour later he had been rearrested in Silver Spring, Md., by Policeman Charles Barnes, who had made the original arrest.

The prisoner pried loose a section of steel sheeting imbedded in the ceiling of the detention room and crawled through a narrow pipeline of the ventilation system to a ventilator fan outlet on the roof of the courthouse building in which the jail is located.

He then crawled down a rainspouting on the adjacent old courthouse building to the street. In doing so he tore sections of the spout loose and must have had several almost miraculous escapes from being dashed to the ground.

Policeman Barnes spotted him on an ice wagon entering Silver Spring and returned him to the jail.

Reed was awaiting preliminary hearing on charges of housebreaking and larceny in connection with the recent robbery of the home of Mrs. Dorothy Lodge and her father, Adam J. Walden, at Wheaton, Md., in which antique silver and firearms valued at $600 were stolen.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Rayon—Some slackening in demand is looked for with the approach of autumn, but producers are in a mood to welcome a buying lull, it is said, so that they can build up reserve stocks.

Tin—Demand from consuming interests is small in comparison with the July takings. Prices are easier.

Rice—Trade interests report a strengthening trend in prices as a result of heavy buying for export and domestic requirements.

Pig Iron—Gossip in the trade suggests that makers believe the recent upward revision in prices will hold in view of increased production costs.

Quicksilver—The market currently shows an unusually wide spread. In some quarters sales have been reported at $67 a flask against $64 by other sellers.

Paint materials—Pigments, carbon black, varnish gums and other leading items continue at firm price levels, but with sales volume somewhat less than during June.

Trade Board Pegs Drops on Grain Prices

Chicago, July 20 (A.P.).—Directors of the board of trade late today set limits on price fluctuations for trading tomorrow, July 21. The limits are 8 cents a bushel for wheat, 5 cents for corn, 4 for oats, 8 for rye and 5 for barley.

The limitations were even more drastic than those suggested by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. He told officials of the exchange that a curb of at least 10 cents a bushel should be placed on wheat price fluctuations.

Wheat has been the bell wether in price declines, both yesterday and today, even though far outstripped by rye in the debacle today.

The directors also issued an announcement canceling trading in weekly privileges, after the present ones have expired, and also declared privileges for tomorrow null and void.

The action was taken at an emergency meeting of the directors, which was called today to consider means to check the hysterical flight of prices. Losses aggregating 30 cents a bushel, at the extreme low levels reached today, have swept wheat prices from the season's peaks until all deliveries but one were below a dollar a bushel at the close.

Under the limits adopted, July wheat may sell as high as 98 cents a bushel tomorrow or it may decline as low as 82 cents. Today it closed at 90.

The market was "pegged" once before this year. Trading was limited for the first few days following the lifting of the national bank holiday last March, but the fluctuations in wheat at that time were limited to 5 cents a bushel.

The market has also been pegged at various other times, notably during the war when maximum prices were set.

Bonds Forced To Decline on Sale's Drives

Eight-Tenths Loss Staged as Turnover Rises to $20,618,000.

New York, July 20 (A.P.).—Swamped by the same tidal wave of selling which hit the stock markets, bonds today found the going rough and losses of from 1 to more than 4 points were numerous.

There was one glittering exception to the downward trend, namely, the United Kingdom 5½s, which spurted some 12 points at the opening on news of the conversion offer and held most of the gain throughout the day. At the final quotation these loans showed an advance of over 9 points.

The trading volume, totaling $20,618,000, was approximately the same as yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues stood at 82.7, a net loss for the day of eight-tenths of a point, the largest daily decline—as measured by the averages—since March 2, 1933.

All categories were represented in the selling today, although the rail liens, which had been marked up most spectacularly in recent weeks, emerged generally as the most serious casualties.

Declines in the foreign list, ranging from around 2 to 4 or 5 points, including some of the Argentine, Antioquia, Chilean, Colombian and other South American loans, the Berlin City 6½s, French 7½, German 5½, Rhine issues and Yokohama City 6s. The Nord Railway 6½s, Nuremberg City 6s, Siemens & Halske liens and Soissons City 6s were among the group that moved against the trend and showed moderate advances.

Among the railway losers were loans of the Allegheny Corporation, Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, St. Paul, Rock Island, Erie, Great Northern, Intrenational Great Northern, Missouri Pacific and New Haven.

United States Government bonds were moderately higher, almost without exception, with trading fairly active.

More Gains Listed In Bank Clearings

New York, July 20 (A.P.).—Further substantial gains in bank clearings were reported today by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Total clearings this week, it was stated, amounted to $5,564,274,000, or 33.5 per cent higher than in the same period a year ago. At New York City clearings aggregated $3,988,956,000, an increase of 44.5 per cent, while those for cities outside of New York were $1,575,318,000, or 11.9 per cent higher.

In addition to New York, principal gains were reported by Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Atlanta and Louisville. Declines appeared at Baltimore, Detroit and Cleveland, although these were much below last week's losses.

This week's clearings in all centers exceeded those of the previous week by $210,000,000.

Duponts Order Cars For Metallic Sodium

Special to The Washington Post.

Wilmington, July 20.—The du Pont Co. has placed an order with the General American Transportation Corporation for six special tank cars to carry metallic sodium. It will be the first time this chemical, a true metal of wax-like consistency, has been shipped in tank cars. The cars will be unusually large, having a capacity of 11,000 gallons. At present metallic sodium is shipped in 50-gallon drums.

The car tanks will be made of low-carbon steel and mounted on extra heavy trucks with passenger car wheels. The six cars are now being built in General American's shops at Sharon, Pa.

Stocks Sink 8.2 Points In Wild Selling Rushes

Sharp Recovery of Dollar Is Among Several Reasons Assigned for Slump; Sales Volume Increases to 8,122,500 Shares.

New York, July 20 (A.P.).—Stocks crumbled today in the wildest selling rush that has been witnessed in the market during the past three years.

Shares were thrown overboard for whatever they would bring. Losses ranged from 2 to 23 points.

At the same time the dollar rallied 17 or more cents against the British pound sterling and was strong in terms of European gold currencies.

Traders in all categories were highly muddled as the strenuous business day came to an end. Various reasons were advanced for the unexpectedly drastic resumption of yesterday's reaction, but it was difficult to put the blame on any one of the somewhat complicated factors.

Among the causes assigned to the slump was the sharp recovery of the dollar after having dropped to its exchange rates in the past several years or longer. At the same time, speculative ardor was decidedly decreased by the warning of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, head of the national industrial recovery forces, that wages must keep step with rising prices if a crisis is to be avoided within the next month or two.

Market followers were especially impressed by Gen. Johnson's statement that "the distortion of increased prices is so rapid and the lag of purchasing power so great that it is plain we can not stage industrial recovery with 12,000,000 men out of work."

The share market showed some signs of a come-back in early transactions when some leaders gained from 1 to around 3 points. The climbing dollar and falling grains, however, reversed the rather feeble recovery after the noon hour and from then on the unloading proceeded.

The so-called "wet" stocks led the downward scramble, with U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol and Commercial to more than 18 points. Declines of 4 to 10, or more, were suffered by such leaders as American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, United Aircraft, Union Pacific, Western Union, Westinghouse, Owens-Illinois, American Tobacco "B" and many others. Numerous issues closed off 1 to 3 or more points.

Sales totaled 8,122,500 shares, about 3,000,000 of which were accounted for in the last hour. The Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 90 selected stocks dropped 8.2 points to 83.9. It was the largest loss in this average since June 16, 1930.

Booth Distillery Shares Listed Sold to Bragg

London, July 20 (A.P.).—The Financial News said today it understood that a large block of Booth's Distilleries shares, constituting a controlling interest, which recently were reported as purchased by Wall street interests, were bought on account by Thomas Bragg.

The News said it believed Bragg proposes to extend the business to America "as soon as prohibition is repealed." The shares, including 246,000 ordinary and 313,000 preferred, were a part of the estate of the late Solly Joel.

(Solly Joel, head of the Sarnato diamond firm, died in May, 1931.)

Curb Dragged To Low Ground By Distilleries

Losses Range From 1 to 12 Points; Sales Drop to 1,290,000 Shares.

New York, July 20 (A.P.).—Acute weakness in distillery issues precipitated a further downward revision of prices throughout the curb list today. Losses ranged from 1 to 12 points with closing quotations near the low levels for the day.

Hiram Walker closed at 30, off 13¾ points, while Schenley Distillery lost an even dozen. Others of the distillery group with losses of 4 to 6 points included Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, and Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A."

Among the industrials, Aluminum Co. of America sagged 13 points then recovered 2 at the close. Singer Manufacturing lost 7, while other shares off 3 or more included General Tire & Rubber, Glen Alden and A. O. Smith.

Electric Bond & Share turned heavy at the close to lose 6 points. American Gas & Electric and American Power & Light lost around 4 points each, while Columbia Gas & Electric preferred fell 21¾ points in a small turnover.

Oils and metals were equally heavy, losses of 3 to 5 points being shown in Newmont, Lake Shore, Gulf, Standard Oil of Indiana and Humble Oil. Transfers approximated 1,290,000 shares compared with 1,474,000 Wednesday.

London—The decline in the Wall street market checked speculators' enthusiasm on the stock exchange and caused profit-taking. Industrials, oil shares and trans-Atlantic issues drooped, but closed above the lowest levels of the day. Gilt-edged securities and investment stocks improved, while Argentine rails were one to two points lower. The market closed quiet.

Paris—The strength in the dollar combined with the slump in Wall street sent prices on the bourse lower and discouraged speculation. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—After having declined in a rather dull market, prices on the bourse registered a firmer tendency at the close.

Druggists Join Hands to Push Industry's Rise

Special to The Washington Post.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 20.—Sixty thousand retail druggists, second largest group of retail merchants in America, are behind the business recovery movement now under way in the drug industry through organization of the Drug Institute of America, according to Dr. William E. Weiss, chairman of the executive committee of the institute.

The Drug Institute, the executive control of which includes representatives of every branch of the drug industry, has pledged its cooperation to President Roosevelt's industrial recovery program.

Dr. Weiss, a former retail druggist, who became a leader in the industry through his association with Sterling Products, is now general manager of Drug, Inc.

In a recent appeal to druggists to join the institute, he declared that complete business recovery in the drug industry now is in the hands of the industry itself through every individual affiliated with it.

"Now is certainly the time for all good druggists to come to the aid of the drug business," declared Dr. Weiss. "Membership in the Drug Institute means that the wholesaler, retailer and manufacturer share alike in a movement for the business recovery of each and all."

Dr. Weiss emphasized in his appeal to the druggists the fact that the institute does not take the place of any other association in the industry, nor does it duplicate the work or purpose of any other group. "It merely provides a united organization which the drug trade has never had before," he said, "in which every division is represented and every one cooperates to do things that individual groups could never accomplish alone."

In its membership campaign the institute expects to enroll 35,000 members during the summer, and on the basis of applications already received for membership, the enrollment during the early months of that period will exceed that number.

New York, July 20 (A.P.).—Price advances to a basis of cost resulting from the recovery act are occurring daily in cotton goods and their lines.

Little new business is being booked except on finished goods where advances have not been completed. Advances of from 10 to 15 per cent were announced on acetate rayon yarns. Sales of women's coating fabrics and some worsted dress goods for fall cutting are being made in moderate quantities. Silk goods prices have been quite generally advanced as the industry is working under a code calling for shorter hours and higher wages. Burlaps were steady with trading light.

Panicky Selling Sends Wheat Below Dollar

Market Off 12 to 16 Cents Under Wednesday Drop; All Grains Lose.

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Unrestrained panicky selling, three times repeated today, left Chicago grain markets tonight almost completely demoralized after every delivery of wheat had plunged to below $1.

Wheat suffered a fall of 17 cents a bushel since yesterday, and rye 26½ cents. At the extreme bottom, July and September wheat were down to 90 cents, with May at 97¾ cents, 30⅜ cents below the season's top, $1.28¼ reached by May just 48 hours previous.

Today's wholesale break in prices, outdoing that which took place yesterday, when the maximum loss of wheat values amounted to 13¼ cents, was described by traders tonight as the worst speculative collapse the grain markets have experienced in a generation.

Regulation of Exchanges.

Reports from Washington that the administration was considering measures for the regulation of the country's exchanges were simultaneous with the latest of the stampedes to sell. Earlier, the chief apparent reason for the successive wild efforts to get rid of ownership of grain was increased, unsettling of confidence on the part of speculative buyers.

Wheat closed excited at prices ranging from the day's bottom figures to 3¼ cents above, with last quotations 12 to 16 points under yesterday's finish; corn, 11¾ to 14¼ down; oats, 6⅜ to 8½ off and provisions showing 35 cents to $1.05 decline.

Selling orders issued at first in relative moderation at the opening of business today whirled the market downward 5 cents, but prices quickly rallied for the time being, and net gains of 3 cents were established in such swift time that many traders believed normal conditions were once more the rule.

Base of Buying.

Buying at this stage was based largely on assertions of trade leaders that yesterday's drastic fall of prices had to a great extent corrected overbought speculative conditions.

Stimulus was found also in Washington reports quoting high Government officials, unnamed, as saying that before the administration would allow reactions in security and commodity markets to endanger national recovery it would use in full the inflationary powers given by the last session of Congress. This would mean cutting the gold content of the dollar, authorizing the coinage of silver, and requiring Reserve banks to buy Government securities directly from the Treasury.

A fresh outburst of selling, however, came at around noon, and caught the wheat market and all the other speculative pits without any adequate support from buyers.

Storm of Selling.

The renewed storm of selling was temporarily so overwhelming that prices dropped at the extraordinary rate of a cent between trades, and more than 9 cents tumble in wheat values occurred. A downward sweep of alcohol securities in New York acted as the main source of disturbance at this juncture. Acute weakness of the cotton market was also an element of alarm.

Although new recoveries of 5 cents or more for wheat ensued, the biggest selling stampede of the day followed just before trading came to an end. Selling at any price obtainable formed the rule now rather than the exception. In the market convulsions at the last minute, May wheat turned up again to $1, and in some cases reached $1.01, but as a whole the market was practically at the lowest point reached.

Rye paralleled the action of wheat. Stop-loss selling of rye, however, had more drastic effects on rye values owing to trade volume being smaller than in wheat. Corn and oats, sympathizing with wheat weakness, reached maximum setbacks of, respectively, 15¾ cents and 10 cents.

Provisions gave way with grains.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—September, 76, 1.06-1.07; December, 78-79, 1.13-1.15; May, 80, 1.15½-1.16½. Corn—September, 44-44½, 63-63½; December, 45-45½, 67-69; May, 73, bid.

Winnipeg, July 20 (AP).—Stampeded by a rush of selling into a chaotic plunge downward, the Winnipeg Grain Pit today experienced a mad session which saw values swept helter-skelter down for losses of 8¼ to 9¾ cents. Helpless to withstand the terrific selling pressure, July option broke to 78¼, October to 81; December to 82 bid, and May to 84¼ bid.

Unable to offer any resistance in the late dealings, prices went helter-skelter downhill to come to rest at the close 8¼ to 9¾ cents under the previous finish.

Celotex Plant Again Operates at Profit

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 20.—The Celotex Co., which went in receivership one year ago, has been operating at a profit since May, according to a statement today by Hobart P. Young, receiver. Before the receivership became effective, the company operated at a loss for about a year, sustaining average losses of about $100,000 per month.

Mr. Young said that the company was operating at more than average activity this summer, which is normally its dull season. He estimated that the Celotex Co. will show net earnings of approximately $75,000 for the third quarter of its fiscal year, which includes May, June and July, before provision for depreciation and interest on its outstanding issues of $822,500 first mortgage bonds and $1,600,000 6 per cent debentures.

Bank Rate Unchanged.

New York, July 20 (AP).—No change was announced today by the New York Federal Reserve Bank in the rediscount rate of 2½ per cent.

Britain Requests Americans To End Gold Clause in Loans

London, July 20 (AP).—Great Britain has asked American holders of the 1917 War Loan Bonds to accept abrogation of their gold clause to permit conversion from 5½ per cent to 2½ per cent sterling bonds.

An offer was made to change each $1,000 bond into a sterling bond of £260—at the rate of $3.84 against the $4.86 parity, reached yesterday by the dollar and pound.

The explanation was given that recent American legislation provides that gold abolitions can be paid in currency "which at the time of payment is legal tender for public and private debts" and that "payment of interest and repayment of principal • • • can only be made in currency or coin which is at the date of payment legal tender in the United States for the discharge of debts—that is, paper dollars, and not gold dollars."

In American quarters it was said England is within her rights "in offering to exchange even at par, inasmuch as the gold bond is legally a paper bond in the United States now."

The bonds were floated in the United States in the form of one and two-year gold notes and were converted upon expiration into 20-year bonds bearing a gold payment clause.

Sears-Roebuck Sales Increase for Month

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Sears, Roebuck & Co. crossed the graph of last year's sales on an upward curve in the four weeks period from June 19 to July 16. Sales totaled $19,442,052, against $19,252,107 last year, a gain of 1 per cent.

For the six periods ended July 16, sales totaled $108,990,590, compared with $126,578,919 a year ago, a decrease of 13.9 per cent.

Cotton Breaks As Other Price Slumps Grow

December Sells at 10.93 as General Market Drops 72 to 80 Points.

New York, July 20 (AP).—A sensationally rapid break of over a cent a pound occurred in the cotton market today following heavy selling attributed to the demoralized decline in other markets.

December contracts plunged down to 10.60 from 11.72, and to a level $8 below the high of Tuesday.

Later fluctuations were nervous and irregular with December closing at 10.72, or about 30 points up from the lowest in covering. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 72 to 80 points.

Initial prices were 9 to 14 points lower in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables.

Early Losses Light.

Early offerings were comparatively light following yesterday's liquidation and the market steadied up late in the forenoon on a fairly good trade and commission house demand.

This proved sufficient to send active months about 3 to 6 points net higher, but the market weakened again during the early afternoon, under renewed liquidation. As prices worked off, selling orders poured in from all directions and before there was any check to the decline, active months closed net losses of over $5 per bale, with October selling at 10.42 and March to 10.85.

Exports today, 26,159, making 8,327,449 so far this season. Port receipts, 12,626. U. S. port stocks, 3,185,888.

Gold Standing As Exception In Price Gains

Bankers Wonder How Long Metal Will Remain at Fixed Valuation.

New York, July 20 (AP).—Seemingly a glittering exception to the general rule, gold stands unique as the one American commodity which has failed to share in the spectacular price rise of recent months.

Many prominent bankers are wondering how long this contradiction will continue but recognize the difficulties of changing it.

The United States is the third largest producer of gold in the world, but the American gold miner, with his market rigidly restricted by the new gold laws, has only one customer, Uncle Sam. Moreover, this customer still pays in ordinary currency at the legal rate of $20.67 per ounce, or some 30 per cent below the world price quoted in London.

The eventual establishment of a free gold market in America—which would result in a higher price for the yellow metal—is being urged in certain quarters in Wall street.

At the same time, it is admitted that the problem is unusually complex. The administration, under the recent antihoarding edict, has demanded the return of all private gold holdings. A free gold market would mean that the Government would have to pay a premium on domestic gold. This would create a situation, it is said, which would be manifestly unfair to citizens who have obeyed the gold lays of the country and turned in their gold.

Moreover, if a free gold market were confined to a strictly domestic basis, there would probably be little advantage to the American producer, bankers explain, inasmuch as he would be prohibited from enjoying the full advantage of the higher world quotation.

Canada pays a premium for gold equal to the difference between the gold value of its currency and the actual value in the exchange markets. The London market—the only free market presently operating in the world—quotes a current price for gold of approximately $30 per ounce.

Relief may be accorded the gold mining industry in another way, however, if gold concentrates—namely, unrefined metal, still in some degree of rock formation—are permitted export privileges. The Attorney General has been asked for an opinion as to whether this would be legal under the gold embargo act.

An affirmative ruling, say students of the question, while not as beneficial as a free market or the lifting of the embargo, would at least permit the American miner to get in contact with the higher price market obtaining abroad.

With gold at a fixed price, maintains J. F. Callibreath, secretary of the American mining congress, "and with the anticipated wage level and operating cost increases, the gold industry will be practically driven out of existence," unless there is relief.

Wool Market.

London, July 20 (A.P.).—Offerings at the wool auction today amounted to 9,464 bales, of which 6,392 were sold. Although a fair selection was placed on the market the demand slackened, buyers having filled the bulk of their requirements. There were larger general withdrawals owing to firm limits.

Nats Bow to Tigers, 1-0; Deadlock Remains as Yankees Lose, 3-1

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

BUCKY HARRIS was buttonholed in the visitors' locker room at Griffith Stadium. The wolves out in Detroit are setting up a raucous howling these days and demanding among other things a new deal in the management of the Tigers.

What's it all about, Buck?

"What is there to say?" Harris asked. "It always happens when a club is down. What can a fellow do about it, except try. You can't tell, we may do a lot better yet this season. We're liable to get up there in third place and that won't be so bad."

How about your plans for next year?

"I'm thinking about getting the club up there this season. Perhaps after that, next year will take care of itself. We're not done yet, I tell you."

Thereby Hangs a Tale.

What did Bucky think about Washington and the chances of beating out the Yanks.

"If Washington loses the pennant, they'll have a lot to blame us for," said Harris. "We had the Yankees on the run up in New York and let 'em get away from us. We beat 'em the first two games and then booted a couple of sure double plays to let 'em win the third. And in the fourth game, we couldn't hold a big lead.

"The Yankees were down when we met 'em. They'd just come back from the West after a rotten trip, and the heat had Ruth, Combs and Lazzeri beaten. Dickey was down to a featherweight trying to catch every day.

"While we were winning those first two games of the series, the Yanks looked as if they were through. We should have cleaned up the whole five. Then those errors let 'em break loose and you see what happened. They didn't quiet down until they won nine straight."

Looked Great in Detroit.

How about Washington, Buck?

"They looked like the greatest ball club in the league when they played us out West. The Yanks came through Detroit and lucked out on us in three games that they never should have won. But it didn't look as if anybody was going to stop that Washington club.

"That's when both clubs were playing in that hot weather. It didn't seem to bother Washington, but the Yanks didn't like it, especially Ruth, and when you take the Babe away from that ball club, they aren't the Yankees."

By the way, Buck, how about that two-base hit of Walker's that Vangrafian called fair? You remember it was the hit that beat Washington that game out in Detroit last trip.

"That hit," said Bucky, "was a foul by half a foot. But of course, it would have been unwise for me to say so at the time. I can speak more freely now."

Difference Is Marberry.

Do you like the Washington team this year as well as your 1924 club, Bucky? How do you compare them?

"Well," Harris mused, "The big difference is Fred Marberry. The pitching isn't so dependable as that 1924 pitching and Cronin hasn't got any Marberry to send in there and stop 'em cold. That guy won the pennant for us that year.

"It's a better hitting club that Cronin's got, but they don't have the speed in the outfield we had when Sam Rice, Goose Goslin and Earl McNeely were covering that ground out there. That helped a lot."

What else do you know, Buck?

"Well, Lefty Grove isn't the pitcher he used to be. We never used to get 10 and 12 hits off him in one afternoon. He's lost a lot of that speed. Of course he can throw that fast one by you when he has to, but he can't keep it up all day the way he used to. That's the big difference."

Thanks, Buck.

U. S.-England Net Series Starts

Odds on America Drop to 6-5 With Perry Declared Fit.

Briton Ace and Allison Clash; Vines Battles Austin Today.

PARIS, July 20 (AP).—After an impressive workout late today by the British Davis Cup tennis team, during which Fred Perry, the English ace, appeared fully recovered from the effects of a recent shoulder injury, odds in favor of the United States shortened to 6 to 5 for the interzone challenge round matches starting tomorrow at Roland Garros Stadium.

Perry and his singles teammate, Henry W. (Bunny) Austin, both impressed critics with being "on edge," serving warning to the Americans against overconfidence as well as recalling the upset sprung two years ago by the Britons in the interzone series.

Austin Faces Vines.

Austin plays H. Ellsworth Vines, the American champion, tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock (8:15 a. m. Eastern standard time), in the first singles match, after which Perry will take the courts against Wilmer Allison, the Texas star.

These pairings will be reversed for the concluding two singles matches on Sunday, when Austin meets Allison and Perry plays Vines.

The combinations for the doubles match Saturday were not announced. Despite some speculation in the American camp over a possible switch to Vines and Keith Gledhill, holders of the U. S. doubles championship, it is still generally expected that John Van Ryn and George M. Lott, jr., the original American selection, will play Perry and George Patrick Hughes.

The Americans were buoyed today by an unexpected cablegram from President Roosevelt, wishing them "good luck," which Bernon S. Prentice, chairman of the Davis Cup committee, acknowledged as an "inspiration."

U. S. Team Confident.

Confident they are in the best of condition and that they will win the right to play France again the challenge round next week, the American players took their final workouts easily, in contrast to the brisk drill of their rivals beforehand.

Observers figure the best the British can hope for tomorrow is an even break. Vines appears to pack too many big guns for the slightly built Austin, who nevertheless has his moments of tennis inspiration. Perry is a favorite to beat Allison, but there are many who feel the Texan has the stuff to give the Americans a first-day sweep, thereby removing any doubts about the outcome.

The advance ticket sale has been heavy and a capacity crowd is expected to gather around the red-clay court at Auteil. The weather man promised a tropical sun.

Babe Herman Hits Three Home Runs

Chicago, July 20 (AP).—Sentenced to the bench Saturday for light hitting and back in the line-up only because "Riggs" Stephenson had a cold, Floyd C. (Babe) Herman, Cub outfielder, today clouted three home runs as the second-place Chicagoans defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 10 to 1, in the opening game of the series.

Herman's blow, which tied the National League record established by Ed Williamson, of the Chicago Nationals, in 1884 and equaled by a score or so of batsmen, accounted for eight of the Cubs' ten runs.

The first came off Ed Holley, with Kiki Cuyler on base, in the third inning and sailed into the bleachers in left center.

Herman came through again in the fifth inning, with Holley still pitching and Cuyler again on base. This time the ball fell into the bleachers in deep right-center. The third was hit off Ad Liska, in the eighth, with Koenig, Billy Herman and Cuyler awaiting. It was lofted into the bleachers in right field.

Six D. C. Stars Advance in Md. Golf

Jankowski, Peacock, Pitt, Wood, Fuchs and Nee Are Survivors.

By Dave Herman.

AN orgy of low scoring broke out over Indian Spring's course yesterday in the "sudden-death" matches of the Maryland State amateur golf championship, as six Washington stars and two from Baltimore, including the medalist, Roger Peacock, forged into the quarter-final round.

While Peacock, the big favorite from the home club, whose 144 won him qualifying honors on Wednesday, scored victories over Talbot T. Speer of Baltimore Country Club, and Spencer Overton, of Hillendale, the golfer who actually stole the show, was Harry Pitt, of Manor.

Pitt set a dizzy pace to defeat E. M. Lucas, of Baltimore, and Bobby Bowen, of Indian Spring.

10 Birdies During Day.

Pitt overwhelmed Lucas, 4 and 2, shooting a smashing 33 for the first nine, being 2 under par when the match ended on the sixteenth green. In the afternoon he crushed Bowen by 4 and 3, with another remarkable performance, being 3 under par when he ceased firing on the fifteenth. Pitt had 5 birdies in the morning and 5 in the afternoon. Eight 3s adorned his card in his first match. He rifled 7 straight 4s on the last 9 of the afternoon.

Losing only one hole, the ninth, which he 3-putted, Peacock eliminated Speer, 6 and 5, in his morning duel. In the afternoon the medalist was 1 down to Overton at the turn, but spurted to win out on the fifteenth by 4 and 3.

Janowski Is Victor.

John Janowski, Catholic University gridiron star, representing Indian Spring, who meets Peacock this morning, defeated 15-year-old

Braves Score 2 in 9th To Overcome Cards, 3-2

St. Louis, July 20 (AP).—The Boston Braves came from behind to score two runs in the ninth inning and defeat the St. Louis Cardinals today, 3 to 2. It was Frankhouse's eight straight victory.

Whitney hit a homer in the final frame to tie the score, then Lee walked and scored when Maranville tripled. The Braves got their other run in the fourth on doubles by Jordan and Moore. Martin hit a homer in the third for the Cards' only earned run.

Harder Gives New York 3 Bingles

Three-Bagger by Averill in 6th Inning Wins for Cleveland.

Champs' Non-Shutout Streak Threatened in 297th Game.

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP).—Mel Harder almost gave the Yankees their first shutout in nearly two years today as he pitched the Cleveland Indians to a 3-to-1 victory over the New Yorkers in the first game of their series.

Harder allowed only three thoroughly scattered hits in a flinging duel with Lefty Gomez and the one Yankee run might have been cut off in the fourth inning.

Despite the defeat, the Yankees retained their tie for the American League lead with the Washington Nationals, who also lost.

The lone Yankee run, which carried their scoring streak through the 297th game since they last were blanked on August 2, 1931, resulted from a walk to Babe Ruth, one hit and a fly.

Pass Turned Into Yank Run.

The Babe drew his pass after one was out and went to third on the first of Lou Gehrig's two singles. He scored after Ben Chapman's fly, but some observers thought that, if Averill had thrown to first to double Gehrig off the sack instead of pegging for the plate, he might have ended the inning without a run.

The only other Yankee hits were Ruth's double in the sixth and Gehrig's single after two were out in the ninth.

The Indians won the game with the aid of a Yankee error in the sixth after scoring their first run in the second on a walk to Willie Kamm, Frank Pytlak's base hit and a force-out at second. A fumble by Doc Farrell let Harley Boss reach first in the "pay-off" inning. Earl Averill smashed a triple to send in the winning run and then scored on O'Dell Hale's single.

Pat O'Shocker Mat Victim of Steele

Succumbs in 46 Minutes After Having Edge Until Very End.

By Frank H. Young.

ONE Patrick O'Shocker put up a right smart battle against Ray Steele on the mat at Griffith Stadium last night, such a good one, in fact, that the 4,500 cash customers in the stands several times thought that the redhead was going to win. Four different times Referee Bennie Bortnick tolled two-thirds of the count on Steele, but each time Steele managed to escape and he finally won after a hectic exchange of series of crotch holds and body slams. The time was 46 minutes.

There is an old story they tell of another fighting Irishman named Pat who went out to the woods to kill a wildcat that was worrying the neighbors. "I got him!" he yelled soon after he disappeared in the underbrush. After quite a commotion, he plaintively yelled, "Say, how do you let loose of a wildcat?"

And, like the story, Pat O'Shocker quickly got hold of Wildcat Steele. He had all the better of it until the

Bridges Wins Duel With Crowder

Detroit Bunches 2 of 4 Hits in 8th for Lone Run of Battle.

Schulte's Double and Myer's Triple Fail; Stone Star Afield.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

WITH the door to the exclusive American League lead wide open and beckoning the Nats to enter, Tiny Tom Bridges slammed it shut in their faces with his good right arm and hung a 1-to-0 shiner on the Washington Club yesterday.

Great was the joy among the meager assemblage in the stands when the mystic operators of the scoreboard posted the evidence of a Cleveand victory in New York, while the Nats were locked in a scoreless tie with the Tigers and Al Crowder pitching 1-hit ball for seven innings.

They were hooked up in another pitching duel, Crowder and Bridges, who had battled to a 2 to 1 decision in favor of the Nats in Detroit last month, but yesterday it was Crowder who faltered while the lithesome right-hander of the Tigers continued the even tenor of his shut-out pitching to let the Nats down with four hits.

Still in Tie at Top.

But fate dealt unkindly with the veteran toiler of the Nats for he apportioned only three hits to the Tigers during his 8-inning stretch, only to see them couple two of these blows in the eighth inning for the run that Bridges made stand up for the rest of the game.

And so the Nats and Yanks remain in a stalemate at the top of the league.

The Tigers beat Crowder with one swift and sudden stroke in the eighth. Frank Doljack, a bench warmer for two years, led off the deciding inning by rifling Crowder's first pitch up against the left field wall, only 2 feet shy of a home run, and took two bases. Bill Rogell caromed a single into right field and Doljack pranced home with the sum total of the runs for the day.

Bridges Gets First Hit.

For five innings there was no sign of a hit for the Tigers until Bridges knocked all no-hit notions from Crowder's cranium with a single into right field with none out, but Bridges, for four innings, had been no less effective.

The Tigers, like the Nats, finished up with four hits for their afternoon's efforts after Manager Cronin had found it expedient to remove Crowder for a pinchhitter in the

First Minstrel Comes From 10 Lengths Back to Win Feature Race at Arlington

Whitney Colt Scores in Debut

Trumpery Is Beaten by a Head in Juvenile Race; Sir Ten 3d.

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 20 (AP).—First Minstrel, a 2-year-old son of Royal Minstrel—Untidy, running in the colors of Mrs. Payne Whitney, making his first start, turned on a dazzling burst of speed today to win the Rookie Purse at Arlington Park.

The Greentree Stable youngster did not break well and at one time during the 5½-furlong event, trailed the leaders, C. V. Whitney's Trumpery and the Calumet Farm's Sir Ten, by about 10 lengths. Rounding into the stretch, however, Jockey Sylvio Coucci shook him up and, in a stirring battle with Trumpery from the sixteenth pole to the judges' stand, got up to win by a head. Sir Ten finished third.

First Minstrel ran the distance in 1:05 3-5, and rewarded his backers with $6.52 in the $2 mutuels.

French Knight, under a good-judged ride by Jockey Bobby Jones, cantered to victory in the fourth race.

Shooting to the front as the barrier was sprung, French Knight, from the Audley Farm, owned by B. B. Jones, of Virginia, gained the decision by a length and a half over Adolphe Pons' Surety. Mrs. John D. Hertz's Louandre, a prominent factor throughout the running of the race, weakened in the final strides to the judges' stand and finished third.

Dear Al:

Boy! Oh, boy! I know that close don't count except in horseshoe pitching. However, you will have to pardon me. Didn't we come close to putting over a real one today? I mean Dr. Klein. He was better than 40 to 1. Stepped out on top and led until the last jump, to be beaten only two necks. French Knight and Advising Anna were my winners. I was well represented in the money throughout the card. Mike has the selecting itch again. He likes Bright Beauty, Big Toney, Chatterdoo and about a thousand others. BILL.

First race—Busy Spain has been on the jump of late, trying to graduate from the maiden ranks. The stable has picked this spot and I see no reason for mistakes. Jens Son looked good the other day. Might be second. Humorous for the show.

Second race—I'm sticking to Kummel despite that disappointing last effort. This one is said to be ready. And he'll have to be to take Fiddler and Eskimo. The last named pair are sharp right now, according to the clockers.

Third race—Chat Eagle gets in this test with only 103 pounds and this way rigged should not have to give ground to what is offered here. Dark Sea and Celtic Prince appear to have the edge on the others.

Fourth race—Tickory Tock comes to this with only light weight and should provide Bennings with another winner. Resisting and Ondott may be the ones to complete the money picture.

Fifth race—Fair Image showed enough in that victory the other day to warrant a top selection here. Gets a break in the weights from most of the field. Caterwaul and Bollermaker for the rest of it.

Sixth race—Action is from a price-liking stable, but I believe conditions are satisfactory enough here to bring a best effort. Certainly showed a swell race recently. Halcyon is the one I fear. You might put a deuce saver on Reveille Boy. I can't believe it, but this one is being talked.

Seventh race—I've been trying to put Royal Blunder over and Royal Blunder has been trying to put me over. Looks like tomorrow is the day. Has raced into good shape. Dusky Devil and Fingal for the place and show.

Eighth race—Batty meets poor grade of horses in the finale. If he doesn't make the most of this opportunity, I'm recommending him for the junk pile. Rolling Sea and Potentate to do the chief chasing.

Lenore Kight Swimming Heroine

Wins A. A. U. 100-Meter and Mile Events in A. A. U. Title Meet.

By Orlo Robertson.

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP).—Lenore Kight, 20-year-old brunette, from Homestead, Pa., picked by the experts to succeed Helene Madison as the queen of American women free style swimmers, today justified her selection as she dominated the opening day of the National A. A. U. aquatic championships, winning the 100-meter and the 1-mile events before a crowd of 10,000 at Jones Beach.

The double victory of the Pennsylvania girl, who monopolized the free-style events at the indoor championships at Buffalo, overshadowed the diving duel off the springboard between 15-year-old Katherine Rawls, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Dorothy Poynton, of the Los Angeles A. C., Olympic high-diving champion, in which the Southern star successfully defended the first of her four titles.

Miss Kight Extended in Dash.

Miss Kight, her long powerful strokes sending her churning through the quiet waters of the bay, was forced to come from behind to win the 100-meter dash in a sensational finish with Olive Hatch Voight, of Los Angeles. In the mile, however, the Pennsylvania girl had things much her own way, taking the lead at the bark of the starters gun and never relinquishing the advantage.

The diving event was strictly a duel between Miss Rawls and Miss Poynton, with the defending titleholder pulling away in the five optional dives. The Florida champion finished with 132.44 points, as compared with 123.64 points for the West Coast queen. Madeline Karson Gersin, of the Dragon Club, of New York, was third, followed by 9-year-old Mary Hoerger, of Miami, Fla., competing in her second national championship.

Intercity Rowing Regatta Tomorrow First to Be Staged on Potomac Since 1923

Gude to Race U. S. Champ in Test

Philadelphia, New York and Other Cities to Have Entrants.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

WASHINGTON sports fans once again will thrill to the sight of bronzed oarsmen bending over their sweeps tomorrow, when members of the Southern Rowing Association concentrate their forces on the Potomac for their annual regatta.

Not since 1923 has the Potomac been the scene of an intercity rowing regatta. The comparatively mild sport of canoe racing has usurped the aquatic spotlight in the Capital. On Saturday, the crews come back. Eight-oared and four-oared shells, propelled by the rythmic sweep of sinew-straining bodies, a throw-back to the glory that was the Potomac's in the past, again will knife over the mile course of the Washington channel.

Outsiders Are Entered.

Oarsmen from Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore and Richmond will vie with the local crop of the Potomac Boat Club for the Southern Association's 1933 titles.

Full in the limelight will be the Capital's proudest product, Granville Gude, runner-up in a national single sculls championship and for ten years the sculling champion of the Potomac, who has withstood the challenges of the rising generation on local waters.

Nine years ago, Labor Day, 1924, to be exact, Gude accomplished the amazing feat of winning intermediate and association single sculls championship in a single day. Never before had it been done, nor has any boatmen since equalled the performance. Gude has won numerous races in the intervening years, thrilling triumphs accomplished in some instances against almost insurmountable odds, but it will be his exhibition in the Middle States Regatta of nine years ago that will linger longest in the fans' memory.

To Be Opposed By Miller.

Opposing Gude tomorrow will be William G. (Big Bill) Miller, national single sculls champion for the last three years and United States representative in the last Olympics. Miller will row under the colors of the Penn Athletic Club.

By selecting Washington Channel as the course, all races to be over distances from a quarter of a mile to 1 mile, the committee has made it possible for spectators to see the contests from a fine vantage point. The finish line will be off Hains Point.

Vets' Net Team Wins.

The Veterans' Administration Departmental League tennis team eked out a 3-2 win over the Navy to chalk up its fourth consecutive win. Only two of the matches went to three sets.

The Navy team, composed of Bates and Wilson, defeated Erana and Silva, 7—5, 2—6, 6—2, in one of the hard-fought matches, while the Navy bowed to the Vets as Pratt and Kelsey defeated Bessey and Taylor, 3—6, 6—1, 6—0 in the other.

Bates and Wilson (Navy) defeated Erana and Silva, 7—5, 2—6, 6—2; Osterman and Rounds (Navy) defeated Bibb and Daley, 6—1, 6—3; Pratt and Kelsey (Vet.) defeated Bessey and Taylor, 3—6, 6—1, 6—0; Johnson and Hager (Vet.) defeated Yeomans and Gay, 6—4, 9—7; Weiss and Hall (Vet.) defeated Robert and Cushman, 6—1, 6—2.

Detroit Shuts Out Washington by 1-0

eighth and permit Burke to pitch the ninth, whereupon Detroit collected its fourth safety.

Relying chiefly on a fast curve, Bridges silenced the big guns of the Nats' batting order, Goslin, Manush and Cronin. Fred Schulte alone solved him for two hits and the only others to collect a safety were Ossie Bluege and Buddy Myer. Only Myer reached third base and only two others progressed as far as second.

Effective in Pinches.

Bridges was pitching himself out of rough spots in the fifth, seventh and eighth innings, when the Nats threatened to break through with a run that might tie or win the ball game, but the slender right-hander was the master in the pinches.

Washington put two of its four hits together in the fifth when Schulte drove out the first safety off Bridges with one out. Kuhel could only pop to Gehringer, but Bluege put Schulte on second with another single. Sewell made a mighty bid for a triple with a long poke into right field only to learn with dismay that Johnny Stone had galloped toward the scoreboard to bring it down with a back-handed, one-hand grasp that was the fielding gem of the day.

Dies on Second Base.

Schulte again put the Nats in scoring position with a double down down the third-base line with one out in the seventh, only to perish on second as Bridges disposed of Kuhel and Bluege without undue strain.

The Nats' dying gasp occurred in the eighth. Owen had thrown out Sewell and Pinch Hitter Sam Rice, but Buddy Myer rammed a three-base hit against the wall in left and put the issue squarely up to Goslin who met it with a timid fly to Stone.

The Nats were still very negative in the ninth and Bridges was uncrossed.

Majestics Play Elks.

Majestic Radio nine will tackle the Fredericksburg Elks on the latters' field Sunday. The team will leave from Tenth and H streets northwest at 11 o'clock.

The Nats' Dying Gesture in 1-0 Defeat by Bridges

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

Buddy Myer scrambles safely into third base on his triple in the eighth inning far ahead of the outfield's relay to Owen which is seen in midair, but there were two out and Washington's hopes of tying the score perished when Goslin flied to right field.

League Insects To Open Season

First Capital City Games Booked Today; Ellipse Field Scene.

Insect teams entered in the Capital City League will open their season tomorrow. Two games are scheduled, but there is a possibility that a third may be played.

The Babe Ruth A. C. and Goldenberg A. C. tangle at 1 p. m. on the East Ellipse, while the Washington Boys Club Eagles and Northern A. C. are trying conclusions on the South Ellipse diamond at the same hour. A fifth team, the Ben Hundleys, 1932 champions, drew a bye. However, President Richard S. Tennyson announced that an attempt will be made to secure a sixth team for the loop. In this event the newcomer will be matched with the Hundleys tomorrow.

The teams will play every Saturday during July. Present plans call for games on Wednesdays and Saturdays in August. The race will be conducted in two halves and the winner of each series will play a three-game series for the championship.

Single by Harry Rice Nips Dodgers for Reds

Cincinnati, July 20 (AP).—Larry Benton outlasted Owen Carroll in a pitching duel today and the Reds came through in the ninth inning with a run that beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 1 to 0. It was their second straight triumph and left them only 2 points behind the Dodgers in the standing.

P. G. A. Laxity On Dates Hit by Sarazen

Loyalty Is One Thing and Making Living Another, Is Reply to Armour.

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, July 20 (AP).—With the lid blown off another controversy within the ranks of the Professional Golfers Association of America, it became definite today that only a change in the dates of the annual P. G. A. championship at Milwaukee, now booked for August 8-13, will make it possible for a group of oustanding stars, including Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen and Densmore Shute, to participate.

Sarazen, the target for a blistering attack by Tommy Armour, who charged Gene and other stars were "killing the goose that lays the golden egg," took sharp issue with the Black Scot, criticized the management of the P. G. A. for laxity in fixing the tournament dates and insisted that the business engagements of many professionals had to be considered in conducting the title event.

Guarantee Menaced.

The efforts of Jacobus and others to bring about a compromise, which would avoid another "revolt" within the P. G. A. ranks, was believed hastened by the development that sponsors of the tournament in Milwaukee threatened to withdraw their $9,000 guarantee if the Ryder Cup stars failed to participate.

Jacobus, confined to his home by illness, did not disclose the progress of plans to move back the dates to September, but Sarazen said this would be essential if he, Hagen, Shute, Craig Wood, Joe Kirkwood and other stars were to take part.

Question of Loyalty.

"Our loyalty to the P. G. A. is one thing and our business of making a living out of golf another," said Sarazen. "Armour's criticism carries no weight. As far as the 'golden eggs' are concerned, they have been hatched this year, already, and he let one of them—the National Open—slip through his hands at Chicago.

"The Ryder Cup team didn't know when the P. G. A. tournament would be held until we arrived in England. Kirkwood and I already had made plans for an exhibition tour, which starts in Rochester, N. Y., this Sunday, and carries us out as far as Omaha, where we will play Johnny Goodman. Then we will enter the Canadian Open the middle of August. It's O. K. with me if they want to hold the P. G. A. without us. I do not think it's a fair proposition to insist we drop all money-making business now to take part."

To Play Union Printers.

St. Jerome's Unlimiteds of Hyattsville have canceled their engagement with Fraternal Order of Eagles for Sunday in Magruder Park and instead will face the Union Printers on the same field at 2:30 o'clock.

Mitchell Is Out Of Park Tennis

Shore, Latona, Hermann, Welsh Favored; Play Opens Tomorrow.

With Dooly Mitchell, winner of the District public parks tennis championship for the past three years, definitely announcing that he will not compete, this year's tournament, starting tomorrow, becomes more or less a free-for-all between some of his closest rivals. Prominently mentioned to inherit Mitchell's diadem are Frank Shore, Tony Latona, Barney Welsh and Gene Hermann.

More than 60 entries are expected in the men's singles, while the men's doubles are expected to attract about 30 teams.

Red Sox Beat Chisox Behind Pipgras, 5 to 0

Marberry and Whitehill Oppose

Pitchers Who Figured in Trade Work Today in Second of Series.

By Frank H. Young.

THERE is a possibility that two pitchers who were traded for each other last winter—Fred Marberry and Lefty Earl Whitehill—will battle it out on the mound this afternoon as the Nats and Tigers entertain a ladies' day crowd in a contest for the edge in season's play. Not only will the Nats be trying to break a 5-all deadlock with the Jungle Cats, but, more important still, they will be trying at least to hold their own with the New York Yankees, who gave them a chance to advance yesterday, which the Nats could not take advantage of.

Whitehill is a certainty to start on the hill for the Nats, but whether Marberry works depends upon him. He worked three innings against the Yankees in New York Wednesday and may want another day of rest. Fred, by the way, has won 13 games this season. Should he dodge the assignment, Vic Frasier probably will get it.

Bucky Harris was given quite a hand when he first appeared on the field yesterday with his Tigers. In order to save a small and overworked mound staff, Harris pitched to batters during the Tigers' entire hitting drill and then he finished up a good day's work by hitting to the infield.

Harris claims he has a mighty good baseball machine now. "We have lost a lot of tough and low-score games," he said. "I really believe we have the strongest team in the West and am hopeful of overhauling the White Sox before the season ends."

Three good plays retired the Tigers in the second. First Schulte hustled over toward left for Stone's looper; Crowder made a snappy one-hand stop of Fox's hot grasser, and then Myer came in fast to gobble up Doljack's slow hopper and make the killing at first.

Fans were given a big laugh when Crowder pulled the string and lobbed over a third strike on Stone ending the fourth. It looked as though the ball never would reach the plate.

Doljack's double opening the eighth had all the earmarks of being a homer. It hit the wire near the top of the fence on the base of the left field stands.

Mrs. Moody Back; Won't Quit Game

New York, July 20 (AP).—Helen Wills Moody, six times Wimbledon champion, seven times queen of her native courts, arrived here today from her latest conquest abroad, still enthusiastic and looking forward both to the Wightman Cup matches, and another national championship conquest next month.

Disavowing any plans for retirement, Mrs. Moody said she would wait in New York for the international Wightman Cup matches with England at Forest Hills, August 4 and 5, and the national championships later in the month before returning to California.

"I like to play tennis," she said, "and as long as I feel that way I shall continue playing. Sometime the fun will go out of it and then I'll stop. It's too early now to say whether I'll return to England to play at Wimbledon next year. Wimbledon is a long way from California."

Six District Golfers Victors in Md. Golf

Jack White, of Rolling Road, 4 and 3, and J. W. Harvey, jr., of Indian Spring, by the same count.

The other District golfers who got by the "suicide" rounds were Louis Fuchs, slim Indian Spring golfer; Maury Nee, 18-year-old Columbia star, and Henry G. Wood, of Manor, who is celebrating his return to tournament golf in this section.

Fuchs Wins Thriller.

The most thrilling match of the day was won by Louis Fuchs, of Indian Spring, who shaded Don McPhail, of Baltimore, on the twentieth hole after both had sunk 25-footers for birdies on the first extra hole.

Nee bowled over Harris Jones, of Baltimore, and Harold N. Graves, jr., of the home club, while Wood put out Jack Jester, of Kenwood, and Don O'Brien, of Rolling Road, Ernie Caldwell's conqueror in the morning. Caldwell's defeat provided the only real upset.

Two more rounds are slated today.

Results:

First round—Roger Peacock (Indian Spring) beat Talbot T. Speer (Baltimore C. C.), 6 and 5; Spencer Overton (Hillendale) beat A. W. Reid (Sparrows Point), 4 and 2; John Jankowski (Indian Spring) beat Jack White (Rolling Road), 4 and 3; W. Harvey, jr. (Indian Spring) beat J. R. Armacost (Forest Park), 3 and 2; Howard E. Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

FROM an American standpoint, the early reports from the North American Radio Conference at Mexico City are a trifle disconcerting. One from James W. Baldwin, official observer of the National Association of Broadcasters, is to the effect that Mexico may consider area as a basis for its claims and that it will ask only for facilities in the present broadcast band. This would mean, according to a report from still another source, that Mexico might demand as many as 20 channels, both exclusive and shared, for its use.

These early reports, however, in the opinion of a seasoned Washington observer should not disconcert the American delegation. He discounted absolutely such a demand as, say, for 20 frequencies, if the Mexicans should ask for as many as these.

"This is out of all proportion to their needs," he said. "To begin with, they are not ready to invest as much money as would be required to build up many stations at this time. At these conferences, they always start out with theoretical allocation plans, such as by area, population or number of listeners, but as a rule, these practically don't work. Insofar as area is concerned, if the Sahara Desert happened to be on a continent which was being divided up for radio allocations, it would get all of the stations because of its size, but that wouldn't mean anything.

"The main thing to consider is what is fair to the listener. There are in the United States, supposedly about 20,000,000 listeners, and in Mexico, probably not more than 300,000 or 400,000, mostly around Mexico City. Therefore, that would make a demand from Mexico for, say, 20 frequencies, assuming, of course, that the report of such a demand is correct, clear out of all proportions. Likewise, broadcasters who are already operating stations unquestionably have certain rights which will be recognized.

"So, in my opinion, after a great deal of preliminary talk, and each side gets pretty well worn down—you want to remember that they haven't even started yet—the difference between Mexico and the United States, if there is to be one, will resolve itself into the question of how many stations Mexico can operate, how many frequencies it can actually avail itself of, and what facilities it really needs to accommodate its listeners. I think the whole thing will be settled on that basis."

WASHINGTON listeners may follow Gen. Balbo back to New York today by radio. His official reception there is scheduled to take place at 11 o'clock this morning and will be carried by WMAL and WJSV. The official luncheon will be heard at 1:30 o'clock over WRC and possibly WJSV. A talk on Gen. Balbo's achievements will be given by Rod Arkell over WJSV at 1:15 p. m.

The Tales of Titans will present a dramatization of "The Phantom 'Rickshaw," one of the best-known of many world famous stories by Rudyard Kipling, who recently spoke in an international broadcast. The radio play will be heard over WMAL at 7 p. m.

The scene, as in many of Kipling's stories, is the hill country of India, and the tale concerns an Englishman who jilts his sweetheart and becomes engaged to another girl. His first inamorata dies, but the man continues to see her in her yellow paneled 'rickshaw on a Simla road they used to frequent together, and the constant, silent reproach of the phantom figure at last breaks his health and finally his mind.

The story is widely known for its tremendous power of climax, and the special radio version takes full advantage of its tense dramatic situations.

Musical impressions from Kipling's "The Jungle Book," by the English composer, Cyril Scott, will occupy the entire half-hour broadcast by the Columbians over WBAC network, but not WJSV tonight at 10:00 o'clock.

The parts of this suite to be played include "The Jungle," "Dawn," "Rikki Tikki Tavi and the Snake" and "The Dance of the Elephants."

Helen Ferris, of the Junior Literary Guild, will be the guest on the Woman's Radio Review this afternoon (WRC, 2:30 o'clock). Miss Ferris will discuss "Summer Reading for Young People." She is a former editor of The American Girl.

THE revival of one of the dramatic hits of the nineties will be heard when Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windermere's Fan" is presented by the First Nighter tonight at 9 p. m. over the WJZ network, but not WMAL. June Meredith will be the star, supported by Don Ameche.

Two numbers by Russian composers will be played by the Woman's Symphony Orchestra of 100 pieces under the direction of Ebba Sundstrom in a concert to be broadcast over WMAL from A Century of Progress tonight at 9:30 o'clock. The Woman's Symphony Orchestra was organized in 1925 and is entering its eighth concert season. The orchestra will play the first movement from Tschaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony" and "Spanish Caprice," by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

The "New Deal" will be considered by Nathaniel Phillips, president and general counsel of the National League for American Citizenship, during a talk over the WJZ network, but not WMAL, at 4 p. m.

Lee Wiley gives her interpretation of "I Cover the Waterfront," in Vanity Fair tonight (WRC, 8:30) to the accompaniment of Victor Young's music.

A revival of the "Pagan Love Song" by Will Osborne's Orchestra will be heard this morning over WJSV at 10:45 o'clock.

Phil Harris and Leah Ray will collaborate in "I Love You or Something," at 8 o'clock over WMAL. Phil is still in Galveston.

WHAT was probably the first official gun-salute to be broadcast was given listeners when they heard the nineteen-gun salvo to Gen. Balbo when he arrived at New York.

Last summer, the Army Band, in its afternoon concerts, synchronized their programs so that they finished just as the post's colors were being lowered and the sunset gun fired, bringing the broadcast to an effective martial conclusion.

Apropos of artillery being broadcast, studio sound-effects men can generally fake a much more real imitation of a cannon than the piece itself. However, Musician Cochran, of the U. S. Marine Band, when he slams the bass drum during the National Anthem, can make a better detonation than any seventy-five at Fort Myer.

Dr. George F. Bowerman, of the Public Library, is to speak over WMAL at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

"Need One Have Scarlet Fever?" will be considered by Dr. Gladys Dick this afternoon (WJSV, 1:45 o'clock).

The Snow-Queens with the "Dance of the Ice Cubes" are expected to cool things off on WJSV at 9:30 o'clock tonight. Jane Froman, Howard Marsh and Jacques Renard's orchestra are likewise expected to add a few shivers.

THE Women's National A. A. U. swimming championships, to be contested in Zachs Bay, Long Island, will be described over WJSV today and tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Today an eye-witness account of the 220-yard backstroke and the 440-yard free-style races will be given, while on Saturday the 300-meter medley and the 880-yard club relay will be described.

Harold Gray, conductor of WJSV's "Sun Dial," is contemplating an announcing marathon. He has asked the production department to pick a day when one man, providing he can talk that long, can handle every job. It's a 17-hour job from station opening to closing.

WILEY POST'S first stop in Canada on his round-the-world flight, at Edmonton, Albert, will be described over the networks.

As the aviator drops down to a landing on Portage avenue announcers will be on hand to greet him with microphones. They are now en route to the Canadian city with engineers and equipment.

Walt Mason, Himself

The World's Most Famous Rhymester

Longevity.

I SOMETIMES meet a hoary wight who's lived some ninety years, and still retains his appetite, and has good eyes and ears; his faculties are unimpaired, he is not stiff or sore, and he expects he will be spared for many seasons more. I ask him what the secret is that he has lived so long, that keeps him free from rheumatiz, and blithe and hale and strong. He says, "I've always eaten greens, the cabbage rich and sweet, and turnips, beets and lima beans, and never butcher's meat. I'm feeling just as gay and fresh as in my youthful years, and that's because I shun the flesh of sheep and swine and steers. If you would reach a green old age, and like an athlete feel, eat greens and do not blow your wage for mutton, pork or veal." Anon I meet another skate who simply will not die; he's reached the age of ninety-eight, and still is stacking high. I ask him if he has some plan, some method of his own, that will enable mortal man to dodge the churchyard stone. He says, "I'm fond of butcher's meat, I eat all I can hold, and so I gambol on my feet like any three-year-old. I'm fond of beef, I'm fond of pork, I'm fond of roasted lamb. I eat them with a knife and fork, and note how strong I am."

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York.—Vignettes of Broadway on a stroll from Columbus Circle to Forty-second street:

The Cosmopolitan, once the stronghold of Balieff and his Chauve Souris Russians, now a movie house . . . Automobile row with its windows of shining chariots . . . Stables with green fronts where mounts for Central Park equestrians are sheltered . . . Brownstone rooming houses with chorus girls idling on the front stoops . . . Broadway Tabernacle, where show folk attend Sunday services.

Taxi dance halls advertising "250 show girls and debutantes for partners." . . . Hammerstein's old theater with the marquee lights now spelling out the sign, "Offices For Rent." . . . Fifthy-third street where the elevated railway crosses and adjacent playhouses have to install submarine doors to keep out the roar of the trains . . . The skating rink where luxurious limousines pull up to bring Park avenue youngsters for their morning session on the ice.

Winter Garden Dark.

Winter Garden, famous for its Al Jolson and Gilda Gray revues, now dark . . . Health food restaurants, vegetarian lunch counters and the tavern where Arnold Rothstein received the telephone call that lured that czar of gamblers to his death. . . . The jewelry store that was once held up in broad daylight by the Whittemore gang . . . Cigar-box size shops which sell ballet slippers and rehearsal costumes . . . Irving Berlin's studio with its red fire escape down which he and Ellen Mackay fled when they eloped.

Publicity building, which hasn't a press agent in it, but is the stronghold of managers of prize fighters and wrestlers . . . Times Square and the historic Palace, last of the straight vaudeville houses . . . Charred remains of the Strand roof which recently burned. It was here that Barbara Stanwyck started her career as a chorus girl . . . Panic Island, a gigantic safety zone in the middle of the square, where unemployed actors and musicians loaf while waiting for bookings.

Juices to Drink.

Orange juice, cocoanut juice, grape juice, pineapple juice stands. . . . More taxi dance halls, low price cabarets, chop suey parlors, beer taverns . . . Sightseeing bus stands —"Right down to Coney Island," "See Chinatown at night," "Around the city for a dollar," "Going right out to Yankee Stadium" — anywhere you want to go if you have the price . . . Sidewalk barkers ballyhooing burlesque shows . . .

The Times building, like a toothpick jutting out of the pavement, with an electrified ribbon flashing out the news of the day . . . News stands selling out-of-town papers, and loitering detectives waiting to pick up out-of-town criminals.

About 60 scoutmasters and district commissioners are expected to take this leader's course at Camp Roosevelt over the week-end of July 29-30.

Troop 56, Peck Memorial Chapel, had a visitor from the Men's Bible Class, Church of the Covenant, at their last meeting on July 14.

Troop 205 has had two camps during the last week and two more are planned during the week. The leaders of the troop are going to spend the week-end at Camp Roosevelt under the leadership of Paul T. Hannen, scoutmaster. Donald Smith won the medal which is awarded each month to the prize scout, and the Flaming Arrow patrol won the bar pins for the month. Submitted by Austin White, senior patrol leader.

Howard Bixby, Stuart Reynold, and Joe Bogan left last Sunday on a 170-mile cruise to West River. They are all sea scouts and sailed on the Chesapeake. They will be gone 10 days.

Big Times Planned.

Camp Roosevelt begins its second half of the camping season Sunday with the biggest events of the year ahead. Among these events will be the Scouts' banquet, intercamp Scoutcraft meet, water pageant regatta, and the farmers' picnic. The farmers' picnic is planned for August 10. Roosevelt is scheduled to close on August 20, but a special squad will remain to close the camp.

Troop 79 will contribute fifteen Scouts to the first week of the third period at Camp Roosevelt. Two cabins will be occupied by the troop. Edwin Maschmeyer, scoutmaster, is planning to leave tomorrow for camp and several of the other fellows will leave Sunday.

On July 15, Troop 82, conducted by the Brookland M. E. Church, gave a surprise party for their noted scoutmaster, Harry W. Scott. The event was the celebration of his forty-fifth birthday. He was invited to the Better Homes and Garden Club meeting at the Masonic Hall, but when he arrived he found (much to his amzement) a host of 240 Scouts, Cubs and parents lined up at salute eagerly awaiting his entrance. The troop staff met Mr. Scott at his residence and escorted him to the hall, where he was greeted by many officials, friends and other dignitaries of high rank.

William M. Deviny, chairman, troop committee, former Troop No. 80, made a forceful speech on boyhood.

Recitations were given by Cubs Darrill Jones and Harry Newby. The Cub Pack put on a skit entitled "The Wind." Thirty-five candidates were formally invested into the troop by S. P. L. Weber. Mr. Fennell sang. The troop presented Mr. Scott with a serge scoutmaster's uniform.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

WHETHER they knew it or not, United States Government officials took a page from eighteenth century English history when they moved to prosecute gangsters and bandits on charges of income tax evasion—for failure to report their income as required by law. More than 200 years ago London's most notorious gangster was hanged because he failed to report to police the fact that he had received money as a reward for restoring stolen goods to the original owner. He was Jonathan Wild, who organized crime in London to an amazing degree in the early eighteenth century. Seemingly he was immune to the law.

Wild's gang specialized in burglaries, deriving most of their income from rewards posted for the return of the stolen goods. Such goods as could not be restored to the owners for reward were loaded on Wild's own ship for sale abroad. Thieves who refused to join his gang were promptly arrested and convicted on evidence, true or false, supplied by Wild. As for himself, Wild always had an ironclad alibi.

His downfall came in 1725 when he was brought to trial for the theft of lace. Tried in Old Bailey for the actual theft, he was acquitted; but tried on an additional charge of taking a reward for the return of the lace without reporting the fact to police, he was convicted—and promptly hanged.

The funny-bone is a popular name for the ulnar nerve which, when struck, gives the familiar tingling pain at the elbow. The funny-bone then, is no bone at all. Medical students sometimes offer this explanation: the funny-bone is so called because it borders on the humerus.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

300 Jews Jailed In Nuremberg By Nazi Troops

Merchants Are Paraded in Streets and Escorted to Barracks.

Berlin, July 20 (AP).—The ancient city of Nuremberg was the scene today of an extraordinary round-up of Jews, no news of which was allowed to reach the German public.

About 9 o'clock 300 Jews, mostly business men and shopkeepers, were arrested by the Nazis and paraded through the main streets. The procession was headed and flanked by storm troopers, who escorted the Jews eventually to the Baeronschans Barracks, where presumably they were still in custody tonight.

Drive Against Society.

According to local Nazi circles, the action was intended to be "a drive against Jewish society." It was not ascertained whether the drive was sanctioned by high authority or whether it was done on the initiative of Nuremberg storm troopers.

A court injunction was granted today forbidding use of the label "Evangelical Christians" for the ticket headed by Friedrich von Bodelschwingh for Sunday's church elections to determine future control of German Protestantism.

This order, sought by the Nazi German Christians, will necessitate reprinting of handbills and other propaganda material which had been printed for use in the campaign.

Promises by Pastors.

The press is flooded with articles by Nazi pastors urging support for their group in Sunday's voting. One promises more manly songs in the hymn books; another asserts that Jesus was the first revolutionary leader against Jewry; another says that the German Christians are "Jesus' brown army," and another demands segregation of converted Jews into Ghetto churches.

As the non-Nazis' chief church publication, the Taegliche Rundschau is still suppressed and other means of speaking to the public are limited for the Evangelical party, the followers of Dr. Bodelschwingh must make a personal campaign.

Criminal Appeals Speeded by Court

Annapolis, Md., July 20.—The Maryland Court of Appeals today announced an amendment to its rules, designed to guard against long-drawn-out delays, particularly appeals taken in criminal cases. The change places 70 days as the maximum limit for filing appeals, the computation to be from the date a prisoner is sentenced in any court of the State.

In some instances delays in filing have given prisoners their freedom for more than a year after sentence has been imposed. Another change will make it a fixed practice with the higher tribunal to advance criminal appeals upon its docket, instead of awaiting their numerical turn on the calendar.

Army Mule, Not Horse, Slated for Scrap Heap

(Associated Press.)

It is the Army mule and not the cavalry horse which will be eliminated if the War Department is granted funds to motorize the cavalry.

Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, chief of cavalry, said so yesterday concerning plans for the modernization of the Army, which have been the subject of dispute in the administration.

Hamilton Bank Capital Stock Is Subscribed

New Institution's Opening to Put 10 Millions in Circulation.

All stock required to start the proposed Hamilton National Bank of Washington has been subscribed and paid for.

This, cheering information to more than 60,000 depositors in eight restricted banks forming the prospective institution, was announced yesterday by Capt. Chester Wells, chairman of the general subscription committee for the new bank, and Edwin C. Graham, president of the coming institution.

Another of yesterday's local bank developments was the adoption at a mass meeting at Central High School of the report of the depositors' committee of the Park Savings Bank. A high light of this report was the condemnation of the Treasury Department and F. G. Awalt, in particular, for lack of cooperation with the committee.

Today, the Treasury Department declared, letters of instructions as to the filing of claims by the depositors of the banks forming the Hamilton Bank will be sent out. Also, reorganization of Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to the component banks will be completed.

Deposits Assigned.

Of the $1,250,000 capital structure of the proposed bank, $315,000 has been contributed in cash toward stock and the remaining $934,400 represents assignments to stock from amounts on deposit in the eight component banks.

The total amount will give the Hamilton a capital of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $250,000 on opening. Deposits representing 50 per cent, or more than $10,000,000, will be released upon the opening.

The meeting of Park Savings depositors brought together more than 800 persons. W. J. Neale, a member of the depositors' committee, read the committee's report, which was unanimously adopted.

Awalt was taken to task for not being aware that the bank's charter had expired until informed by the committee. He also, the committee reported, told them that he would appoint a receiver "today or tomorrow," when in reality the receiver had already been appointed.

Would Collect Losses.

The committee, which already has started to have the bank declared a copartnership so that the committee, by a court receivership, may endeavor to collect from the bank's directorate for losses of more than $1,700,000 discovered after the suicide of Robert S. Stuntz, executive vice president of the bank.

A motion for the appointment of a favorable receivership—the receiver now in charge of the bank was named by the Treasury—will be made to the court within a few days, the report stated.

Fred Eden Hurt In Illinois Crash

Fred Eden, referee in bankruptcy for the District, was slightly injured in an auto accident at Peoria, Ill., according to word received here last night. He and his 9-year-old son, James, suffered cuts and bruises when their auto was in collision with another at a downtown intersection.

E. J. Eden, of Pekin, Ill., a brother, who was driving the machine, was unhurt. Another brother and nephew received hospital treatment and were discharged. The operator of the other car was arrested.

For the last several days Fred Eden had been visiting relatives in Pekin, which is 10 miles south of Peoria.

Renovize Exhibit Goes on to July 29

Putting Thousands Back to Work Here Is Aim of Campaign.

The Renovize Washington Exposition, now in its second week, will continue through July 29 at 1435-37 K street northwest, it was announced yesterday.

By this time, it is expected the remodeled house at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest will be on full-time demonstration. It can be seen now at certain hours during the day.

Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary of the Washington Board of Trade, in discussing the renovize campaign yesterday, observed that its real object is to reemploy thousands of Washington's skilled craftsmen and to stimulate business.

"It means more than property owners indulging in a beautification drive," he said.

Pleasure Boat Docked, 950 Dance at Wharf

The dancing aboard the City of Washington on the Potomac River last night was all done at the wharves.

When the ship backed from its wharf late yesterday with about 950 pleasure-seekers, filled with happy anticipations, aboard, a link in the rudder broke, incapacitating the vessel. The harbor firemen towed the crippled boat back to its wharf, where the dancing continued in accordance with the schedule. Tickets were returned, the Wilson Line announced.

Man Hurt Falling From Roof.

George Parker, 27, a painter, of 1327½ L street southeast, is in Georgetown University Hospital in a serious condition from injuries received yesterday when he fell 40 feet to the ground from the roof of a house at 5505 Chevy Chase Parkway.

Douglas' Query On Relief Cash Is Unanswered

District Commission Has No Reply on How Funds Were Spread.

The District Commissioners will make no immediate reply to Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas regarding the point he raised recently as to the allocation of unemployment relief expenditures over the entire fiscal year, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman, stated yesterday.

If the $173,353 grant, just requested of the Federal relief administration, is approved, there will be no need to settle the question of whether weekly relief disbursements are to be curtailed severely for several weeks. Even then the Commissioners are expected to insist upon the right to spend the relief appropriation of $1,300,000 as it is needed.

The budget director, in his letter refusing to approve the $1,500,000 gasoline tax fund expenditure for highway improvements, raised the question as to "whether the high rate of relief expenditures was in conformance with the provisions of the antideficiency act."

The Commissioners at that time estimated that the District relief fund would be exhausted by February 1. Since then Leroy A. Halbert, director of the emergency aid division, has moved the date up to March 1.

To make the appropriation last throughout the fiscal year, relief disbursements would have to be cut from $48,000 a week to $25,000, beginning about the first of September. This would mean that about half the more than 10,000 families now on the relief rolls would have to be dropped.

Other Cities Asking About Renovize Drive

The Washington renovize campaign is attracting the attention of various cities throughout the country, Arthur B. Heaton, general chairman, said yesterday.

The latest community to interest itself is Tampa, Fla. Representatives of this city conferred yesterday with leaders of the Washington campaign over plans for launching a similar drive.

Mr. Heaton will discuss the campaign at 5 p. m. today over Station WMAL.

Broker Arrested On Short Charge

Benjamin Buck Is Held in $15,000 Bail at Baltimore.

Benjamin R. Buck, of Washington, was being held in $15,000 bail in Baltimore yesterday, charged with embezzlement of $7,921 from Harry M. Rosenbaum, Easton, Md.

Buck had been buying wheat, as broker, for Rosenbaum for several months. Rosenbaum ordered the wheat to be sold Monday. When asked for the money, Buck said he didn't have it, according to Rosenbaum. Joseph Buck, a brother, said the broker was "short of the market."

Buck was arrested and taken before Judge Caddis in Baltimore. Bail was set at $10,000 and he was released until Tuesday to obtain a lawyer. Wednesday at the hearing the bail was increased to $15,000 and Buck was bound over for action by the grand jury.

Three additional warrants were issued yesterday against Buck, all of which charged embezzlement. Buck was operating through the Delmarva Grain Co., of Baltimore.

Courteous

Policeman Spilled From Motorcycle Refuses to Hold Visitor.

Maybe Washington policemen are not the hard-boiled lot they are cooked up to be.

Take Motorcycle Policeman C. L. Smith, for example. Escorting a White House automobile down Pennsylvania avenue yesterday he was sent spinning from his cycle by a confused Ohio motorist, who, ignoring traffic signals, pushed into the official procession.

Unharmed, Smith quickly jumped to his feet, mounted his motorcycle, and was off, but not before signaling Traffic Policeman W. W. Hill to let the culprit go.

"I didn't even take his name," said Smith, who is used to bringing order out of the traffic chaos at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

Man, Asleep in Car, Robbed.

A pocketbook containing $11 was stolen from the pocket of Frank P. Kieffer, of 401 Third street northwest, yesterday while he was asleep in his car, Kieffer reported to police.

Nickel Beer!

Five-Cent Schooner Will Be Here Soon, Brewery Leader Promises.

The old foaming schooner at a nickel a fill, once a symbol of American capacity and economics, is coming back.

To stand behind the prediction is Edward A. Schmidt, chairman of the National Recovery Act Committee of the United Brewers Association, one of the two big beer organizations which met at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday to talk hours, wages and labor conditions.

"I don't think our present America will call it a schooner," said Mr. Schmidt, "but it's going to be big and it's going to sell for 5 cents." Mr. Schmidt thinks it's only a matter of months.

Some one asked him if beer was going to be better.

"Beer," he smiled, "is always better."

Some of the biggest beer men in the industry were at the meeting, and their names sounded just as you would suppose they would. They were Huber, Bruckman, Schaefer, Beneman, Bleser, Bremer, Kunz, Schrader and Goetz.

Noticeable at the meeting were broad smiles, optimism and—not a single bottle of beer!

Milk Inquiry Is Commended by Citizen Group

Federation Protests Increase on Bread; Urges Masonry Bridge.

The executive committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations last night commended work of Elwood H. Seal, special counsel of the Senate's milk investigation committee, and that of his assistant for the thoroughness with which the milk inquiry has been conducted so far. Each member of the committee agreed to call on Mr. Seal and give him data on milk complaints.

The committee also took the stand that there is no reason why the price of bread should be increased here. A vote of commendation was given the District bakers who have promised not to raise prices.

A special subcommittee was named to appear before the joint meeting of the Fine Arts Commission and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission on July 28 to set forth the federation's preference for a masonry type of Calvert Bridge as against the steel arch design accepted by the District Commissioners.

James G. Yaden, chairman, was authorized to appoint a subcommittee to make a study of the needs for changes in the District government and to report back to the executive committee, which, in turn, will submit recommendations to Senator King's special committee, now engaged in a similar study.

Where are the most beautiful photographs of trees in America? The American Forestry Association, 1713 K street northwest, will bring them together in a single collection to be exhibited throughout the country for the purpose of stimulating interest in the beauty of trees in the American landscape.

Cash prizes totaling $450 will be awarded in State and national competition. Awards will be based on beauty in photographic effect, utilizing trees singly, in groups, or in mass. Competition closes October 31 and there are no restrictions as to tree species, season or location.

The collection will remain on exhibit in Washington for 10 days before displayed in every region of the country. Awards will be made in November.

Annadale, Smith Case Figure, Seeks Parole

The District parole board yesterday announced it was considering an application of Charles Elbert Annadale, convicted of embezzlement in the celebrated F. G Smith case, for parole from the District Reformatory at Lorton.

Annadale, who is serving a nine-year term, was eligible for parole last October. John Edwards, also involved in the case, was released recently after serving a 3-year term. G. Bryan Pitts, former head of the investment firm, is serving a 14-year sentence.

Messenger Examination Excepts Washington

Residents of Washington and surrounding States will not be admitted to messenger examinations which will be given by the Civil Service Commission in the next few months. The Commission will accept applications until August 8, but only Washington residents entitled to military preference will be allowed to enter the examination.

The District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, Iowa, New Hampshire and Vermont have already received appointments in excess of their quotas, it was announced.

Home Owners' Bond Refusal Is Not Problem

Corporation Counsel Says Financing Efforts Will Be Limited.

Little concern was evidenced yesterday at the Home Owners Loan Corporation by the report that insurance companies and building and loan associations will refuse to accept the bonds of the corporation in exchange for mortgages.

With $29,000,000,000 worth of mortgages throughout the country, the Home Owners Loan Corporation, with a financial backing of $2,000,000,000, will be in a position to aid in the financing of but a small percentage of the homes, said Horace Russell, general counsel of the corporation.

For this reason, he said, the board will regard with extreme favor any inclination on the part of the lending concerns to refuse the bonds.

Many in Default.

Of the $29,000,000,000 worth of mortgages he estimated that $5,000,000,000 are in default. This amount is more than the corporation can take care of.

Officials of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Home Owners Loan Corporation, in warning the public against the practice of employing persons to prepare applications, pointed out that preliminary appraisals of property will be made without cost to the applicants by employes of the loan corporation.

Persons attempting to take advantage of home owners face a fine of not more than $10,000, or imprisonment of five years or both.

Charles A. Jones, general manager of the Washington office of the corporation, said there is no satisfactory space in a Government building for his office. He is planning to obtain rented space in a downtown building.

Michaels' Plea Denied.

One of the first cases to receive attention from the District manager will be that of Joseph L. Michaels, of 1013 East Capitol street. The Michaels' home was sold under a foreclosure sale this week, despite a court order directing the owners of the first trust to appear in court yesterday and show cause why they should not be enjoined from proceeding with the sale.

The Michaels' petition was dismissed in District Supreme Court by Justice Oscar R. Luhring, automatically ratifying the sale to the trust holder. Justice Luhring held that there was no valid manner by which the sale could be halted.

The last resort for the Michaels is an emergency loan from the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

Streets Will Have Highway Markers

U. S. Roads Will Be Shown in District by Standard Signs.

Streets and avenues followed by U. S. highways in the District are soon to be equipped with markers.

Announcing the program yesterday, William A Van Duzer, director of traffic, said the signs will be installed on Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Connecticut and Pennsylvania avenues and other through thoroughfares. Actual work will start Monday and is expected to take about a month to complete.

The figures giving the route's number will have spherical glass reflectors, an aid to night drivers. The signs will be mounted eight feet above the pavement on steel posts, embedded in concrete.

U. S. Highways No. 240, 1, 29, 50 and 211 and alternate routes and bypasses will be equipped with the indicators.

Signs also will be placed along D. C. No. 4 and No. 5, routes to Annapolis and southern Maryland.

The Lavone girl testified before Turnage that she had been walking the streets since Rolando brought her here a month ago.

Piazzi was released on $1,000 bond and Rolando was held under $3,000 bond.

Reno Suit Asks Divorce From Dr. J. A. Tillema

Wife Is Daughter of Late David Jayne Hill and Socially Prominent.

A divorce from Dr. John A. Tillema, associate professor of science at George Washington University, is being sought in Reno by his wife, the daughter of the late David Jayne Hill, who was once Ambassador to Germany.

The suit has been filed in the Ormsby County Court by her attorney, E. E. Roberts, it was learned yesterday. Dr. Tillema has not yet entered an appearance in the case. If he fails to do so, Mrs. Tillema will take the degree by default, her attorney says.

Dr. Tillema was reached last night at their home, 1521 Edgemoor lane, Bethesda, Md. He declined to make any comment on the pending divorce proceedings. Mrs. Tillema is in Reno with her two children.

Her father was a close friend of Presidents Roosevelt and Harding. He was Minister to Switzerland from 1903 to 1905. Then he became Minister of the Netherlands. He served as Ambassador to Germany from 1907 to 1911.

During the Harding administration he was offered the portfolio to Japan but declined because of the press of personal business. Mrs. Tillema has been prominent in Washington social circles for a number of years.

Her father died in March of last year, leaving an estate estimated at $500,000.

Arrest Clears 60 Burglaries, Police Assert

Suspect Believed Responsible for Series of Second-Story Depredations.

The baffling series of second-story housebreaking jobs in the northeast and southeast sections in recent weeks was believed solved, Ninth Precinct police declared last night, with the arrest of John Alexander, alias William Montgomery, 1615 Gramer street northeast.

Taken into custody early Monday when he was found carrying a sack containing a ham, a side of bacon and several heads of cabbage, police said it was subsequently discovered that the meat and cabbage had been stolen from the ice box in the home of Mrs. Annie Clummer, 1188 Morse street northeast, which had been entered through a second-story window.

After connecting the man with that robbery, an investigation was started by Detective C. J. Stewart which resulted yesterday, police said, in Alexander confessing to about sixty housbreakings in the eastern sections of the city.

After confessing the man is alleged to have shown police how he operated, using ladders and other means of entering second-story windows. In addition to the meat and cabbage, police stated about $600 worth of men's clothing and jewelry have been recovered in the robberies.

Alexander will be brought before Police Court this morning for a eliminary hearing, with a request that he be held for grand jury action.

Two Fraternity Men Give Bond In Arson Case

Pair Accused of Firing House Say They Can Prove Alibi.

Alfred H. Smith, 26, of Humphries, Mo., and Edward J. Parlton, 22, of Derby, Conn., yesterday were released under $1,500 bond by Police Judge Gus Schuldt charged with arson in connection with the $8,000 fire July 9 at the Sigma Chi fraternity house, 1312 N street northwest.

Both men are students at George Washington University, Smith being president of the local chapter of Sigma Chi, well-known national college fraternity.

Although testimony was disclosed at the preliminary hearing linking the two men with a ten-gallon gasoline can found on the premises, investigators have been unable to establish a motive.

They were arrested Wednesday by Detective W. F. Sager, Second Precinct, after an intensive investigation by him and Fire Inspector Raymond C. Roberts.

Roberts related the suspicious circumstances of the fire. Two distinct blazes, one originating in the room occupied by Smith and Parlton, were discovered by firemen.

Although the students did not take the stand, their attorney, Frederick C. Rice, indicated that their defense will be based on an alibi. They maintain that they were not in the city at the time of the fire, which endangered the lives of fifteen members of the fraternity.

Parlton is a "pledge" to the fraternity. His father is a prominent physician in Derby.

John Doe Mystery Remains Unsolved

Cleveland Police Unable to Light Identity of Amnesia Case.

Mystery surrounding the identity of John Doe, Washington's adopted amnesia victim, deepened yesterday when Cleveland, Ohio, authorities notified The Post they have no record of a man answering his description being missing from the Ohio metropolis.

John Doe, as he is caled at the Blue Plains Home for Aged, is almost certain he is from Cleveland and has a wife and several grown children there. He believes his first name is William. The elderly derelict, who doesn't remember his age but thinks he is about 62, was found here April 9, and has been at the infirmary since last May.

George J. Matowitz, Cleveland's chief of police, informed The Post yesterday that a careful check of missing persons has proved fruitless so far as this particular John Doe is concerned. The lookout will be continued, however, he said.
